

Why will tax bills be late? The answer is twofold

by ROGER CAPETTINI
and BOB LAHEY

This is a multiple-choice story about late tax bills, a Cook County phenomenon which occurs perhaps seven out of 10 years. Check one:

(A) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because the chief judge of the Circuit Court failed to fill a vacancy on the Board of Tax Appeals.

(B) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because computers in the Department of Local Government Affairs (LGA) were unable to compute figures which used to be done by clerks.

If you checked (A), you were half right. If you checked (B), you were half right.

When County Board Pres. George W. Dunne announced last week the property tax bills would be at least one month late again this year, various sources attributed the costly delay to John Boyle, chief judge of the Circuit Court.

The watchdog Civic Federation, however, said the LGA has to shoulder some of the responsibility.

WHEREVER THE responsibility rests,

the resulting cost to county taxpayers, in the form of interest on tax anticipation warrants, will be an estimated $2 million.

The Civic Federation has estimated the warrants will cost almost $35,000 a day to the City of Chicago, Cook County, Chicago Park District, Forest Preserve and Chicago City Colleges. The cost to the several hundred other county taxing bodies, it has been estimated, will at least double that amount.

Judge Boyle's part in this year's version of the almost annual tax mess stems from his failure to name a successor to George Keane on the Board of (Tax) Appeals for almost two months following Keane's resignation Dec. 1.

Finally, in late January, the judge appointed Seymour Zaban to be post. In the meantime, however, the board fell far behind in its task of hearing thousands of appeals filed by dissatisfied taxpayers.

THE COMPUTATION of tax rates and tax bills cannot begin until the board of appeals has completed its work.

Cook County political observers have claimed the judge's delay in making the appointment, charged to him by law, resulted from disagreement within the Democratic Party over who the successor should be.

Judge Boyle was not available for comment.

The second share of the fault this year goes to the LGA for its inability to provide the county clerk with figures on the assessment of capital stock by March 1.

The LGA is charged with determining the value of state service corporations — such as utilities and insurance companies — over and above the tangible assets of the company.

Those figures also are critical.

A spokesman for the LGA admitted partial responsibility for the late tax bills. He said the LGA has encountered serious problems in the computer system used to determine capital stock assessments.

A second spokesman for the LGA has estimated the work will not be completed until the end of March. The county clerk needs about 30 days in which to compute the tax rates and bills after receiving the information from the LGA.

That timetable apparently coincides with Dunne's estimate the tax bills will be mailed May 1, with the first installment payment due June 1.

But, Dunne said, there may be additional delays if further problems in the billing procedure occur.

Principals named at Whitman, Twain schools

The Dist. 21 school board has approved two new principals for the Walt Whitman and Mark Twain schools. However, officials are not sure who will head what school.

The two, Jack Cushman and Richard Klaslow, are two of three new principals hired by Dist. 21 as a result of the opening of two new schools, and the shifting of administrators within the district.

Earlier this year officials hired David Statton to replace Steve Stavrakas as principal of Riley School in Arlington Heights. Stavrakas is now administrative assistant for public and staff relations within the district.

At the same time the board hired Statton. It announced that the current Twain principal, Dennis Carpenter, will head the new Washington Irving School in Buffalo Grove, and administrative intern Bob Gerry will head the new Robert Lewis Stevenson School in Wheeling.

Officials also said Katie Samsel, current principal of Whitman School will be the district's new science coordinator in September.

CUSHMAN COMES to Dist. 21 from Houghton Lake, Mich., where he is now a sixth grade teacher. However, Cushman is not new to the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area. He was superintendent of School Dist. 96 in Lake County Buffalo Grove from 1963 to 1965.

Before coming to Dist. 96 Cushman was a principal in the Glencoe school system for six years and a teacher for nine years.

The 31-year-old Cushman received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Michigan State University and is married.

Klaslow currently is principal of Lake Zurich Junior High School. He assumed his duties as principal in that district in 1970 and for three years prior was a teacher in Lake Zurich.

Klaslow, 29, received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Northeast Missouri State College. He is married and has one child.

The new men assume duties at their respective schools at the end of the current school year.

EUELL PORTER, director of choirs at Baylor University in Waco, Texas, showed students in the Wheeling High School choral program how to hit the high notes this week during a visit to the school. Porter's visit was financed by the Wheeling Choral League. During his one-day visit to Wheeling, Porter worked with all the school's choral groups.

Insight out

WRONG NUMBER? A bewildered Buffalo Grove resident was given a bit of a shock the other day when she tried to call the village hall. After dialing the old telephone number, which was changed almost a year ago, she finally reached an operator.

After explaining the problem the lady said she had a hard time believing the explanation. "I'm sorry but the party you are trying to reach has moved to Schaumburg."

ABOUT THE TIME the village board meetings in Buffalo Grove are known for going into the wee hours of the morning, and people are beginning to take issue. In two separate incidents last Monday night the time element was attacked.

The first incident was in the middle of the trustees discussion on the possibility of getting a portable tape recorder to tape meetings. One trustee said the idea was fine, however, the tapes for such recorders only last two hours. Trustee Ed Fabish said, "We can always pass a motion that when the tape runs out the meeting ends."

IN THE SECOND incident Village Pres. Gary Armstrong questioned an insurance company representative as to whether an elected official was eligible for the group medical insurance offered full time employees.

The representative, who was at his first board meeting, said the plan was only for people who worked over 30 hours a week. He said, however, "I don't know how many nights a week you do this — but judging by tonight, I think you can make it."

WHERE'D EVERYBODY GO? The audience at the Wheeling village board meeting Monday night was taken by surprise. It seems everyone has gotten used to having an executive session following the regular meeting.

This week, however, when the trustees got up they went home, while the audience sat waiting for their return. Finally, someone notified the audience that the trustees had left.

Voters in Vernon Twp. must sign by Monday

Lake County Buffalo Grove residents wishing to vote in the April 3 Vernon Township election must register by Monday. Voter registration will be closed at that time and not reopened until April 5.

Voters in Lake County who want to vote in the April 17 Buffalo Grove village election can register up until the day of the election.

'Operation Identification' under way in village

Operation Identification, a program to discourage theft and recover stolen property, began in Wheeling yesterday.

Three special electric engraving pens are now available at the Wheeling Public Library for citizens to mark their valuables. The pens, purchased by the village, can be checked out by residents for five days with their library cards.

Ken Swanson, Wheeling's head librarian, said that while none of the pens has been checked out, there was a "reserve" on one pen. "One has been reserved for about two weeks when they found out it was going to happen," he said.

The pens can be used to engrave an identification number on almost any hard surface. Roger Stricker, director of public safety, suggested that residents use their driver's license number because it can be easily traced by an police department.

Stricker explained that this type of identification program discourages theft for three reasons. He said "fences," the people who buy and sell stolen goods, do not like to deal with merchandise that is readily identifiable.

SECONDLY, Stricker said thieves do not like to run the risk of being caught with property that police can prove belongs to someone else. Lastly, the outgoing director said while the engraved numbers can be filed off "the fact that they're there makes life harder for the burglar."

When a resident checks out one of the engraving pens, he will also be given a special form for listing those valuable which he has engraved. This list will be kept at the library as a ready reference sheet in case of a theft.

When the engraving pens are returned to the library, residents will be given two special Operation Identification stickers. Stricker said these stickers, when placed near the front and rear doors of a home, will warn burglars that the valuables in the home are engraved.

Stricker said the village has been working on the program for the past seven months. He said the idea was originally proposed as a federal grant program that would provide $1,000 to service a minimum of 50,000 persons.

After investigating the possibility of joining with other communities to meet the population requirements of the grant, Stricker said he found most neighboring communities had already applied for the program.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS then decided to develop their own program, which has been estimated to cost only a few hundred dollars.

The idea for Operation Identification began in Monterey Park, Calif., in 1963 when homeowners responded to police circulars and began the engraving procedures. Since 1963 only 20 burglaries have occurred in more than 5,000 participating homes.

By contrast, more than 2,000 burglaries have been committed in 6,000 nonparticipating homes in the same period, according to a study.

Swanson said the library is organized to handle the program and staff members have been trained in use of the pen. He said persons who do not have a library card will also be able to check out the engraving pens.

The nation

The state department said the U.S. ambassador to the Sudan, Cleo Noel, was among the foreign diplomats seized by the group of terrorists who captured the Saudi Arabian embassy. They are demanding the release of Sirhan B. Sirhan.

President Nixon has abandoned, at least temporarily, his search for major reform of the nation's welfare system because he said "the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage."

Leaders of a four-week St. Louis public school strike continued to feel its effects as Circuit Judge Thomas McGuire ordered one leader jailed for 60 days, and fined the teacher organization $140,000.

A criminal court judge ruled the film "Deep Throat" obscene, and banned its further showing in Manhattan.

Illinois judges would be appointed under a "merit system" instead of political elections under a plan introduced in the Illinois General Assembly.

The world

A new dollar crisis hit Europe yesterday, sending the price of American currency down, and the price of gold up. West Germany's central bank bought more than $2 billion in a battle with speculators.

The security chiefs of Poland and Czechoslovakia were killed in the crash of a Polish military aircraft near the East German border. Police officials said.

Authorities have identified a skeleton dug out of World War II rubble as that of Martin Bormann.

The war

Vietnam peace supervisors reported four specially marked helicopters used by truce teams have been hit by gunfire in the past five days. Communist officials said 136 American prisoners of war, and six foreign captives would be set free Sunday in Hanoi. # Breath of fresh air for Chicago?

Chicago's air may be the cleanest of any major metropolitan city in the United States if the city's auto emission control program is successful, according to a study released yesterday.

The program, which goes into effect June 1, is the first of its kind to be implemented in the nation and requires each of the city's more than 1 million autos to be tested each year.

Suburban motorists are not directly affected by the testing program, but would be subject to its regulations as they would be if they were caught speeding in the city.

"Our test results indicate the emission control systems already introduced by the manufacturer are doing a splendid job of reducing emissions," said Richard Teasel, vice president of research and engineering for Champion Spark Plug Co., which conducted the test.

"But regardless of how well these systems are designed, or how much legislation is enacted, unless the owner recognizes his responsibility to keep his car maintained, we may not solve pollution problems completely."

CHAMPION tested 205 vehicles in Chicago last year as part of a nationwide vehicle emissions probe. Emissions recorded were weighed against Chicago inspection standards which go into effect June 1.

The company's tests showed that 38 per cent of the total number of cars riding the streets of Chicago June 1, 1973 will probably fail the test standards of the Chicago Environmental Control Agency.

According to Teasel, "periodic maintenance not only provides a better environment, but also better performance at a lower cost to the motorist. Chicago now has two factors going for it in cleaning up auto emissions.

"It has increasingly effective antipollution devices on its cars, provided by car manufacturers, and it soon will have an emissions inspection program to ensure those devices are maintained."

HE SAID while Chicago and Chicago suburban cars tested out almost identically to those in the rest of the country, local vehicles may soon be the cleanest in any major city in the nation.

The program would require motorists in Chicago to have their car inspected at designated testing stations 30 days after receiving notice from the city. If a driver's car fails the test, he must make corrections.

According to a spokesman from the Chicago Environmental Protection Agency, suburban drivers should also comply with these regulations, even though they are not required to be tested. Drivers will face fines or other penalties if they do not meet Chicago standards.

U.S. winding up its case against Barrett today

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The government will finish its case against Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett this morning, Assistant U.S. Atty Dan Webb said yesterday.

Barrett's defense against the charges of mail fraud, bribery and income tax evasion then will begin.

An Internal Revenue Service agent testified yesterday afternoon that Barrett owed $76,657.67 in additional taxes on the $180,000 in bribes he allegedly accepted.

IRS Agent Sheldon Cohen reviewed Barrett's income tax form in his testimony, adding the bribe money and re-computing the tax.

Cohen admitted under cross examination he figures the additional taxes based on government witnesses who had said they gave Barrett bribes.

The Cook County purchasing agent and the chief deputy clerk also testified.

THE DEPUTY CLERK, George Smith of Joliet, said he is Barrett's brother-in-law.

Smith said former deputy comptroller, C. R. Hodgman, rather than Barrett, had placed insurance for voting machines with the A. J. Gallagher and Co.

Yet he said Barrett by law is county comptroller and has responsibilities for insuring the voting machines.

Barrett is charged with accepting kickbacks in connection with placing the voting machine insurance through A. J. Gallagher and Co.

SMITH TESTIFIED county voting machines are now insured by the private companies that provide storage for the machines.

Smith said he has been with the county clerk's office for 17 years. He said Barrett has authority to negotiate for voting machines for the county.

He said state statutes require the county to have one machine for a precinct of up to 400 registered voters and two machines for a precinct with more than 400 registered voters.

Edward J. Mulville, Cook County purchasing agent, testified he has never negotiated for or purchased voting machines for Cook County.

He said a Cook County state's attorney issued an opinion in 1964 saying voting machines were exempt from competitive bidding.

Mulville said Barrett as county clerk has the authority to negotiate, purchase and insure the voting machines. He said the county purchasing agent only does purchasing for six departments under the jurisdiction of Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne.

YESTERDAY MORNING the jury heard testimony from Anthony H. Lemisch, who allegedly delivered a $15,000 bribe to Barrett in August, 1968.

Lemisch is the brother-in-law of Irving H. Meyers, the former president of the Shoup Voting Machine Co. of Bala Cynwyd, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia.

Lemisch told of delivering a folded and taped brown manila envelope to Barrett at Meyers' request. He said he flew to Chicago, delivered the envelope to Barrett at Barrett's Cook County office, and then flew back to Philadelphia.

He said he knew Barrett was the Cook County clerk, but he said he never opened the envelope he carried.

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION, Lemisch said he did not discuss the contents of the sealed envelope with either Barrett or Meyers.

Meyers had said in his testimony earlier this week that the alleged bribe Lemisch delivered related to voting machines that Cook County rented from Shoup.

Lemisch said he was regional sales manager for Shoup when he delivered the alleged bribe to Barrett.

He, like Meyers, had served a four-month prison term after pleading guilty to mail fraud, conspiracy and filing false income-tax returns.

Lemisch said he did not know whether the government has accepted his testimony and removed his income tax liability for the bribe money he says he gave public officials.

He admitted he was concerned about the government's decision.

LEMISCH ALSO told about his role as a "delivery boy" in an exchange with a Los Angeles attorney. He said he carried an envelope, allegedly filled with cash for Meyers, from Los Angeles to Philadelphia.

Our Joann wins Scher award for investigative series

Herald reporter Joann Van Wye is the 1973 recipient of the prestigious Jacob Scher Award for Investigative Reporting, a citation of the Chicago Chapter of Women in Communications, the professional society for women in journalism and communications.

The award will be presented to Joann Van Wye for her investigative series on the Rolling Meadows Park District, which revealed widespread waste and mismanagement of funds in the district. The Jacob Scher awards dinner will be held March 15 at the Pioneer Court Restaurant, Chicago. Co-sponsoring the awards dinner is the Chicago Headline Club, the local chapter of the Journalism society, Sigma Delta Chi.

Reporter Van Wye's series was the result of investigation that disclosed park district officials were not bidding on certain items as proscribed by law, were not adhering to the mandates of a referendum on park improvements and were holding secret meetings to discuss park business.

Winners in other categories of the Jacob Scher competition are Chicago Today reporters Gregg Ramshaw and Jack McQueeney for their investigation into the Cook County Public Defender's Office, television newsman Larry Buchman of WLS-TV for a series on halfway houses for mental patients, and radio reporter John Cody of WBBM for a series on building irregularities in Hanover Park.

This is the second consecutive year the Jacob Scher Award has been won by a Herald reporter.

Young people have enthusiasm, new ideas

Intern program for parks proves to be successful

by LYNN ASINOF

Bill Maher is the first student to earn college credit while working for the Wheeling Park District. But if Park Supt. Dave Phillips has his way, Maher won't be the last.

"It really shouldn't be looked at as a source of free labor," Phillips said of the intern program. "Even though that's what it is."

For while the intern is learning the "ins and outs" of park district management, he is also undertaking special projects that the normal park staff has not had time to do. In Maher's case, the special project was a study of operating costs for the indoor Neptune's Pool.

But Phillips said the extra manpower is not the only advantage in having college interns in the park district. "The advantage is in their enthusiasm, in their new ideas," he said.

Phillips first experiment in using a college student for park district management came when Rich Haddock was hired last September as a recreation director on a part-time basis.

The experiment obviously worked since Haddock has been given an increasing amount of responsibility in running various park district programs. Haddock, 24, is a student at Triton College in River Grove.

MAHER, 22 was the next experiment, and of a substantially different kind. While Haddock is paid for his work on an hourly basis, Maher receives only college credit for his efforts. Moreover, while Haddock is not working for a limited time period, the intern from the University of Iowa will spend only 15 weeks with the park district.

During his stay with the Wheeling Park District, Maher will study all aspects of the district's operations. He attends park board meetings, conducts some programs, reviews administrative functions and fills in where extra manpower is needed.

Maher reports back to the university every few weeks, but Phillips grades his reports. "He grades about 60 per cent of what I do here," Maher said.

Phillips said that while the intern and the part-timer have varying duties and responsibilities, their input into the district has several similarities.

According to Phillips, both are trying to find how a park district operates. He said both are used to looking at recreation as a field of study instead of a day-to-day operation.

"They ask a lot of questions that I haven't asked in a long time," he said. Phillips added that he thought this questioning was good for him because he has gotten out of the habit of looking at recreation from a long-range view.

"I think it really helped me because it brings me back to the philosophy of why we're doing the things we're doing," he said.

PHILLIPS SAID, however, training the college students often takes up a lot of his time. He said the first week or so is needed for orientation. After that he said the students' efficiency improves considerably.

"But 15 weeks of their time is worth my time to spend with them," he said.

Both Maher and Haddock agreed that Phillips is a good person to work for and to learn from. "That's one of Dave's best qualities, if you ask me," said Haddock. "You work with him, not for him."

Maher concurred, saying "It's a very informal atmosphere around here. I enjoy the people in the park district."

PHILLIPS SAID he first got the idea of having interns in the Wheeling Park District from his own college experience. "It's basically because of my contacts back at the University of Iowa and realizing that it is a potential resource to us," he said.

The park superintendent said he is now hoping to have a landscaping intern from Kishwaukee College in Malta do his field work with the park district. If all goes well, the landscaping intern will work from April through August with the development and care of park district grounds.

Phillips said he has been in contact with several other universities and colleges about getting other interns for the park district. "We're looking forward to being able to give other students the opportunity to do their field work here," he said.

He explained, however, that many college students like to do their field work at larger and more prestigious park districts.

"Naturally, most of the students would rather go to a bigger district," Phillips said. "But what we lack in staff and facilities we make up for in our attitudes."

Schools to study what to do with study

The High School Dist. 214 Board will meet Monday to decide what to do with a study of administrative salaries in the district that has cost more than $15,000.

The study, conducted by A. T. Kearney, Inc., a consulting firm, recommends that the board establish a salary plan next year for the district's 101 administrators that would provide a minimum salary of $18,500 and a maximum salary of $43,500 for the superintendent.

In addition, the study recommends that the board consider raising the amount of life insurance and the mileage allowance granted administrators and suggests adopting a system of "management by objectives" to be used in evaluating administrators.

FOLLOWING A discussion of the study at this week's board meeting, members agreed to meet as a committee of the whole Monday to discuss what to do with the recommendations. The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Supt. Edward Gilbert said one thing they may want to discuss is whether to contract with Kearney to develop a "management by objectives" program.

When the board originally hired Kearney it agreed to pay $15,500 for the first part of the study and said it would decide later whether to pay an additional $3,000 to have Kearney develop a management by objectives program.

So far, Gilbert said, the district has paid $15,036 to Kearney with further billings still to come. According to a representative from Kearney, the $15,500 price was an estimate and the total cost for the first part of the study will probably not exceed $16,000.

BOARD MEMBER Jack Costello said

he was pleased with the general salary structure suggested by Kearney, in which jobs would be placed in categories with salary ranges representing levels of experience and competence. The structure, Costello said, "does permit wide latitude for experience and ability. It means we're not headed for equal pay for equal title."

However, Costello said he is concerned about several aspects of the report, including the recommendation for the specific salary ranges.

"I think the minimums set here are much too high," he said.

Board member Jack Matthews said the board should now discuss with district administrators which direction to go with the salary program.

"When we started this study," he said, "what we wanted out of it was some ideas — and we got some ideas."

'Gallery girl' bares naked truth

"What is a nice girl like you doing posing nude in a magazine like that?" That might be the question put to Kris Thornstad by the average person.

But for Kris, an attractive 21-year-old who has lived in this area most of her life, the reason she posed for eight pages of photographs, including the centerfold, in the March issue of Gallery magazine is simple and unspectacular.

"I see it as just an extension on my modeling career," she said succinctly. The Mount Prospect native who now lives in Hoffman Estates and works in Elk Grove Village said the Gallery gatefold experience did not mark any great milestone in her life.

"It all started as sort of a joke. It took three days to shoot the pictures, and I did not get any kind of kinky thrill from the whole thing," Kris explained.

THAT REMARK might come as a disappointment for the average reader of those magazines — which offer those great literary articles and, oh yes, a few pictures — but Kris emphasized there was "no playing around during the picture session" and "the pictures were not taken during some orgy."

Kris said she eventually hopes to make modeling her full-time career, but right now finds bartending a good way to make a living. A graduate of Northern Illinois University, Kris said she went to college so she could have a degree.

She does not look at being the Gallery Girl as opening any new doors or offering new job opportunities.

"I have done a few things, but by next month there will be a new issue of the magazine, a new centerfold and everyone will say 'Kris Thornstad — who was she,'" Kris said.

KRIS DOES NOT share the Women's

Lib appraisal of magazines such as Gallery being debasing to females or a bedrock plank of the male chauvinism ethic.

"It is a matter of personal taste and choice," she said, adding, "I am as liberated as I want to be. There are very few things around that I cannot do if I really feel like it."

She added, however, Gallery does not try to promote a lifestyle and image, as done by Playboy and other magazines in the field.

"Gallery just presents a magazine with articles and the pictures; they do not try to tell you what type of life to lead or what the typical reader's woman should look and act like," Kris said.

GENERALLY, reaction to Kris' pictures has been favorable, she added.

"My father thought it was great, but my boyfriend was a little embarrassed," she said. Most of the customers at her place of work who recognize her from the magazine have been complimentary, Kris said.

"But it is the two per cent who are creeps that can make things difficult," she added.

She has no great plans for the future, and the Gallery experience will probably not be anything more than a memory in a few weeks, she believes.

"I don't see myself as any type of freak. I don't think it takes any particular type of person to pose nude in a magazine," she said.

"It was just another job."

Love that sax.

Reaching for Maynard's famous high note.

Jazzing it up in style

Area jazz fans were offered a rare treat Monday night when Maynard Ferguson, his trumpet and his orchestra thrilled a jammed gymnasium at Rolling Meadows High School.

Ferguson, known for his wild, brassy style and his patented high notes, is considered by jazz buffs to have one of the most exciting young orchestras in the business.

The music was not the only excitement on stage. The band members looked more like bees than musicians in their yellow-and-black-striped shirts, which clashed dramatically with their leader's burgundy flare pants and his hot-pink satin jacket.

While most of the band members were in their 20s, the audience was noticeably younger. The floor in front of the bandstand was crowded with teen-agers and children, which led some observers to comment that jazz is far from being a dying art form.

Notarization hearing slated

A proposal to eliminate the requirement for notarization of applications for auto license plates, titles and driver's licenses will be the subject of a hearing in Springfield at 9 a.m. Thursday in Springfield.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glenview, will be heard by the Motor Vehicle Committee of the Illinois House of Representatives.

Katz said it would eliminate the need for fees to notary publics on more than 12 million applications filed annually with Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett.

"It makes little sense," said Katz, "that an Illinois citizen can file his income tax return, state or federal, on his signature alone, but to renew his driver's license, he must find a notary before his application can be accepted by the secretary of state."

Katz said similar legislation has been successfully opposed by currency exchanges in the past. He also noted that the normal fee of 50 cents per notarization represents millions of dollars paid by citizens each year "with no public purpose thereby served."

In the long history of notarization requirements, with nearly a billion notarizations, Katz said no one has ever been convicted in Illinois for a false statement before a notary.

Unincorporated areas to have flood insurance

Unincorporated Cook County will qualify for federally subsidized flood insurance as of March 9, announced George Bernstein, federal insurance administrator.

The announcement came through James Reichardt, Illinois flood insurance coordinator, who also noted Friday the level of sales of flood insurance policies in The Herald circulation area.

Eligibility for residents of unincorporated areas leaves only residents of the City of Rolling Meadows unable to purchase the insurance at subsidized rates, with the subsidies amounting to 90 per cent of the premium costs. Rolling Meadows has approved a flood control ordinance, and now is applying for acceptance in the program.

As of Feb. 1, the greatest number of policies had been sold in Arlington Heights, a total of 134. In Palatine, 49 persons purchased policies.

Other sales statistics are Mount Prospect, 25; Wheeling, 6; Des Plaines, 17; Schaumburg, 9; Elk Grove Village, 7; Hoffman Estates, none.

Palatine and Arlington Heights already have been under the flood insurance program more than a year. Expiration dates for the first year for other communities are Hoffman Estates, Nov. 10, 1973; Schaumburg and Des Plaines, Oct. 13, 1973; Mount Prospect, Oct. 27, 1973; Elk Grove Village, Nov. 3, 1973; and Wheeling, Dec. 15, 1973.

No-fault bills introduced

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Divorces and auto accidents would be made a little easier to reckon with under bills awaiting action in the Illinois General Assembly.

Plans to create "no-fault divorce" and "no-fault auto insurance" were among measures introduced Wednesday in the legislature. Also tossed into the hopper were bills designed to preserve the Lake Michigan shoreline and some 300 miles of "scene rivers" in Illinois.

State Rep. Bernard B. Wolf, D-Chicago, sponsored a bill that would allow divorces in cases of "irretrievable breakdown" of a marriage with no designation of fault.

The bill would also provide for counseling and reconciliation services for married couples considering divorce and would set support and maintenance guidelines for spouse and children.

STATE SEN. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, introduced a bill that would require all auto owners to carry first party insurance to cover injuries, property damage and wage loss due to auto accidents.

Under the bill, compensation for injuries and property damage would come from each individual's own insurance policy regardless of who causes the accident. Glass said the bill would cut down on law suits over small claims and would provide faster compensation for accident victims.

State Rep. Robert E. Mann, D-Chicago, sponsored a "Lake Michigan Bill of Rights" plan that would restrict construction along the state's Lake Michigan shoreline.

Under the bill, lakefront land within a quarter mile of the shore would come under the jurisdiction of a seven-member commission appointed by the governor, the mayor of Chicago and the boards of Cook and Lake counties.

A similar bill, opposed by Mayor Richard Daley, was defeated last session. It called for a half mile restriction along the lakefront. Both versions of the bill would prevent construction of an airport on the lake proposed by Mayor Daley.

Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, sponsored a "scenic rivers" bill which would restrict construction, agriculture, timber cutting and mining along 12 rivers deemed scenic waterways.

Spring questionnaire

Muir School parent survey planned

Parents of students attending John Muir School in Prospect Heights will soon have a chance to air their opinions on the school's curriculum. They will also be able to comment on the prospect that the school may soon become overcrowded.

The Dist. 23 administration plans to send out a questionnaire to parents in the spring, according to Supt. Edward Grodsky. He said he is currently working with Muir Principal Jim Finke to design the survey, which will also include questions about the open school concept at Muir.

Under the open plan there are no structured classrooms or grades. The concept has been at least partially in practice at Muir for 2½ years.

"The idea for the survey originated some time ago when we knew the school may become overcrowded," Grodsky said.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS anticipated Muir would become overcrowded when, in 1971, Dist. 23 voters turned down a referendum for a state-built school that would have been located in Arlington Heights. The school would have served students in the Ivy Hill and Northgate subdivisions who are now bused to Muir.

Currently, Muir has 285 students, with a maximum capacity of 310. "We'll be overcrowded by the end of the year," Finke said yesterday.

"We also decided to include our curriculum questions in the survey to help us take a good look at the educational program at Muir in a positive way," Grodsky said. "This is no way is a move to drop what we now have, but to improve it."

Grodsky said that a meeting called last month by parents who had some complaints about Muir's curriculum did not prompt the survey. The meeting did prompt the administration to send it out sooner than planned, Grodsky said. "We were going to send them out this summer."

BRUCE WALLACE, spokesman for the committee that called the meeting, said the committee has met with Grodsky and outlined some of its concerns. The committee thinks the current plan provides insufficient time for individualized instruction and a noise level detrimental to the students' progress.

"We will probably wait for the results of the survey before taking any further action. We decided to give Mr. Grodsky and the administration a chance," Wallace said. "Besides, there have been a number of changes at Muir since the meeting."

Finke said, however, that there have been no changes at Muir since the meeting. "Nothing has changed whatsoever. I just sent a personal letter to those who voiced complaints and met with some of the parents. Most of the concerns were individual kinds of problems with individual children," he said.

11-story building set near Woodfield mall

Plans for an 11-story office building as the first phase of Woodfield Place development of IDC Realty Company were to be announced this morning by Robert Wislow, local executive for the El Paso, Tex., firm.

The office building will be at the intersection of Woodfield and Mall drives, and will have underground storm water retention, according to unofficial but well-placed sources.

Future development on the 28-acre parcel that stretches from Woodfield Drive to Higgins Road will include a large hotel, not expected to be as tall as the office structure but not yet tied down to a specific size. While no firm has been signed to operate the hotel, sources believe, negotiations are being held both with hotel chains and nonchain operators.

Retail property also is included in the development plan, and some sources speculate Neiman-Marcus Co., exclusive Texas retailer, still may be in the Woodfield Place picture. While Neiman-Marcus has petitioned for a zoning change for a facility in Northbrook, residents there are opposing the project, and IDC is known to have been negotiating with Neiman-Marcus. It is the "kind of a store IDC would love to have," one source noted.

A health club and tennis center also will be in the IDC plans, with other entertainment facilities.

NORTHBROOK officials said yesterday the future of the proposed center there still is undetermined. The roughly 140-acre development there is to be anchored by a Sears Roebuck and Co. store, if the zoning change is approved. The village's plan commission has held its first public hearing on the request, which was the scene of local opposition, and further commission discussions are scheduled for March 6. At that point, the commission is expected to make a recommendation to the village board, said staff assistant James Mathews.

Mathews said the commission may recommend plan approval as is, may deny plan approval or may approve the plan with stipulated changes. The earliest date the village board could receive and consider the commission's decision is March 19, he said. The Northbrook site is at the intersection of Lake Cook and Lee roads.

Neiman-Marcus is a subsidiary of Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., of Dallas, and is headed by members of the Marcus family. In current references it is listed as grossing $80 million in sales in its four Texas retail stores, a Florida store and boutiques in Houston and Dallas. It was merged with Broadway-Hale in August 1970.

Arlington Park Theatre adds dash of culture

by BETTY LEE

The Arlington Park Theatre has been called a miniature John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, providing a dash of culture to the rapid sprawl of housing developments and shopping centers in the Northwest suburbs.

But many local residents who drive by have never been inside to see the looming columns, plush red carpeting, the lighted fountains or Burt Reynolds, Rudy Vallee and other stars who ply their trade on stage.

The theater was constructed at this site at Euclid Avenue and Rohlfing Road "because of the tremendous potential for growth here," said Karen Alton, publicist. "Arlington Heights is a good community because a lot of people know where it's located. People are moving and expanding. A quality theater can no longer be restricted to the Loop or the inner city."

THE ARLINGTON Park Theatre was built less than two years ago. Architect Milton Zie of Chicago was commissioned to design it, and David Lonn, managing director, worked closely with him to create the kind of theater Lonn wanted. A quick visual tour shows a theater-in-the-round, or arena, as they like to call it. It has a capacity of 721 persons with the farthest seat 23 feet from the stage.

"Lonn didn't want just a section of a restaurant or the basement of some hotel for a quality theater," said Miss Alton. "He wanted a free-standing theater with the grace and magnitude of professionalism."

Two years prior to groundbreaking of the Arlington Park theater, there was a lot of hard work and a lot of anguish, but there was also a strong feeling of confidence for a full-quality theater to grow in the Northwest suburban communities.

"We try to get away from the concept of the suburban theater for they often have a connotation of less quality," said Miss Alton.

Lonn is constantly reading plays, looking for quality plays of no particular type. He usually visualizes a certain star for certain parts and tries to get him.

"We don't categorize the types of shows they are, just so they are done with great talent, and that the play itself is of great talent," said Miss Alton.

LONN'S VISUALIZATION is so strong that we don't have a pool of artists to choose from. For example, he wanted James Farentino to play "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." He couldn't come for a long time, so we postponed it until he was able to play the part. That was over a year and a half ago.

Top stars have been professionals like Joan Fontaine, Richard Chamberlain, Lois Nettleton and others who are in television, Broadway or movies.

Shows usually run for six to eight weeks because stars are often committed to other projects concurrently.

"Engagements are often sold out and we can't make extensions," said Miss Alton. "A lot of people don't understand this, and we may be making some enemies."

And why do these top stars come to Arlington Heights when there are good Loop theaters?

"Actors are happy to work for a theater like this and for David Lonn because he's an idealist," said Miss Alton. "Word spreads fast in this business. Craftsmen want to work in unrestricted ways. Their ideas are always taken into consideration."

When Lonn was planning "Death of a Salesman," he first sought out permission from its playwright, Arthur Miller, who was living in Connecticut. The play had not been allowed in professional hands for about nine years. When Lonn told Miller of his plans, Miller was so enthused that he offered to come to Arlington Heights as an adviser for the play.

UNLIKE A LOT of theaters, Arlington Park has no strict budgets. Rather, some of the expense has been passed on to the public when they purchase tickets. The price range of the tickets, the lowest from $5 to $8, the highest $12, fluctuates, depending on the type of production, the number of artists and set expenses.

"People are charged on what we are giving them," said Miss Alton. "They don't seem to mind. There were times when people appear near the box office and try to buy tickets off other people for handsome prices."

Word of mouth from the audiences to their friends has been one of the theater's effective form of conveying the theater's professionalism, as well as actors among themselves.

Deadline for filing statements unclear

All candidates must tell income

Despite confusion about the deadline for filing income disclosure statements by candidates for local offices, it remains clear that all candidates for elected office are covered by the requirement.

According to the Cook County Clerk's office, dozens of candidates in township, municipal and park, library and school district elections remain unaware of the income disclosure requirement.

The law, passed last year by the Illinois General Assembly, specified that public officials file disclosure statements by April 3 of each year. However, it said that candidates must file "at the time he takes the action necessary to attempt to qualify for nomination..."

Varying interpretations of that clause have led to confusion. However, a spokesman for the county clerk's office said he is advising all candidates who have not yet filed the statements to do so immediately.

He also noted that there is emergency legislation now before the State Senate, which will resolve the question and will provide a grace period for candidates who have not met the deadline because they were unaware of it.

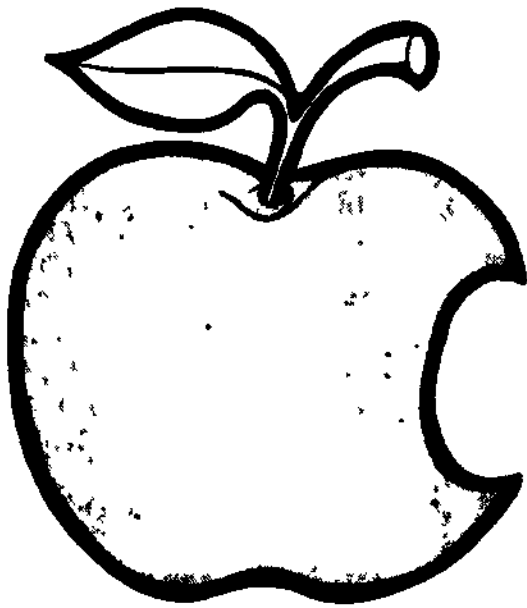

FORMS LISTING the information which must be disclosed are available at the clerk's office. Candidates may phone requests for them to 443-8720 and the forms will be mailed the same day, the clerk's office said.

Basically, the income disclosure law requires identification of sources of income above certain limits, but does not require disclosure of the amount of that income.

Sources that must be identified include professional organizations or practices from which the candidate earned more than $1,200, any assets yielding a capital gain of $5,000 or more, stocks or bonds or interests in land trusts worth more than $5,000 or which pay yearly dividends in excess of $1,200, and other sources.

It has been emphasized that all candidates, as well as all elected and appointed public officials at all levels of government must file statements even if they have no sources of income which are required to be disclosed.

Legal abortion

Judge signs order aligning state with U.S. Supreme Court decision

by United Press International
A federal court judge yesterday took the final step necessary to legalize abortion in Illinois, signing an order that put state law into compliance with the U. S. Supreme Court's decision.

Chief U. S. District Court Judge Edwin Robson acted on the request of attorneys for the American Civil Liberties Union and over protests from representatives of the Right to Life Committee.

Attorney Dennis Horan, of the Right to Life group, contended Robson should hold a full hearing so that anti-abortion forces could argue on behalf of the unborn child.

"THIS IS A proper order and your objections may be noted, but they are denied," Robson said.

Horan said his group will appeal the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court. But it was considered unlikely the court would consider the appeal since it has turned down similar requests from other organizations.

ACLU attorney Sybille Fritzsche left the court room smiling. "This means,"

she said, "that abortion is legal, as of this moment."

A check of hospitals in the Chicago area and Rockford and Peoria showed most are considering allowing doctors to perform abortions. But few have made an immediate decision.

IN THE CHICAGO AREA, Cook County Hospital said it hasn't made a decision. But the University of Chicago Hospital said doctors could begin performing abortions after Monday, and Evanston Hospital said it is setting up an abortion program.

In Rockford, neither Memorial or Swedish American Hospital made an immediate decision. St. Anthony's, a Catholic institution, said no abortions would be performed there.

In Peoria Proctor Community and Methodist Hospitals had made no decisions.

The Planned Parenthood Association in Chicago said it has been receiving thousands of calls from pregnant women asking for referrals to abortion centers. The association said it will now begin investigating hospitals and the few clinics ready to open, and will start referrals probably next week.

OFFICIALS AT Illinois' Blue Cross-Blue Shield said the company will pay for abortions, just as it does for other medical and surgical procedures. But the Illinois Public Aid Department said no decision has yet been made on whether it will pay for abortions for welfare mothers.

Costs of abortions were expected to vary, but Planned Parenthood officials said they expected the range to be between $125 and $150 for abortions in the first three months of pregnancy, with costs higher after that.

The Supreme Court's January decision said a woman may have an abortion in the first three months of pregnancy with the consent of her doctor. In the second three month period, she may still have an abortion, but the state may place some restrictions on it.

Lesser chariot for MSD's Egan

The all-encompassing power of public office, it seems, affects different persons in different ways.

Take John E. Egan, president of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, for example, as an example of how one man can acquire the symbols of official power.

Egan, it seems, will shortly be trading in his 1971 Cadillac Sedan DeVille, for it has served him faithfully for around 20,000 miles (or two years, whichever you prefer).

Indeed, the MSD board, with only Joanne Alter dissenting, agreed last week to accept bids on a 1973 Lincoln Continental for their president.

When Egan's new Lincoln Continental arrives — it'll cost taxexisted 100 years ago, we'd imagine Egan would ride through the streets of Chicago in a splendid carriage — an event probably inspiring awe and reverence among the peasants.

But in 1973, awe is not fashionable. The trappings of power too often remind many persons of the theft-by-power club in Illinois.

Two public officials have had the right idea when confronted by the availability of trappings. George Dunne, Cook County board president, is one. Dunne's shunned the kind of chauffeured service which Egan enjoys. Instead, Dunne usually drives by himself to wherever he's going. It is even rumored the top executive officer in Cook County often walks to work from his Near North Side apartment. Horrors!

And Governor Daniel Walker recently announced he'd drive one of those grey official cars on most occasions — and that he'd take his name off state signs.

Both men do not seem afflicted with extreme cases of the pomposity of power which, in most cases, is unnecessary and wasteful.

Trim out some of the unnecessary pomposity, and public officials save all of us a small but significant amount of money. The issue, however, is more directly the fact that public servants should not be placed on a plateau too far above the concerns, needs and problems of the average man.

Give public officials what they need to get around town in the official line of duty, and nothing more, and give them a reasonable salary. But don't build a throne for public officials such as John Egan.

Hijacking setback

With an almost total absence of fanfare, the United States and Cuba have signed an agreement that will do more to end the menace of hijacking than any amount of security precautions at airports.

The agreement provides that hijackers shall either be extradited or be brought before the courts of the territory to which they flee, and if convicted, shall "receive the most severe penalty according to the circumstances and the seriousness of the acts."

The agreement covers both aerial hijackers and those operating by sea. Because most of the refugee traffic to the United States has been by small boats, the document carefully distinguishes between criminal hijackers and those with a valid claim to asylum.

As explained by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, a nation receiving a refugee "may take into consideration any extenuating or mitigating circumstances in which the persons responsible for the acts were being sought for strictly political reasons and were in real and imminent danger of death without a viable alternative for leaving the country."

In no case, however, will asylum be granted if the refugee extorted money or harmed or threatened to harm a crew or passengers.

"It doesn't affect the right of asylum," says Rogers. "What it does mean is that you cannot commit major crimes on the way to the asylum."

And while the accord "does not foreshadow a change of policies as far as the United States is concerned toward Cuba," it stands as another notable achievement by the Nixon administration in lowering international tensions and removing sources of friction in our relations with other countries.

Algeria, another favorite hijacker haven, has now expressed interest in reaching a similar agreement with the United States.

County line

MSD and its corn growth saga

by ROGER CAPELLINI
Metropolitan Editor

Taxpayers in Cook County are giving the Metropolitan Sanitary District huge sums of money to grow corn and, at the very same time, they're paying the district not to grow corn.

If that's not bad enough, many county residents probably never heard of the place the corn is being grown (and not grown) even though they're paying property taxes on the land.

The district got itself into the corn growing business a few years ago to solve a couple of problems. Actually, it was a darn good idea. But, then, not growing corn would have to be considered a not-so-darn-good idea.

The idea of growing corn — and other crops, for that matter — stemmed from the problem the district had of what to do with the "sludge" that results from its treatment of the stuff that flows into its water reclamation plants.

Someone, apparently, figured it might make good fertilizer, so they looked for a place to dump it where good fertilizer was needed. The best place for that, it turned out, was Fulton County — a place that had been ravaged by strip coal mining techniques.

If the district could get the sludge down to Fulton County it would have a place to dump the stuff and the badly depleted soil there could be reclaimed.

First, however, they had to buy up some land to dump the sludge on so they could grow some crops and see what happened.

Not the type to go in for things in a small way, the MSD of Greater Chicago has purchased more than 10,000 acres so far and has plans to buy some more.

For the land alone, to date, the district has spent about $3,700,000.

To get the sludge down there, the MSD also has dropped some loose change running barges down the Illinois River. But that's just temporary. The plan now is to build a pipeline to shoot the sludge down there.

And that figures to cost a few of the taxpayers' bucks.

But anyway, the plan worked. The corn grew higher than corn grown on untreated land. And the gourd got as big as year-old hogs.

The MSD had proved what they set out to — sludge is a great liquid fertilizer.

Now the district is past the "experimental stage" according to one spokesman, and into the "production stage."

But while the district has gone into the production stage, it apparently has also gone into the non-production stage.

Last year, according to the MSD, the district paid farmers to grow corn on about 750 acres of land. It made about $50,000 when it sold the corn.

But then there were 180 acres or so on which the district did not grow corn. And for not growing corn on that land, the district got about $18,000 from the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

And that money, ultimately, came from taxpayers across the country in the form of federal income tax.

So Cook County taxpayers, with one hand are paying taxes to the MSD to grow corn while, with the other hand, paying taxes to Washington to give the MSD not to grow corn.

The MSD board voted last week to continue the process for another year.

The federal government, of course, is not concerned with who produces the corn. They are interested in keeping corn production down to keep prices up, and it doesn't make much difference who is doing the producing.

But it's bewildering, to say the least, to try to understand how not growing corn fits in with the original objectives of the MSD.

The fact of the matter is that the land which is in the "soil bank" program is not now, nor never was treated with sludge. So it's not serving the purpose of being a disposal ground.

And if the district is not growing crops on that land, obviously it's not being used for experimentation.

Furthermore, the county ASCS officer in Fulton County said the land set aside was not subjected to strip mining and, in fact, is considered prime farm land. So there's no reclamation needed.

If the district is not putting sludge on that land and if it's not growing corn on it, why not just sell it and stop paying taxes on it?

And, if the district is "beyond the experimental stage" in Fulton County, it's a little tough to understand what it's doing with 10,000 acres of land today, to say nothing of plans to buy still more.

Wouldn't it all be much simpler to sell off that land and then give all the farmers free sludge? That way the district would be rid of its waste and would be helping to reclaim the land — the two original objectives.

Of course, that would rupture the MSD's pipeline to that bottomless pit of "free" revenue known as the federal government.

And worse yet, perhaps, District Pres. John Egan wouldn't have anywhere to go in that brand new Lincoln Continental the taxpayers are going to buy him. And his $11,700-a-year, tax-paid chauffeur wouldn't have anywhere left to drive.

Abortion a 'cop-out'

I am violently opposed to abortion. To me this is plain and simple murder. If these laws are passed to allow abortion, then we will be living with daily and nationwide massacre of innocent children. The premise that an unknown baby is not a true person yet is just a convenient cop-out given by women who enjoy the pleasures but will not accept the results of that pleasure. They make me sick.

I have children and when they were expected my husband and I were in very rough financial trouble and the little ones meant really sacrificing. But for me to just have eliminated them for my own convenience would have been totally selfish an act despicable and detestable to us and to God. Our children are more precious to us than anything else in the world.

I can't really believe that these women who say they are pro-abortion are really what they say. Down deep inside themselves they must know that killing a human being is murder. A human being is a human being from the very moment of conception, like it or not, it is true. It is not a monkey or a plant or a flower or anything else. It began to grow due to

Lauds paramedics

I would like to take this opportunity to thank and compliment the Arlington Heights Fire Department paramedics, Dr. Zydlow and Northwest Community Hospital for the recent emergency services rendered.

S. W. Schultz

the uniting of two human elements so how can it not be considered a human being.

And here is a thought I would like to put to these pro-abortionists.

The child yet unborn is really not the basic problem. He is the innocent victim. The woman involved is the problem. She became pregnant, regardless of the reasons, the fact remains that she participated in the act and now cannot accept the results of her pleasure. Well, I'll venture to say that they would fight against a law that would eliminate them, too.

What if the law read, "If you want an abortion, you must be eliminated along with the child." That way the cause and effect would be done away with.

You know as well as I that none of these pro-abortionists would let this kind of law be passed. It would threaten their lives and be assured, they would fight so a law like this would never be passed.

Please understand, I would not want this kind of law either. It is just a hypothesis to make us think.

Also many people keep inferring that it is mainly the Catholic church who is anti-abortion. To these people I say, "Check around a bit. There are many other churches and religions who are fighting for the rights of these innocent victims." The good Lord must be at the brink of His endurance of man. How people can rationalize murder is beyond me.

Mrs. John F. Smyth

Slaughter 'morality'

I am tired of hypocritical animal lovers who pound lumps on a segment of society which is filling an ecological niche in this life-and-death world of ours. We have destroyed the natural predators of a great number of species and because of this man must serve as a trapper or exterminator.

Furthermore I don't hear the same outcry when tons of dirt and concrete are dumped on the homes of these same wild animals in the name of landfill and progress.

Do Mr. and Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Coffelt think it is morally right to kill an animal by burying it alive but morally wrong to control an animal by trapping?

Fire chief criticized

It has become a rather routine event to watch Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter publicly put his foot in his mouth, however, I think his latest tirade in the Herald last Monday deserves some response. It is well known that Chief Winter is enraged over the fact that he can't include the lucrative tax income from North Strathmore for his fire protection coffers, and he publicly wonders on many occasions why there has not been a mad rush by these residents to jump under his fire protection umbrella. Fine. Everyone is entitled to their little emotional hangups.

In his latest piece of diatribe, however, he has resorted to calling North Strathmore residents "liars" in describing their fire protection service from Long Grove as quite adequate. There is not one shred of evidence that Chief Winter has ever produced or could produce that indicates that Long Grove has ever provided less than needed response on a call. I was personally extremely impressed when they responded in four minutes flat last summer when my house was struck by lightning. That evidence is far superior to me to any fire protection rating bureau's figure which, incidentally, rated Long Grove's protection as adequate. On top of this insulting charge to the residents, he has further resorted to slandering his fellow firefighters in Long Grove (where Chief Winter served his apprenticeship!), which again is not only unsupported or undeserving, but violates every professional ethic I've ever known.

I am certain that Chief Winter has demonstrated on many occasions his competence as a fireman and paramedic, but it is just as clear to me that the moment he steps off that truck, his incompetence is appalling. The village of Buffalo Grove is rightfully moving toward a municipal fire service in the next few years. That decision should be judged and debated on its own merits. I for one, however, would have to seriously question this move if the best candidate they could find to manage it is Chief Winter.

Business Today

by BERNARD BRENNER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Immediate abolition of all government farm programs would produce a dramatic plunge in farm income and drive "many" marginal operators off the land, an Agriculture Department study predicts.

But contrary to a widely-held belief that the small farmer would be hurt worse by a farm income skid, the study prepared for the Senate Agriculture Committee contends big commercial-scale farmers would suffer more than smaller operators.

"Small farms with less than $5,000 in annual sales would be the least affected. This is largely because operators of these small farms derive so large a share of their income from non-farm sources," said the report submitted by Don Paarlberg, the Agriculture Department's director of economics.

FOR CONSUMERS, the report indicated, abolition of farm programs could bring a series of boom-and-bust price cycles.

The report, drafted at the request of Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., of the Senate Agriculture Committee, was a partial answer to Talmadge's query about what would happen if "all price support and acreage adjustment payments were discontinued."

Paarlberg said the study was limited to the impact on feed grains, wheat, cotton and soybeans. He said the implications of abandoning programs for rice, peanuts, tobacco and dairy products would be covered in a later report.

The study is not an analysis of the effect of President Nixon's new farm proposals, which would discontinue income-supplement payments on major crops but would retain surplus controls, crop support loans and land retirement programs.

PAARLBERG'S REPORT did not offer any specific dollar estimates of farm income if all supports were abolished. But, it said:

"In the first year of no program, corn prices (which averaged $1.39 a bushel in mid-January) probably would drop below $1 a bushel, with other feed grains and wheat priced comparably. Soybean prices (over $6 a bushel recently) would be expected to fall below $3.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

There used to be this splendid British custom — back in the days, not too long ago, when only members of the better classes had checking accounts at the banks — of treating an overdraft like a glove someone had carelessly dropped.

The overdraft — better known in the United States as a bum check — would be called to the attention of the bank's customer in a gentle note. None of this bawling the check. The bank went ahead and paid it.

After a bit, when it was convenient, good old Freddy would pop in with enough funds to remedy the matter. "It's a pleasure, sir," his banker would say.

In effect, the bank had made good old Freddy a no-interest loan, to take up the slack when he got careless about watching his balance. Simply something you do for a gentleman, what?

NO NEED FOR you to envy this graceful way of life. You, too, can run an overdraft at your bank — pop in after a bit and cover the loan — and nod gravely as your banker thanks you. As well he should, considering the interest you're paying him.

The approved overdraft is actually one of the two principal methods used by banks for making automatic credit available to customers. If your application

NEW YORK — "Phoo," said the stock broker, glaring at the board. "This is for the birds." He swiveled to the phone, talked earnestly for about three minutes, hung up and smiled. "The wife's been bugging me to take a trip to Italy. I just got tickets — hotel, the works. We're leaving Monday night."

Devaluation? "What's the difference?" he snapped back. "I get trimmed anywhere I turn in Europe anyway. I won't be able to tell what's 10 per cent or 20. Anyway, it's better than being here. Everybody's got butterflies."

Butterflies seems like the kindest thing he could have said. The deflation step hasn't upset Wall Street deeply. It is one Preliminary unaudited figures indicate that net sales rose 16 per cent to $601,611,000 from $519,070,000 in 1971 and that net earnings increased 49 per cent to $38,816,000 from $26,118,000 last year. The 1972 income amounted to $2.57 a share as against $1.73 a share in 1971.

Zenith has good year

Zenith Radio Corp. established new sales and earnings records for the year ended Dec. 31. Joseph S. Wright, chairman, and John J. Nevin, president, announced the results in a preliminary report to stockholders.

Sales for 1972 were $796 million, an increase of $183 million, or 30 per cent from the $613 million reported for 1971; and 13 per cent above the previous sales high of $705 million established in 1968.

Net earnings in 1972 were $48.6 million, or $2.55 a share, an increase of 55 per cent over the operating earnings of $31.3 million or $1.65 a share (excluding extraordinary income) reported for 1971. Earnings in 1972 were 3 per cent above the previous record of $47 million reported in 1968.

has been approved, you are simply allowed to write regular bank checks for more than you have in your balance.

A few years ago, when banks were just starting these credit plans, this method was actually known in banking circles as the approved overdraft. It's since been decided that a proper banker shouldn't encourage overdrafts, approved or not — so it now goes under other names like ready credit, line of credit, revolving credit and such.

The other method involves issuing special checks handled through a special account rather than your ordinary checking account.

In either case, it's an arrangement whereby you can write checks, and have them paid, when you don't have that much money in the bank. In either case, your "N.S.F." check is automatically converted to a loan, on which you thereafter make monthly payments — with interest, of course.

IS ONE METHOD better than another, from the point of view of the customer or borrower?

No. The main thing to be looked for is the difference in repayment requirements, and this seems to have no relation to which method a bank uses.

Read the applications carefully, and you'll find the minimum monthly payment stipulated as a fraction — generally 1/20 — of either the "balance owed" or of "maximum credit available."

This can make quite a difference. Your bank has approved your "line of credit" for a maximum of $800, for example. And, being temporarily short, you use one of your "rubber" checks to make a $200 purchase.

IF THE MINIMUM monthly payment called for is 1/20 of "balance owed," you'll be required to pay at least $10 a month. If it's 1/20 of "maximum credit available" ($800), your minimum payment is $40 a month.

Under the latter arrangement, of course, you'll pay off the loan more quickly, and your total interest charges will be smaller. But you might find yourself obligated for uncomfortably large monthly payments.

Under the other plan, you're at liberty to pay off your loan just as fast, and hold interest costs down — but you don't have to, if it pinches.

DR. JACK VAN ELK, 3200 Dempster St., Des Plaines, is president of the Heart Association of North Cook County.

Dr. van Elk says that North Cook County's share of the total Heart Association goal is $164,000.

Dr. van Elk said funds spent by the Chicago Heart Association for North Cook County programs in 1972 amounted to $166,806 — exclusive of administrative costs — which was more than the division itself was asked to raise. These were used to underwrite research in area institutions, community programs, case-work services for area heart victims, heart-health fairs, speakers bureau and distribution of educational literature to the public.

In addition, a special $15,000 project to train teachers of science in middle schools and help them develop heart disease prevention curriculums for their students was approved and is reaching momentum during the present school year, he said.

Besides local programs initiated in response to community needs, metropolitan-wide programs were conducted in North Cook County.

PRACTICING A SKATING for two routine or just holding hands... Julie Jastrzebski and Jon Ericson try out the ice at the newly opened Woodfield Hockey Center in the Schaumburg Industrial Park, near Golf and Meacham roads.

Free skating sessions this weekend will kick off the official opening of the Woodfield Hockey Center, located in the Schaumburg Industrial Park, near the northwest corner of Golf and Meacham roads.

Ken Leslie, formerly of the Michael Kirby Skating School in River Forest, is managing the center, and offering lessons in figure skating, hockey and pre-hockey.

Hockey teams will be forming in the near future, Leslie said. In addition to lessons, the center offers public skating sessions, at a cost of $1.00 for school age persons, and $1.50 for adults.

Skate rentals and skate sharpening will also be available, he added.

THE INDOOR Olympic-size rink with a seating capacity of 500 will enable the community to watch hockey games, some played by the Prairie State Hockey League. Ice shows are also planned.

Skating will be free this weekend, in honor of the grand opening. Skating exhibitions are also planned, Leslie said.

The cost of figure or hockey skating lessons is $49 for children age three to five, and $56 for older children and adults. The price includes 14 one hour weekly lessons and admission to all public skating sessions.

The schedule for public skating sessions is: Monday, from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.; Tuesday, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Thursday, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Friday, from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m.; Saturday, from 1:15 p.m. to 3:15 p.m., and from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m.; and Sunday, from 12 noon to 2 p.m. and from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Philip Crane is no longer a lonely voice in the wilderness of federal government

as he enters his second full term in the House of Representatives.

The 12th District Republican is now a veteran of Capitol Hill life. He's learned to rush through committee meetings and working lunches, to attend as many as five receptions and get home for dinner, to balance his time between an extensive speaking schedule and his still-growing family.

But most important to him, his rigid brand of conservatism is no longer way out in Washington's right field. Richard Nixon's determination to bury the big spending and social welfare programs of the New Deal-Great Society has suddenly put conservatism on the pitcher's mound in this city.

All of which occasionally has the ex-history professor from Bradley University and his staff wondering if his career isn't destined to go beyond accumulating seniority on the Banking and Currency and House Administration committees.

BUT THAT kind of speculation—and that's all that it is at this stage—belongs to the future. For the present, Crane is content with functioning smoothly as a conservative congressman and "educator."

BY GREG KINCZEWSKI
Special to the Herald
from Washington, D.C.

Crane first came to Congress in December, 1969, after winning a special election to replace Donald Rumsfeld as representative of Illinois' old 13th District. Rumsfeld vacated the post for a job in the Nixon administration.

Initially, Crane relied on his old friend, now colleague, Ed Derwinski (R-Ill.), to keep from getting lost. Many others also assisted him in learning how to fit in.

"I came here in mid-session, yet many members, both Democrats and Republicans, went out of their way to help me," Crane remembers.

"I held different views than they, and my academic background set me apart, but I've been able to get along. It's been my experience that congressmen mix well with each other unless someone comes here with an ax to grind or an inflated sense of importance," he said.

"Members of the House can, obviously do, disagree politically and philosophically. But they can still be personally friendly. I was quite friendly with Allard Lowenstein when he was here," said Crane.

Crane, who is so conservative that an autographed picture of Chiang Kai-Shek still hangs from his office wall, and Lowenstein, an Eleanor Roosevelt liberal, must have had interesting times together.

UNTIL THIS year, Crane's family still lived in the District. He moved them—his wife and eight children, ranging in age from an infant to 12 years old—to the Virginia suburb of McLean.

"This allows him to spend more time with them, but his schedule is still a challenging one."

"A congressman's life is so hectic it's a miracle he isn't a 500-pound alcoholic from the social life and subject to ulcers and heart attacks from the workload," commented Crane, who at the age of 42 appears enviably slim and fit.

"The biggest problem is getting time with the family. One of my daughters had a school project—using their fathers to determine job qualifications. For me, she listed 'away from home a lot.' That hurts," Crane said.

"Of course, it's all part of the job and you learn to cope with it. Still, it's ironic how many people I meet yet how little time I have to socialize with really close friends," he said.

Crane tries to pass on the lessons he learned to the incoming freshmen of the 93rd Congress. To help the newcomers adjust to their new surroundings he had his office staff become an employment service consultant firm.

"One thing we stressed to new members is the advantages of our computer mailing system," Crane said. "We've had it for a year and a half and we're on of the few offices with it. It's extremely efficient in terms of space, time and selective mailings."

Crane is just as proud of his staff as he is of his computer.

ED FEULNER, a native of Elmhurst, is Crane's administrative assistant. He's the rainrod of the 11 full-time, five part-time workers that occupy Crane's two-room suite, one-annex office in the Longworth Building.

He sets the congressman's appointment schedule, coordinates the rest of the staff, determines salaries, does the hiring and firing, and sets office policies—all subject to the congressman's final approval.

Feulner, who is 31, came to Crane in 1969 by way of Melvin Laird. When Laird, then a Wisconsin representative, was chairman of the House Republican Conference, Feulner was on his staff.

When Laird moved to the Pentagon to become Nixon's secretary of defense, Feulner went along as a confidential assistant for personnel and political matters. He didn't like the work and when Crane was elected in 1969 he left the Pentagon.

FEULNER HAD known Crane since 1964 and agrees completely with Crane's conservatism. For example, his workers were among the first to use computer mailings and among the last to be allowed to wear pantsuits to work.

"I enjoy working for Crane because I like the way he runs the office. He gives the staff a great deal of responsibility—otherwise life here could be a real drag," Feulner explained.

"I don't think the boss has yet acquired the in-depth parliamentary knowledge that Laird had, but he certainly does have the respect of his colleagues," he said.

"They know that any position he takes, any paper he issues, has been well thought out, prepared and is respectable—whether they agree with it or not," Feulner added.

ED MURNANE, who at 29 is even younger than Feulner, is Crane's special assistant. Murnane, a former political writer at Paddock Publications, first met Crane while covering the 1969 campaign.

His title used to be press aide and he still handles Crane's press and public relations. But now he also specializes in specific 12th District problems—flooding, noise and safety at O'Hare, possible erosion of the Lake Michigan shoreline.

ALLAN BROWNFELD is Crane's researcher and assists him in preparing his speeches. Crane has about a half-dozen basic speeches but prefers to deliver them extemporaneously.

"I feel very ambivalent about my speaking schedule. I dig the opportunity to get across what I think has been an under-represented view, but there is such an immense amount of travel time involved," Crane said.

"Still, I find it satisfying. Since so many of my engagements are on college campuses, I find it very reminiscent of my teaching days," he added.

Crane's commitment to educating extends to his insertions into the Congressional Record (the official report of the day's happenings in Congress). He takes pains to make sure that all of his inserts are carefully explained and analyzed.

activities were limited to education. His views were in such a minority that nothing could be achieved in the way of actual legislation.

IN THE SPRING of 1972, for example, Crane was one of only 14 representatives to vote against a massive, multi-billion dollar clean water bill. He argued the bill was too expensive and harmful to industry, but more than 300 of his colleagues disagreed.

That proportion of votes may not have changed much in a year, but now Crane has one very powerful ally who resides at the White House.

President Nixon's budget message for fiscal 1974 has made it plain that he is placing top priority on avoiding tax increases and holding down inflation.

For the first time since Franklin D. Roosevelt came to power during the Depression, the federal government is rejecting responsibility for determining and solving the nation's social problems.

Nixon's plan is to make drastic cuts in existing federal programs and agencies and to refuse to spend money already appropriated by Congress.

Included in the impoundment of appropriated funds is $6 billion of the same clean water bill that Crane was one of the few opponents of last year.

THEY WOULD prefer tax reform to eliminate loopholes like capital gains set-asides and depletion allowances, which they say would provide an additional $50 billion in tax revenue that could finance social programs.

Or they would opt for less military spending, which increases from $74.8 billion this fiscal year to $79 billion in fiscal 1974.

Philip Crane is not one of these. His applause for Nixon's proposals is interrupted only by a "they don't go far enough" and some uncomfortable thoughts about the President assuming the authority of Congress.

"I absolutely agree that top priority should be given to taxes and inflation. I said that when I first ran for Congress and have been saying it ever since," Crane observed.

"When it comes to spending, Congress has acted like kids in a candy store—no restraint. It's unbelievable that so many supposedly intelligent people didn't recognize the gross injustice they did to the people they were trying to help," he continued.

"Time has proven that all that Crane is so conservative, an autographed picture of Chiang Kai-Shek still hangs in his office.

The work-a-day world Of Rep. Philip Crane

WASHINGTON — When the House of Representatives is in session, Rep. Philip Crane's work day begins at 10 a.m.

He's a member of three subcommittees each of Banking and Currency (which handles all banking legislation) and House Administration.

Committees adjourn at about 11:45 a.m. Crane then goes to his Longworth Building office for the first time. Usually a lunch is scheduled with another congressman or someone from the 12th District.

The afternoon is spent alternating between the House floor and the office. Crane tries to be in the office by 4 p.m. and stay there until 6:30 or 7 p.m., catching up on his mail and meeting with his staff and visitors.

Crane's office gets between 500 and 600 pieces of mail a day. A lot of it is junk and gets tossed away, but all of it is read and legitimate items answered.

Kathy Rowan handles all constituent inquiries on problems like draft deferments, tardy social security checks and how high school districts can apply for federal programs. She also works closely with other branches of government.

Will Johnson is Crane's legislative assistant and she's responsible for handling inquiries such as "What is the congressman's position on . . ." She also reviews the House legislative calendar and sees to it Crane's bills are properly drafted and presented to the House.

ALL REPLIES to letters are drafted by staff secretaries and then submitted—along with the original mail—to Crane for his review and approval. Once Crane gets free of his office at night he usually drops in at receptions for visiting groups from the district or lobbyists. The reception activity is especially heavy between February and May—as Congress settles back into work after the long holiday recess.

Congress normally adjourns on Fridays to allow its members to spend most of their weekends in their districts.

When Crane's family lived in the district he would return almost every weekend. Now that they live in McLean, Va., he gets back to the district about twice a month.

THE CONGRESSMAN'S extensive speaking schedule is coordinated with his trips back to the district.

In early February, his speaking schedule went:

- Thursday afternoon, a speech at Houston Baptist College.

- Thursday evening, with friends in Milwaukee.

- Friday morning, speeches at Wheeling High School and St. Viator School in Arlington Heights.

- Friday afternoon, met with 12th District reporters for lunch.

- Friday evening, attended the United Republican Fund Meeting in Chicago.

- Saturday, back in Washington.

- The following Saturday, a speech at the Mississippi State Jaycees Convention.

Crane's staff estimates he made 20 speeches in the Washington area last year, the same number in areas outside the 12th District and too many to count in the district.

spending didn't solve the problems. It just ate away at the earnings of people who could least afford it," Crane argued.

Crane welcomes the shift of responsibility from Washington to state and local government with just as much conviction as he views Nixon's fiscal austerity.

"I HAVE ALWAYS hated and argued against the theory that Washington is infallible. Why should problem-solving be monopolized here? Why should Washington know what's best for Chicago, or the suburbs, or Carbondale or Cairo?" he asked.

"I've often said in campaigns that there is more talent and expertise in my own district than in Washington. Now that I've been here four years I'm more convinced that's true," Crane said.

"Under the President's plan we'll have problem-solving going on in 50 different states and thousands of communities — at the very level where the problems exist," he predicted. "This is bound to be better than Washington bureaucrats trying to devise one solution to be applied everywhere."

Crane is disappointed that even under Nixon's budget federal spending will continue to rise. He would prefer that the majority of tax money stay right in the states and never come to Washington.

Congressional opposition to Nixon's budget centers on whether the President has the Constitutional authority to refuse to spend funds appropriated by Congress.

THE ADMINISTRATION says he does because it's his job to tackle economic problems. Many congressmen claim this interpretation ends their control of the nation's purse strings—a power clearly enunciated in the Constitution.

Crane, a long-time critic of Congress abdicating its authority to the executive branch, says the President has the power to impound a part of an appropriation, but not enough to terminate a program.

"Normally I oppose crash programs, but I approve of the President's budget cuts and impoundments because I feel stopping deficit spending and decentralizing government are our most critical problems," Crane explained.

"I don't favor impoundments when they terminate a program, however. Now if Congress appropriates $1 million and the President finds out $500,000 will do the job, he obviously should not spend the remaining money," he said.

"But if he impounds so much money that a program created by Congress is terminated, then I think he has gone too far. Such examples, I feel, will be settled by the Supreme Court," he predicted.

The pending battle of the budget and the aftermath of the Vietnam war has made the question of executive vs. congressional authority one of the hottest issues in Washington.

Crane and 25 other senators and representatives are sponsoring a bi-partisan conference March 7-8 aimed at finding ways to restore "a proper balance between the executive and legislative branches of the federal government."

THIS GOAL will probably interest Crane much more in the coming weeks than his committee work.

If he had his choice, Crane would be on the powerful Ways and Means Committee, which formulates all tax policies. But Rep. Harold Collier (R-6th) occupies the only Illinois Republican seat on the committee.

By the time Collier is ready for retirement Crane will have accumulated enough seniority on Banking and Commerce to make a switch to Ways and Means—if he could get it—impractical.

The problem is that although Crane finds his present committee work interesting—the devaluation of the dollars, the Lockheed loan and an examination of tax exempt foundations came before it — it is also frustrating because his views are in a minority.

So the possibility of moving on to another post in government, especially the Senate, does have an appeal to Crane. He feels confident his conservative views could win approval outside his affluent, suburban district.

"For too long there's been a muddy view of conservatism. After Barry Goldwater's horrendous defeat in 1964, a Harris poll showed 85 per cent of those polled agreed with Goldwater's views when they were presented without liberal and conservative labels," Crane noted.

WHILE CRANE is confident the conservative message has statewide appeal in Illinois, he's hesitant about whether he's the man to carry that word into the Senate.

"I wouldn't rule it out, but everything's so far away it's impossible to tell. My main interest right now is in rejuvenating the House. I feel very strongly that it should be the body most representative and responsive to the people," he said.

Crane's staff doesn't seem to have the same high regard for the House as their boss. They're anxious for a try at something bigger, but cautious about when to do it.

Murnane thinks Crane has all the potential for a big career—if he gets a few breaks.

"THE BOSS is only 42 and he's very sharp—one of only eight congressmen with Ph.D's. He's got the ability to handle any job in the Republican Party or government—any job," is Murnane's assessment.

"But a lot depends on developments. Will Percy try for national office? Will Stevenson look vulnerable? What other Illinois Republicans want a crack at the same office?" Murnane says.

Feulner thinks Crane in a statewide race would be "a refreshing change, an honest Dan Walker." But he too stresses waiting for the right moment.

"A lot of the congressman's friends want him to run statewide, but in my time on the hill I've seen a lot of bright, young conservative stars try for bigger things and flop — like George Bush in Texas," Feulner warned.

"But Crane in a statewide race would certainly be something new. A man of principle, not politics. His vote against Lockheed's loan shows he's not afraid to buck the party. A statewide race would be exciting," he concluded.

It will have to be at least two years away and until that time Crane will have plenty to occupy himself with in Congress.

But, occasionally, he and his staff will be studying for trends that might surface in 1974, or 1976, or . . .

Dear Dr. Lamb — How does a physician determine whether a patient's cholesterol elevation is hereditary? When I last visited my doctor he informed me that my cholesterol was slightly elevated but not to worry about it — to trim fat off my meat, no butter, no bacon.

No list of verboten foods was given to me but I have done some research on this so I am questioning that particular aspect.

Since I am on the lean side and have normal blood pressure. I questioned the reason as to the elevation. He replied that it was hereditary and he did not seem to want to discuss the matter further.

Now I have a friend who is about 60 pounds overweight and does take medication for hypertension. Her doctor informs her not to worry about her cholesterol, that if it rises it will return to normal. I am puzzled and would like an answer to these apparently conflicting statements.

Dear Reader — Some scientists think that whatever our levels of cholesterol are they are hereditary or at least related to our genes. Of course, that can mean that we inherit a chemical characteristic that causes us to have elevated cholesterol levels when our living habits are not optimal.

In other words, our body wasn't designed to eat as much rich food as our society does and to be as inactive as we frequently are. Nature designed the human body to be considerably more active and to eat an entirely different type of fare than civilization currently provides.

Some individuals have very high elevations in their cholesterol and other indications of abnormal fat metabolism peculiar to their family. They may have a family tendency to early heart attacks. These individuals are relatively rare compared to the total population of individuals who have a less marked chemical problem and aren't constructed to handle modern living patterns.

Before anyone gets too upset about any one cholesterol level it's advisable to have several taken. The cholesterol level can fluctuate in some individuals. Students with cholesterol level determinations at the time of their term examinations were found to have sharp elevations which dropped to normal after the examinations were over.

The elevations that are important are those that are persistent. A large number of these can be decreased to relatively low values by restricting one's total caloric intake to the point that all significant excess fat deposits in the body are eliminated.

NOW THERE WILL still be some individuals who even after they are truly lean will still have high cholesterol. These individuals need to curtail their total fat intake and frequently their saturated fats found primarily in animal foods and many doctors think they should also limit their cholesterol intake.

If you limit the number of calories eaten and still get a good balanced diet, it means you are going to have to restrict high caloric foods which include both fat and sweets.

Perhaps your doctor didn't think that your cholesterol was elevated enough to embark on a more vigorous program. If the cholesterol is persistently high it's not likely to decrease without a significant decrease in body fat stores and an important alteration in the diet.

Holy Family makes two appointments

Two women have been named to new posts by Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

Cecilia P. Parr, an intensive-coronary care specialist, has been appointed assistant director nursing, evenings, relief.

Miss Parr was graduated from the Silver Cross Hospital School of Nursing, Joliet, in 1962. She received a bachelor of science degree in nursing from the University of Nevada. Pursuing a specialist nursing interest, she was also graduated from the Cardiovascular Education program, Nashville, Tenn., and continued there as a faculty member as assistant education director and instructor.

Earlier, she served as head nurse first in intensive care and then helped to plan and establish the new coronary care unit and becoming coordinator for coronary care at Saint Mary's Hospital, Reno, Nev.

Miss Parr lives in Chicago, enjoys singing, dancing, water skiing, horseback riding and painting. She also likes plays, opera, ballet, concerts and art shows.

MRS. CINDY LEIGH — former cheerleader at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines — has come back to Holy Family as relief, assistant director of nursing for evenings.

While a high school student in Morton Grove, Mrs. Leigh — then Cindy Gunther — served as a member of the hospital's cheerleader crew. She liked it so much, she became a nurse aide for one year. Mrs. Leigh attended the University of Dayton for two years before starting her three-year course at the Loyola School of Nursing. After her graduation with a bachelor's degree in nursing in 1969, she worked at the Loyola Medical Center for a year. She is on the staff of the Illinois Masonic Medical Center as an instructor in the School of Nursing in addition to rejoining Holy Family.

She is currently a student at Loyola University School of Nursing, working for a master's degree in nursing.

Hospital can be pleasant

Hospitalization can be a traumatic experience for children but a Los Angeles psychiatrist thinks this problem can be overcome.

"When a child enters the hospital," explained Dr. Howard Hansen, chief of psychiatry at the Children's Hospital of Los Angeles, "he is entering a trying experience."

"He is separated from familiar figures like his parents, brothers, sisters or friends and he is separated from the familiar surroundings of his home. This is traumatic for a child. Fortunately, though, I think this is changing as we move toward pediatric ambulatory care."

"Kids should be allowed to wear their own pajamas and they shouldn't be put in cribs if they've mastered the bed at home. Mothers should be allowed to stay in the hospital if they wish. Children who are hospitalized should be given more support by people around them and by making the atmosphere surrounding their hospital stay more comfortable."

AT THE CHILDREN'S Hospital of Los Angeles, according to Dr. Hansen, children are encouraged to go to the cafeteria with their parents. "And we've instituted a child activity program which allows the children to eat in a group. This makes eating more fun for them and they are more likely to eat their food."

"Keeping children in the hospital together helps them," Dr. Hansen continued. "To know they're in company with others is comforting and to know that other kids can be upset with their illness is also comforting."

Dr. Hansen thinks that treating children on an ambulatory basis keeps children healthier. "By not keeping them bedridden we treat children in a health mode rather than in the role of a sick person. We have had children come into our hospital with a certain type of illness. They get better and are sent home but then they come back in again. We again get them better and send them home but they will often come back again."

Shelby Lyman on Chess

Don't fall victim to 'Harrison' in playing 'speed' game

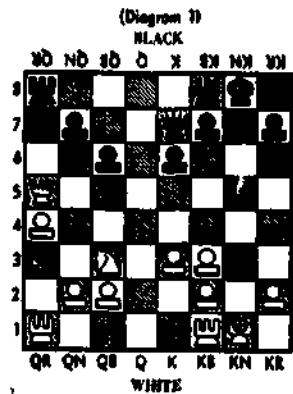

One of the most exasperating experiences in playing "speed" chess is to fall victim to a "Harrison." Suppose you're playing the following position:

(Diagram 1)
You have the white pieces and you're a piece ahead. Suddenly your opponent plays Q-N4, announces check, and stares at your attacked king. For some reason which you can't recall at the moment, you have rejected Q-M4 check as a serious threat. Nevertheless, your opponent has made the move and your clock is ticking away. You hurriedly move your king to the corner, "punch" your clock and start to take a deep breath.

But not quite. Without hesitation and with a great sideways flourish, your opponent snaps your queen off the board with an unforeseen (by you) QxQ. First shock, then anger and disgust. Your opponent has outrageously bluffed you out of a won game. You've been smartly "Harrisoned." Distracted by the clock and decoyed by your opponent's manner, you've overlooked that the queens were mutually engaged. Your opponent gambled that you would not see QxQ; you lost.

In a recent game played in the New York Senior Masters' Tournament, the following position was reached:

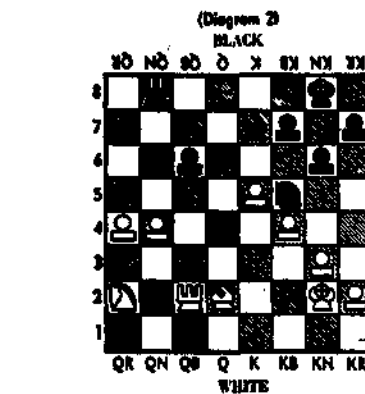

(Diagram 2)
White. Orest Popovych, is a pawn ahead with great advantage on the queen side. It is black. Arthur Feuerstein, to move. He begins a clever but faulty combination by playing BxP???. Popovych, who is short of time, glances at the variation 2) NxB RxN 3) BxR and N-K6 check for black regaining the rook.

He superficially rejects it and plays instead 2) R-N2 and retains a slightly better position. If he had looked a few moves further into the preceding variation, he would have found a decisive follow-up. After 3) ... N-K6 check and 4) ... NxB by black, Popovych could have played B-B5 and his queen rook pawn could not have been stopped.

After the game, I discussed the position with Arthur Feuerstein. Had he "Harrisoned" Popovych? No. He was unaware the variation he played should have lost outright. True, he had seen B-B5, but he had assumed he could play

N-K6 check on move two instead of RxN and come out okay. When I pointed out that he would be a piece behind after 2) ... N-K6 check 3) BxN RxN and 4) B-Q2, he admitted he had miscalculated.

Feuerstein apparently had played 1) ... BxP with complete confidence; he had been unaware of the unsoundness of the move. Popovych, laboring under time pressure, fell victim to his opponent's unwitting bluff.

How the chessmen move

THE ROOK (occasionally called the castle) moves and captures horizontally and vertically, along the ranks and files.

THE BISHOP moves and captures diagonally.

THE QUEEN, the most powerful piece on the board, moves and captures diagonally, and horizontally and vertically, along the ranks and files.

THE KNIGHT moves and captures in the form of a capital L — two spaces in either a horizontal or vertical direction and one space to the right or left. It is the only piece permitted to jump over other men.

THE PAWN moves only forward one space, with the exception of its first move when it has the option of moving two spaces forward. It captures one square diagonally forward.

THE KING moves and captures one square at a time in any direction.

U.S. playoffs lack fans, Fischer

Chess craze? What chess craze?

by RALPH NOVAK

All those people who have been talking about the chess craze sweeping the country should have been here for the recent U.S. Championship playoff tournament.

Somebody should have been here. As it was, the players drew crowds that did not have to be estimated, since they could be tallied on the fingers and toes of the reporters present. Both of them.

Still, the isolation seemed blissful and not at all discouraging to the players themselves, no doubt accustomed to the public anonymity that has traditionally engulfed even the greatest chess masters.

Robert Byrne, a soft-spoken 43-year-old from Long Island who emerged from the playoffs here with his first U.S. title, said he is convinced that chess is leaping and bounding to greater popularity.

"CHESS WOULD make a good spectator attraction of wide appeal, especially on television," Byrne said. "There's no reason why we couldn't have a chess game of the week just as we do with football, since you can always vary the time limit of a game to suit what is available."

There was no television coverage of the playoff and even the Chicago newspapers provided only a sketchy account of the match, despite a Herculean public relations effort by president Richard Verber of the Chicago Chess Club, which sponsored the tournament.

What the tournament lacked in terms of newsworthiness was the mixed but lucrative blessing that would have been provided by the participation of Bobby Fischer.

Fischer, as world champion, no longer has to worry about competing to become U.S. champion, just as Richard Nixon no longer has to worry about competing to become U.S. senator from California. And the prize money involved here — $2000 for first place — would be paltry for Fischer, who can hardly be persuaded to answer a telephone these days for anything less than $50,000.

BYRNE AND Samuel Reshevsky, who finished second in Chicago, won the right to advance to next year's Interzonal matches in Brazil and the Soviet Union, part of the elimination process to choose a challenger for Fischer in the next world title match in 1975. (Byrne and Reshevsky tied with Lubomir Kavalek in last April in the U.S. championship, necessitating the playoff among the three for the two U.S. spots in the world elimination.)

THE WINNER and new U.S. chess champion, Robert Byrne is an admirer and potential challenger of world titlist Bobby Fischer.

But while they are both Fischer's competitors, Byrne and Reshevsky are also among Fischer's admirers.

Reshevsky, a spunky 60-year-old, has held or shared the U.S. championship eight times but he remains anonymous enough that while he was walking into one of his playoff games against Kavalek, a door attendant asked him for his ticket. He says, though, that Fischer's eccentric and publicity-drawing genius have brought more money into the chess tour and made all chess players more marketable commodities.

Byrne calls Fischer "the greatest asset to the game America has ever had." "Because of him," Byrne says, "hundreds of thousands of American kids have taken up chess.

"AMERICANS LOVE a winner, for one thing. And before, the general public didn't know how competitive chess was. They thought it was just a genteel pastime.

"Reykjavik opened their eyes to the fact that chess is like a tank of barricades. Now that the game is perceived as being more savage, maybe it can become more popular."

The disappointing playoff turnout (of about 100 spectators per game) notwithstanding, there are signs that chess is making a small breakthrough.

Since there are now only a half dozen or so fulltime American chess pros, what the players would like is a tour of matches sponsored by wealthy, publicity-seeking corporations, like the tour the pro golfers and bowlers follow. And a recent San Antonio tournament sponsored by a prepared chicken chain and a $25,000 tournament planned for this fall in Hollywood, sponsored by entertainer Bobby Darin, encourage them to believe that may be a realistic hope.

STILL, THE ONLY big money being talked about is a rumored $1 million offer from a Las Vegas source for a rematch of the Reykjavik confrontation between Fischer and former champion Boris Spassky. The question is whether Fischer will, like Muhammad Ali, end up doing a sublime job of promoting himself with being able to change things for his less flamboyant competitors.

"Will it last?" says George Koltonowski, a columnist and international master who was playoff tournament director. "We'll have to wait five or 10 years to find out if today's young people will stay enthusiastic about chess. Maybe by then somebody will come along who is a spectacular Ping Pong player. Then everybody will be playing Ping Pong."

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Skater Peggy Fleming will film her next television special in Moscow, Bob Banner Associates said.

Backing her up on the show, to be seen in the United States next season, will be the Red Army Chorus, the Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra, the Kirov Ballet, the Leningrad Balalaika Band and the trained bears of the Moscow Circus.

THE 1968 BROADWAY drama, "The Devil's Advocate," will be the first of a planned series of prime time television presentations financed in part by the Illinois Arts Council, it was announced.

Academy Award winning writer-director Dore Schary, who brought the play to Broadway, will adapt it for television.

The play will feature an all-Illinois cast and will be broadcast by WGN-TV in Chicago.

The station will underwrite technical costs and scenic construction. A $10,542 grant from the council will cover salaries for actors and actresses.

Auditions for Illinois residents who are members of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists will be held at the Civic Theater in Chicago March 6-7.

The arts council has said it hopes to present three or four such "all-Illinois" productions each year.

They made him offer he couldn't refuse

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A dramatization of Gay Talese's best-selling book "Honor Thy Father," about underworld life, and dealing with real people, arrived on CBS-TV last night in a two-hour presentation.

And the teleplay fashioned from the book is, primarily because of Lewis John Carlino's script and the direction of Paul Wendkos, likely to fascinate many viewers.

It is virtually impossible for an abbreviated film story, such as this, to capture the wealth of detail and subtleties of a book like Talese's.

But Carlino and Wendkos have brought directness and feeling to their work in "Honor Thy Father," and, certainly in large part because of this, the acting reflects the same qualities.

AS A CBS-TV story summary puts it succinctly, tonight's drama centers "on Salvatore 'Bill' Bonanno, heir apparent to his father, Joseph 'Joe Bananas' Bo-nanno." It also focuses on the younger man's wife.

The younger man is portrayed by Joseph Bologna, the father by Raf Vallone and the wife by Brenda Vaccaro, and they are all notable, but especially the two men.

Bologna is the central character because his is a life in flux. The father's life is already determined. The wife's future depends on her husband. And, thus, we are wrapped up in the young man, and what he decides he is going to do.

The crux of the story is that, though the young heir seems reluctant to take over his father's organization, and apparently wants a different kind of life, he nonetheless inevitably is drawn into the job.

His father's organization is in trouble. Others are trying to move in on it. He helps his father. He is a son, and that is the way it is with them.

KILLING AND violence abound in tonight's story as the rival groups fight for power, but the personal dimension woven by Carlino and Wendkos from Talese's material is what makes the drama exceptional.

There are also exceptional supporting performances. And it should surprise no one that the best of these is by that splendid actor Richard Castellano, who plays the young man's confidant.

In addition, two old pros stand out in support: Marc Lawrence and Joe de Santis. Lawrence is as menacing and expert as ever as the father's chief rival.

But in the end, all our attention is drawn back to Bologna. For he offers a highly fascinating portrayal of the young man. We see the young man doing the job of the heir, and yet we also see him as he thinks of the open Arizona country where his heart seems to be.

The contrast of his work and his dreams, as presented by Carlino, Wendkos and Bologna, is gripping. And so are his relationships with his father, his wife and his children.

The Lighter Side...by Dick West

Cod bless America, lamb that I love

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon recently added a new dimension to Phase III of his anti-inflation program by declaring that high meat prices had made it "patriotic to eat fish."

Meanwhile, one of the President's economic advisers suggested that consumers observe meatless days by getting their protein requirements from cheese.

Which presumably is another form of patriotism.

So if you whip up a dish of broiled flounder au gratin, you, too, can become a superpatriot.

Anyway, when a President says that now is the time for all good seafood lovers to come to the aid of their price commission, you don't find me among the slackers.

My motto is: "Ask not but what tuna fish salad can do for you but what salmon croquettes can do for your country."

IN RESPONSE to the President's ad-

Dick West

monition, I beat it over to Kipperling's Fish & Cheese Market to strike a blow for economic stability. It was a moving experience.

On the wall above the counter where the speckled trout was displayed, Kipperling had erected a giant American flag composed of red herring, blue gills and white crappie.

Also posted about the premises were placards bearing such public-spirited slogans as "God Bless A Mackerel" and "Haddock-Love it or Leave It."

In the background, a Muzak machine was playing the U.S. Marine Band's recording of "This Is My Codfish" and the Mormon Tabernacle Choir's rendition of "Battle Hymn of the Rockfish."

The perch and the shad were flanked by an honor guard made up of members of the American Legion, one from each of the last four wars.

As a bugler emerged from amidst the pickerel and blew "Ruffles and Flourishes," I stepped forward three paces and placed an order for filet of sole. Kipperling saluted smartly and kissed me on both cheeks.

THIS WAS a signal for a life and drum corps dressed in Revolutionary War uniforms to march out from behind wall-eyed pike and strike up a medley of George M. Cohan favorites.

Kipperling then pinned upon my chest the Congressional Medal of Halibut and read a presidential citation commending me for extraordinary devotion to swordfish steaks during a period of high beef prices.

"Your contribution to the national welfare was above and beyond the cost of lamb chops," the citation said.

Whereupon Frank Sinatra sang "Bass for the Love of America," after which the Rev. Billy Graham gave the benediction.

It made me proud to have a taste for sardines.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

You don't really think of a five-card suit headed by ace-king-queen as a shaky trump-holding. South certainly didn't think so and as a result South managed to get set at four spades.

He did it quickly. He ruffed the second club and promptly played out his ace, king and queen of trumps. East showed out and the best South could do was start on diamonds.

West ruffed the third diamond for the second defensive trick and South still had to lose two hearts.

South had two ways to bring home the contract plus an overtrick. The first was to just discard a heart on the second club.

The other was to ruff the second club and continue with a submarine play in trumps. In other words, just underlead his ace-king-queen. He could not be forced again and would have been able to pull trumps safely.

South's bidding was just about as bad as his play but really good bidding might have been punished.

Sic diamonds is a good contract. Only a heart opening and perfect follow-up defense could beat that contract and if South had been up on his toes he might have carried his partner to that spot.

We Never Intrude
 Our organization never intrudes upon the personal affairs of the bereaved. Each family knows best just how much, or how little it is able to spend, and we would not, under any circumstances, influence its choice.
 Of course, we are here to advise should our opinion be desired, but it shall never be forced upon our clients.

Swimmers, wrestlers open in state tests

The first of the "March Madness" weekends is here. Swimmers and wrestlers from the Herald area have poured untold hours of practice and sacrifice to get where they are today — the state championships. Four months of competition culminates this weekend at Champaign and suburban Clarendon Hills. Nine local wrestlers will be taking that first big step towards a possible state title when they toe the mats at the mammoth Assembly Hall of the University of Illinois. First round action begins at 1 p.m.

Taking part in preliminary diving and swimming tests at Hinsdale South High School will be six relay teams and 29 individuals. Diving will begin at 10 a.m. with swimming to follow at 4 p.m. The top six divers and top 12 swimmers will advance to the finals on Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m. Leaving the area with six individuals and two relays is St. Viator, probably the only one of the eight schools that will finish among the top 10 teams. The Lions have three possible state champions in Mike Salerno, Kevin Szarabjka and the 200 medley relay team. Salerno has seen several of his top rival backstrokers fall by the wayside over the past couple of weeks. La Grange's Mark Wintercorn broke his neck recently and New Trier West's Neil Hansen was ruled ineligible by the Illinois High School Association.

Other Lion qualifiers are Ed Fitzsimmons in both the 100 and 200 freestyles, Iversen in the 100 free, Tom Pennot in diving and the 400 free relay team of Iversen, Chris Kenny, Salerno and Fitzsimmons. Prospect's Rick Fox has excellent shots at titles in both the 50 and 100 freestyles. He qualified second best in the former and third in the latter. Fox is also anchorman on the Knights' medley relay team of Chris Prinslow, John Todd and Dave Larsen. Arlington, which landed eight individuals and one relay, will have its best shot at a high finish from Charlie Dunn. He figures to battle Salerno in the backstroke and do very well in the individual medley. Other Cardinal qualifiers are Joe Nitch

SLIP A HOEY. Fremd's Tom Hoey finds himself in a rather uncomfortable position at the hands of Ridge-wood's Joe Folmer with the referee about to count him out. Hoey slipped out of the hold a moment later, however, and applied the same measure to Folmer, with more success. Later Hoey was eliminated, also by pin, in the consolation semifinals of the Evanston sectional (Photo by Keith Reinhard)

Cards to visit Devils tonight

Eleven of 12 Mid-Suburban League basketball teams will take the weekend off, but North Division champion Arlington will be busy tonight. The Cardinals, a 55-51 loser to Prospect Tuesday in the title game, will journey to Hinsdale Central to face the 10-11 Red Devils. Tipoff is set for 8 p.m. The West Suburban club reached the Elite Eight last year but fell to East Aurora, 83-81. Greg Spanuth and Chuck Fritz are returning starters from that state finalist.

However, U.S. District Court Judge Philip W. Tone, who issued a restraining order which allowed Hansen to swim in the district last Saturday, won't decide until today whether he will continue the temporary order. Hansen had registered the lowest qualifying time with Salerno finishing second. Szarabjka turned in the second lowest state time in the breaststroke to Hinsdale Central's Mike Capek. Both should battle it out for the top spot. The St. Viator relay team of Salerno, Szarabjka, Jim Wolf and Jeff Iversen finished just 4/10th of a second behind frontrunner Hinsdale. This also should be a tight race.

Kickin' It Around

BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

IT IS NO GREAT secret that the family — society's base unit — has experienced an earthquake existence in the past decade because of extreme social, moral and cultural tensions and change.

The subject of intra-family relationships is examined closely in many areas, including athletics. It is argued with obvious justification that sports can be a unifying, restorative factor in reinforcing and solidifying the family.

Parents obviously should want to better understand and better respond to their sports-loving children, and the children should want to better relate to others in sports and to their parents in those areas involving sports.

You can read many articles on the subject and get bogged down in flowery words and well-meaning but vague examination. That's why it was extremely refreshing this week to read a lucid interview discussing the father-son athletic relationship with Dr. Lacy Hall, Director of the Achievement Motivation Program of the W. Clement and Jessie V. Stone Foundation in Chicago. Dr. Hall has two sons now competing in sports at the high school and college level.

Girls have made great strides in school sports activity, but this interview was directed strictly at the father-son relationship. You can be sure there will be studies coming up on the father-daughter sports relationship.

"Sports should evolve as a natural part of family life," says Dr. Hall. "It should not be deified any more than cutting the grass. If a boy feels he'll disappoint his father if he does not compete, he's going to hurt family life."

Dr. Hall stresses that there should be free give-and-take between dad and son as to what he plays and when. Some dads place too much pressure on their sons to perform, and too many dads who could not make athletic teams make them through their sons.

"Sports become a beautiful avenue to teach give-and-take," he continued. "It also teaches fairness, gentlemanliness and taking a rap and not striking back. This is what life is about. So athletics should be treated like walking or eating or anything else — a natural part of physical growth."

"The most important thing he needs to get across to his son is simply: 'You are my son, whether you win, or lose, or don't play. You are still my son and I love you.'"

Dr. Hall emphasizes that too many dads make the mistake of overacting. Too many get over-involved. The important thing for the dad to do is simply be there, to let his son know he's interested enough to be around.

How should a father handle his son's activities in pre-junior high sports?

"For too long dad has made the decisions instead of leaving the options open to his son," says Dr. Hall. "If a boy is old enough to play, he's old enough to make the choice as to whether or not he wants to play."

"There are problems both ways when sports are considered such a life and death thing, especially for the smaller boy. Where there are divided homes or family tensions, for example, sports can be a life and death thing. If a boy finds the place of belonging in sports he cannot find at home or elsewhere in the community, then it is the greatest thing to happen to him."

"At the same time, especially for the 8 to 13-year-old youngsters, I don't like anything to become a crisis-potential. If sports becomes a life or death thing it is a crisis-potential. And I don't want my sons to face too many crises early in life."

When asked if a dad should ever lose on purpose in competition with his son, Dr. Hall admitted there had been times when he did exactly that. "I think they got the message that I did it so they could win. And as they've grown older, they've let down intentionally at times so I could win."

"You know, the best way to develop a healthy relationship is to have a sense of humor about our competition. Some dads have the idea they've got to be god-like men who never make mistakes. The best way to be authentic with your son is to let him see your humanness and laugh about it."

Dr. Hall admits that it is natural for every father to want his son to win. But the important thing, he stresses, is for the athlete to have played to his capacity. Then dad should be proud, win or lose. And all fathers will be aware at times that there is someone better than their son. That isn't easy.

Television, according to Dr. Hall, has been a deterrent to father-son relationships in many cases. It has mainly influenced the men. Athletically speaking, television has drawn dad to the easy chair. Children have a shorter attention span and would rather be doing something active. And most of them are playing without their dads.

"America is falling apart sitting on its butt," he says. "A father and son ought to learn to do something together, whether it's fishing or hiking or anything. The father must be willing to involve himself at his son's level rather than pulling up in front of the television set or sitting in the stadium and, in essence, demanding that this boy involve himself at the father's level."

What should the father do when the coach or other athletic figure seems to have replaced him as the dominant man in his son's eyes?

"There are cycles in any boy's life," says Dr. Hall. "Dad must realize that there are always going to be those men who rise and fall in their son's esteem. If anybody can help my son be a better man I've got to be big enough to say 'more power to you.'"

Dr. Hall feels very deeply about his subject. He repeatedly emphasizes the importance of sports in the overall family picture. He sees the importance as obvious but in constant need of evaluation.

"A dad or son can say 'I love you' until it comes out of their ears but the proof is in the showing," Dr. Hall summed up.

"Putting action to words can be more easily done through sports than perhaps any other channel as dad is supportive of his son and interacting with him."

BLASTER BOLIN. Forcing everyone at the New Trier District to swim in his wake was Elk Grove's Scott Bolin. The talented junior won both the individual medley and the breaststroke to qualify for the state meet. He was the only Grenadier to do so. He ranks among the top 12 in both events.

Fan's Forum

SCHEDULE QUESTIONED

Dear Sirs:
I was one of many, many people who jammed into Prospect Tuesday night to watch the championship game between Prospect and Arlington. Many people I talked with both during and after the game were surprised at the attendance (over 3,000 estimated). I wasn't. Anyone who recognizes the tradition and rivalry between these two schools would have expected that kind of turnout.

What puzzles me is why these two teams did not meet at all during the regular season. Don't the schedule-makers realize that these two teams would be playing in front of packed bleachers every time they faced each other? I was not happy with the final score, but just with the fact that Prospect and Arlington finally faced each other.

ALLEN FOR PRESIDENT?

Dear Fans Forum:
The first thing I'll admit is that I'm not a White Sox fan. The second thing is that there's no way in the world one ball-player can be worth $675,000 over three years, five years or 10 years. I figured the Sox would give Richie Allen anything he asked, but are you going to tell me Allen is worth $25,000 more a year than the President of the United States? Let's be reasonable, or can we be? If we were, we'd all be Cub fans!

Rennie Webster
Hoffman Estates

RICHIE RICHIE'S NO. 1

To Sox Fans Everywhere:
Let's hear it for the White Sox management. Hey! Hey! By signing Dick Allen to a three-year contract, the fans will no longer have to worry about his holding out or quitting.

Some may say that he's being paid too much, but he demonstrated last year that there's nobody better in the American League, and very few are equal to him in the National League. When he brings a pennant to Chicago, even the Cub fans will have to admit that rich Richie is the No. 1 man in the city.

Personally, I would probably go to fewer home games if Allen wasn't with the Sox. Being there makes his homers all the more exciting.

Maybe this will be the year when the frustrations of both North and South sides will be ended with a pennant flying over White Sox Park.

Tom Llvengood

BULLS DESERVE MORE ATTENTION

Dear Sirs:
It continues to mystify me that the Chicago Bulls are not given more media attention.

The Bulls this week ran their winning streak to eight in a row, a team record and extreme rarity for any Chicago sports team. They're making a serious run at the so-called "awesome" Milwaukee Bucks for the division title. (As of now, they're two games out, one in the loss column).

I point out these facts because many fans might not even be aware of them. The newspapers and radio and television stations seem to refuse to take the Bulls' bid seriously. I have not even noticed coverage increasing.

If the Cubs or BlackHawks or any other Chicago team does what the Bulls are doing (with even half as long a winning streak, or in the case of the Cubs, within five games of first place), we see big screaming headlines in the paper and hear constant talk from fans. Why not the same for the Bulls, the best and most exciting team of any kind in the city?

I hope you will consider printing this because I know if I sent this to the local Chicago media, they'd immediately toss it in the trash can.

Grid clinic Saturday at St. Viator

St. Viator High School will hold its second annual football coaches' clinic on Saturday. The clinic, designed for individuals who coach young boys' teams, will take place at the school, Oakton and Dryden streets in Arlington Heights, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Jim Lyne, head football coach at St. Viator, said that all coaches of Little League, park district, elementary school, Pop Warner and similar teams are invited to the clinic, which was attended by over 150 persons last year.

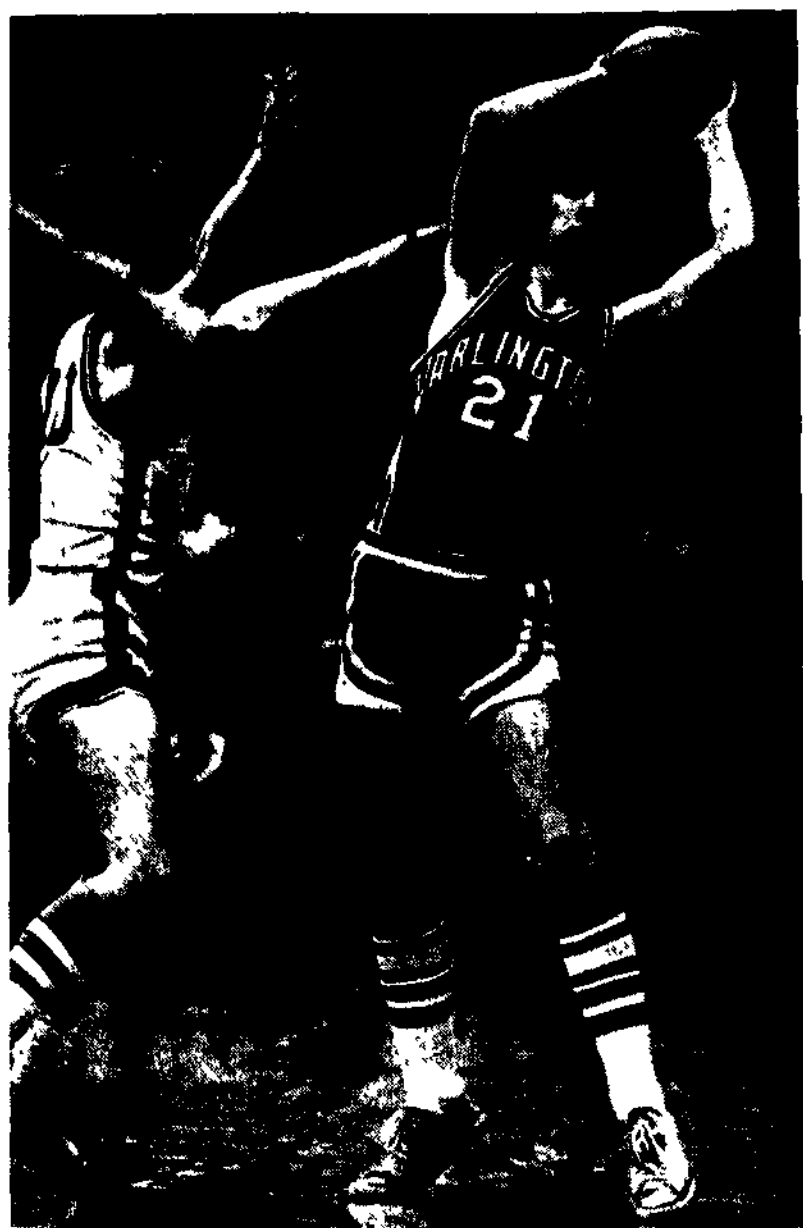

Presentations will be made by Lyne, Nick Novich, assistant football coach at St. Viator, Tom Powers, new head football coach at Loyola Academy and Tom Monforti, athletic trainer at Loyola.

The presentations will be made in the school auditorium, and luncheon will be served to those attending. Several door prizes have also been donated for the event and will be distributed during the day. The clinic is offered as a service to coaches in the area, and there is no charge for the day's activities. Pre-registration is not necessary.

St. Viator's varsity football team was a co-champion this year in the Suburban Catholic Conference and was named No. 1 in Illinois for several weeks during the football season by newspapers and television commentators throughout the state.

Ford honored

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — U.S. House Minority Leader Gerald Ford, R-Mich., was the 1972 recipient of the National Football Foundation's Gold Medal Award. Ford, the 16th recipient of the award, played on Michigan's national championship football teams of 1952 and 1953.

River Trails to host senior indoor finals

The Virginia Slims tournament won't be the only women's tennis event worth watching in northwest suburbia during the next few days.

Late Friday afternoon, as the men's WCT tournament is in the quarterfinal stage at Lake Forest and La Grange and Billie Jean King's troupe prepares to descend on Chicago and Arlington Heights, about 25 of the Midwest's leading women players will congregate at River Trails Tennis Center, Mount Prospect, for the second annual Chicago District senior (35 and over) indoor championships.

With last year's champion, Margot Riester of Prospect Heights, now living in Brazil, the singles field appears wide open. Among the top aspirants are Betty Claus of Milwaukee, the 1972 Chicago District 40-and-over champion; Sallie Heidler of Oak Brook, last year's 35-and-over runner-up; Polly Hoff of Mequon, Wis.; Jackie Jones of Hinsdale, still a member of the District's top-ranked all-comers doubles team; Mary Lou McCaslin of Evanston and Kathie Henry of Hinsdale, a pair of former District champions; and two Northwest standard bearers—Marge Fink of Barrington and Rachel Kotsakis of Palatine.

A year ago Marge and Rachel were semifinalists in the District senior 40 and senior 35 tournaments, respectively.

Play at River Trails will begin at 4 starting late Saturday morning and all p.m. Friday (March 2), with doubles finals scheduled for Sunday afternoon. Mary Valiquet of Des Plaines is tournament chairman. Admission will be free.

Bradley continues sharp play

Don Bradley, a 44-year-old retriever from La Grange Park, continued to astound "A" league observers at River Trails Tennis Center this week.

Fresh from upset wins over Chuck Hawke of Wheeling and Ron Keim of Park Ridge, he added an 8-6, 7-5 conquest of Arlington Heights' Mark Shumaker to his skein.

The victory increased Bradley's record to 5-0, dropped Shumaker to 4-2 and left airline pilot Nick Zawakal (2-0) of Schaumburg and college professor Marcelo Canelas (2-0) of Evanston, both idle, far behind in the win column.

In other "A" action, Dan McCawley (1-

2), former Eastern Illinois University star from River Forest, defeated Pat Massey (2½-3½), Circle Campus player from Elk Grove Village, 6-3, 7-5; Roman Wirschuk (4-2), Oak Brook, beat Bill Wallinger (2½-½), Palatine teacher, 6-3, 6-0; Bob Olsen (3-2), Des Plaines, beat Frank Mastell (1-1), Chicago, 6-2, 6-2; and Howard Pohl (3-2), Des Plaines, beat Lew Berry (1½-2½), former University of Florida player from Park Ridge, 6-2, 6-4.

In "A-Minus" league action, Fred Gustafson (2-0), Mount Prospect, beat Len Greenberg (1-2), Elk Grove Village, and Ed Workman (1-0), Wheeling, beat Teck Carstenn (0-3), Arlington Heights.

BILLY KIDD'S SKI CLASS:

IN SMOOTH TERRAIN, TRY TO KEEP IN THE TUCK AS LONG AS POSSIBLE.

IN BUMPS, LOOSEN UP A BIT TO LET YOUR LEGS WORK THE BUMPS, BUT TRY TO MAINTAIN THE TUCK POSITION AS BEST YOU CAN.

UPS AND DOWNS

WHEN IT COMES TIME TO TURN, RISE UP TO MAKE CARVED TURNS WHICH ARE ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO DO IN A TUCK. REMAINING IN THE TUCK AND DOING SKIDDED TURNS WILL COST YOU MORE TIME THAN LEAVING IT FOR SHORT PERIODS TO COMPLETE, CARVED TURNS.

--State meets in swimming, wrestling

In the 200 and 400 freestyles, Dave Hartman in the medley and 400 free, Mike Nitch in the 200, Ray Hoffmann in diving and the 400 free relay of Rex Hansen, both Nitches and Hartman.

Elk Grove's Scott Bolin can be expected to be somewhere in the final top dozen in both the individual medley and the breaststroke. He's right behind Dunn in the "IM" and in the top five in the breaststroke, an event which the area dominates.

Of Maine North's four individual qualifiers, two are breaststrokers — Jeff Rusk and Don Polz. All told, the area has four of the top 12 times after the districts.

Rusk also qualified in the 400 freestyle. John Monaghan will be competing in the 50.

Maine West's Larry Bierwirth figures to do well in the 200 and 100 freestyles. He also is a member of the 400 free relay team of Gary Dahl, Tom Rasch and Rick Landuyt.

Ken Meyers qualified in the 200 medley for Maine East. Joining him "down-state" will be divers Tom McKervey and Glen Sedjo.

Hersey's lone entrant — diver Allen Zasady — rounds out the large contingent from the Northwest Suburban area.

A truly outstanding group of wrestlers representing 116 high schools have qualified for the 38th annual state final wrestling tournament to be held at the Assembly Hall, University of Illinois.

Sectional results indicate that a new state champion will be crowned as Hersey High School, the 1972 state champion, qualified only one wrestler for the finals at the University of Illinois. The leading contenders for this year's crown, based on the number of qualifiers, should be: Pekin with six qualifiers, two sectional champions; Moline with five qualifiers, four sectional champions; Franklin Park (East Leyden) with five qualifiers, two sectional champions; Evergreen Park and Granite City each with four qualifiers and three sectional champions; Flossmoor (Homewood-F) with four qualifiers, two sectional champions; and Bensenville (Fenton) with three qualifiers, three sectional champions.

The champion will probably emerge from this group of schools in what should be one of the most evenly matched state finals in recent years.

The 167 pound class should provide outstanding competition as two of the participants are returning place winners from the 1972 tournament — Steve Day, Normal (Comm.) and Marc Grant, Park Ridge (Maine East). Two returning champions, Mel Comisso, Sterling (H.S.) and Bob Holland of Franklin Park (East Leyden), will attempt to retain their state championship laurels at higher weight classifications. Mel Comisso, one defeat, will wrestle at 112 instead of 105, while Holland, undefeated, will wrestle at 155 instead of 145.

Representing the Herald area will be Grant and Jim Sylverne of Maine East, Kevin Pancratz of Hersey, Craig Mann of Elk Grove, Jack Horowitz of Maine North, Fred Gano of Maine West, Randy McAllister of Palatine, Steve Dolphin of Forest View, and Kent Lewis of Wheeling.

Grant, Pancratz and Mann are still unbeaten and rank as leading favorites for individual titles. Grant was third at 167 last winter, Sylverne fourth at 112, Lewis third at 138, and Pancratz fifth at heavyweight.

First-round wrestling will begin in the Assembly Hall today at 1:00 p.m. with second-round bouts slated for 7:00 p.m. Semi-finals are scheduled for Saturday at 1:00 p.m. and consolation and championship finals at 6:00 p.m.

Referees for the state final bouts are George Brown, Rock Island; Melvin Deskin, Lockport; Del Fanning, East Moline; Jack Leese, Northbrook; William C. Mann, Des Plaines; and Harold Semorian, Northbrook.

Countryside tankers split with Elgin

Countryside YMCA (Palatine) boys swimmers traveled to Elgin to win their last dual meet of the season 168-165, while the Elgin girls were victorious over Countryside 210-133.

In final preparation for the district competition, nine relay teams set new team records. Marie Spicuzza swam best with 1:15.8 in the prep 100-yard individual medley and Leslie-Belt clocked 37.5 in midget 50-yard backstroke.

Other team records were established by Mark Smith, Junior 200-yard freestyle, 2:25.5; Jim Ahern, Junior 100-yard freestyle, 1:03.5; Gary Gunderson, Junior 100-yard backstroke, 1:17; John Habenicht, Intermediate, 100-yard freestyle, 57.2; Don Doumakes, Intermediate, 100 yard breaststroke, 1:24.1. Triple winners were: Marie Spicuzza, Frank Sammet, Chuck Thyfaul, and Jim Ahern.

Coaches honor league's finest

The Mid-Suburban League all-star basketball team was released Wednesday by the 12 coaches. Seven of the 16 all-stars are juniors, the largest percentage of third-year men ever chosen.

Unanimous choices were Hersey's Dave Corzine, Prospect's Tom Bergen, and Elk Grove's Ken Pollitz. Bergen and Pat Smith of Wheeling were recommended by the coaches for all-area and all-state honors.

One or three champs will reign tonight

by MIKE KLEIN

Before Saturday's sun pierces globs of atmospheric crud, the Central Suburban League will have a basketball champion.

Or three.

By no mathematical hijinks can the expanded dozen school loop have co-champs. It'll be one or three. A loner or three Co-cos.

Last year's runaway pacesetter, Maine South, can become this season's 33 per cent champion.

Indubitably nestled between Highland Park and New Trier West which may be going after each other with more than just basketballs in hand.

Whether the Central Suburban grants all honors to one or three teams will depend upon tonight's score at 7 Hupp Road in Northfield.

If host New Trier beats Highland Park there, those two plus Maine South will end conference play at 11-2. Proving absolutely nothing.

(Post Script: Niles East is not capable of beating Maine South, tonight's other "important" game.)

Highland Park won the first go-around, 74-69 on its own court. But it's surprising how many North Division coaches like New Trier in tonight's rematch.

Like absolutely everybody that was contacted, Glenbrook South's Steve Pawer couldn't be reached.

But starting with Maine East's Paul McClelland, the other North Division coaches talked like this:

"New Trier is just a sounder all-around team," said McClelland who has lost twice to each contender. "The key is that they'll shut off (league leading scorer Bob) Santini.

"You shut him off and you're going to win the ballgame. We did it and were ahead until we couldn't hit a free throw or shot from the side," McClelland said.

"They're just too much Santini and he's not that tough to stop."

Now a few words from Glenbrook North's Dan Perry, the middleman in this lineup of New Trier cheerleaders:

"I think they're emotionally up for this one. They got caught a little down at Highland Park," Perry said.

"I kind of believe there's a lot of feeling on the coaching staff. I think Mel Sheets personally wants this game."

Like East's McClelland, GBN's Perry commented about Santini. "They want to shut him off. I think the term is 'They're going to discourage him from going down the middle.'"

Last of the coaches in New Trier's corner is Maine North's Jerry Nelson. Like Perry and McClelland, he also lost twice to these basketball battleships.

"Highland Park just caused too many turnovers in our ballgame to look like a divisional champion," Nelson said.

"We didn't attribute too much to the turnovers. And let's face it, they could have had a flat ballgame against us."

"But they weren't very impressive rebounding against us either," Nelson said. "They should have dominated the game but didn't."

Nelson also talked of a psychological advantage for the New Trier Cowboys.

"They've had more pressure ballgames lately. They had to beat Glenbrook North last week." Accomplished by 55-43.

"Highland Park hasn't had that pressure lately," Nelson said. "They could be a little lackadaisical, a little flat."

As for the insurgents, Highland Park's Chuck Schramm says, "We've got our piece of cake. Now they've got to get theirs."

And Sheets: "The pressure works both ways."

In other games, Niles West will be at Maine West to decide second place in the South Division. Both clubs enter the game 4-4 in league play. Niles won 76-47 in the first meeting.

Third place of the North will be settled between host Glenbrook North and Maine East. The Blue Demons needed two overtime to prevail, 65-64, the first time around.

Maine North has the easiest possible target to shoot at for its potential only Central Suburban win in two years of

At Elk Grove Bowl

In the Pin Gazers League the Should-of-Beens had high series and game in the Feb. 14 competition with 1760 and 649. . . . Judie Dunne had high series for the week with a 514 which included games of 182 and 183. . . . Other fine scores were rolled by Marilyn Neville 510-185; Sharon Harrod 508-193; Ruth Lancaster 480-177; Ardell Bleatman 479; Pat Chew 193; Muriel Majewski 192; Marilyn Walsh 180; Marcia Christie 182; Mary Ann North 180; Joan Buenschoen 178; Marge Homola 174; and Bea Nehlsen 172.

In the Feb. 21 action the Ding-a-lings rolled a 1727 series and the Rolling Stones a 617 game in the Pin-Gazers. . . . Top scorers were Marlene Jacobsen 541-187; Nancy Pomrenberg 522-200; Diane Sanders 508-184; Marilyn Neville 482-199; Ardell Bleatman 480; Muriel Majewski 482-172; Marlene Jones 480-177; Barbara Conroy 471-184; Sharon Harrod 473-179; Marilyn Walsh 179; Joann Seales 178; Ruth Lancaster 176; Glenns Dombrowski and Verua Roberts 174.

varsity playtime.

The Norsemen (4-12) go to Glenbrook South, owner of two wins and 10 losses. GBS' Titans prevailed 77-45 in the opening matchup.

Hapless Deerfield, loser of seven straight, will host Niles North while Niles East plays at Maine South.

About the scoring race:

It's a thing of the past. Highland Park's Santini is a virtual clinch winner. Should Santini get his average 22 points tonight, Maine West's Joe Thimm needs 39 and Glenbrook North's Ted Govedarica 41 to catch him.

If Santini gets 15, Thimm needs 32 and Govedarica 34. A 10-point effort from Santini and Thimm needs "only" 27, Govedarica 29.

Should the absurd occur and Santini be held scoreless at New Trier West, he'd still win the scoring title if Thimm scored less than 17 and Govedarica less than 19.

Weekend predictions: Hitting four and missing two last week means 43-11 for the season, a still okay 79.6 per cent.

In tonight's biggest game, we like New Trier West by five to eight points over Highland Park.

Under other roofs, Maine South 60 over Niles East, Niles West five over Maine West, Glenbrook South five over Maine North, Niles North 10 over Deerfield and Glenbrook North five over Maine East.

As wrestlers earn Champaign tickets

Sectional title matches had many thrills

by MIKE KLEIN

Twenty-four tedious hours after Tony DiGuida pinned Evanston's Son Nguyen to open the Wildcat-hosted wrestling sectional, he trotted to the white, blue and orange center mat again.

A great roar exhaled from the crowd of anonymous watching hundreds, most of whom were equipped with sore backs from two already long sessions.

The roars, however, were not so much for Ridgewood's DiGuida as Fenton sophomore Walter Dye, the little Bison who bounced like a flyweight but tackled like Butkus.

DiGuida vs. Dye.

That was the first of one dozen much awaited title matches. In all, the crowd watched 31 Saturday night bouts that pared off the excess state meet pretenders.

A dozen consolation matches were held simultaneously in Beardsley Gymnasium. Results there necessitated seven second place wrestlebacks.

The fillet mignon of this tournament came none too soon for a crowd that was unexplainably smaller than Friday night's showing.

That opening session had extended well into Saturday morning. Eyes sagged, pencils slowed and four-letter words flourished.

As wrestlers fell aside by the dozens Saturday afternoon, spectators followed suit. So when DiGuida met Dye at 7:30 p.m., there were seats to be had.

Those wrestling faithful who managed to survive despite no concession stand and well hidden relief stations saw excellent wrestling.

A very few matches were boring defensive showdowns. But that's a credit to rather than criticism of the skills exhibited.

Maine East trackmen win

by LARRY EVERHART
Track and Field Editor

A good preview of things to come.

That was provided by the Maine East indoor track invitational Saturday, which drew six area squads to the Demons' fieldhouse. It was the biggest indoor track event in this area so far in the young season.

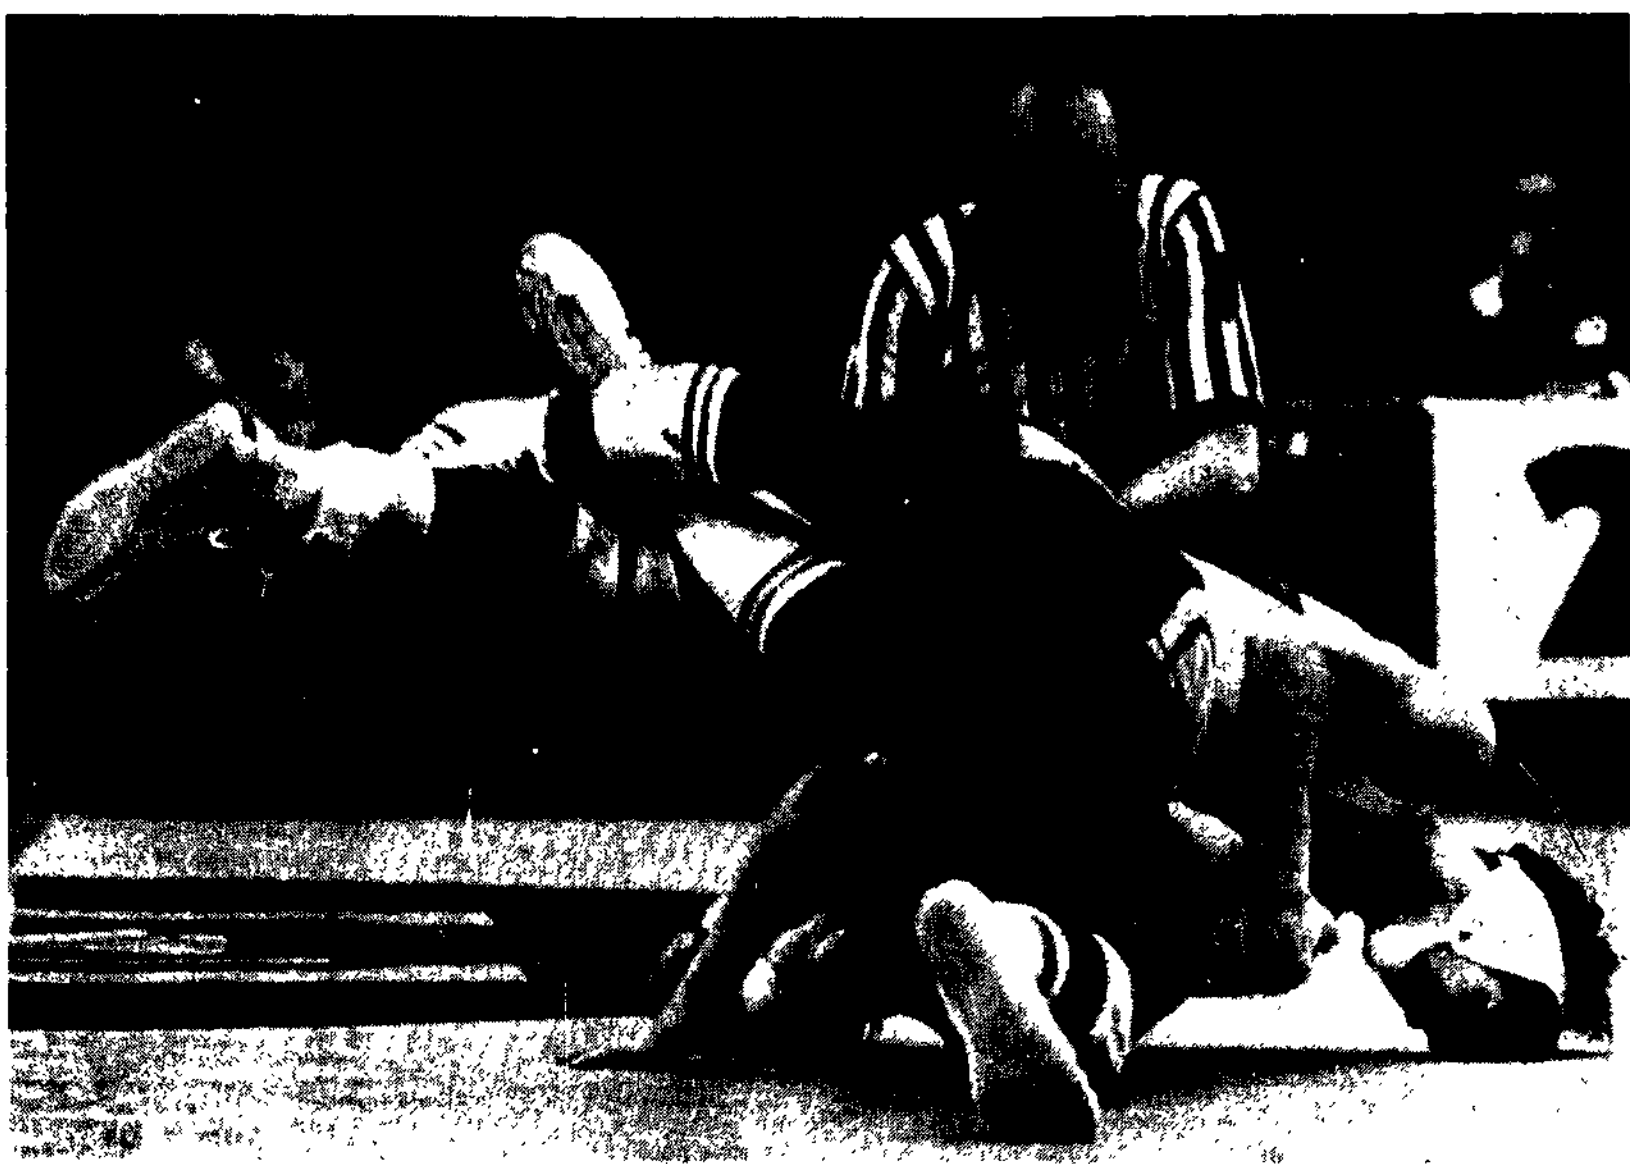

The meet demonstrated that Maine East, Palatine and Fremd will as usual field strong teams once the outdoor season unfolds a little more than a month from now. These three squads pretty much dominated competition in all but one event, staging quite a dogfight.

Maine East finally won by a margin of 10 points, benefitting from victories in both relays events. Palatine took the runner-up position, just two points in front of cross-town neighbor Fremd. Far behind were Rolling Meadows, Arlington and Maine North.

The meet was exceptionally well-balanced among the top three teams, with no individual getting more than one first. Doug Tucker of Maine East was top point-getter with a first and second.

The Demons won by virtue of winning six of the 13 events. Palatine grabbed three firsts and Fremd two. Maine East also had the most seconds, five, to Palatine's four and Fremd's three.

Tucker's 52.4 in the 440-yard dash was Bout-by-bout, the Evanston sectional ended like this:

90 POUNDS

The large Fenton contingent that journeyed from Bensenville had plenty to cheer about during the opening two minutes of Dye vs. DiGuida.

Their tough little hero moved to a 2-0 lead over DiGuida with a takedown 15 seconds into the match.

Both wrestlers worked to low positions almost immediately. Dye got his takedown with a move to DiGuida's back.

Two predicament points moved Dye to 4-0. DiGuida cut that deficit in half at the 48-second mark with a reversal.

But he controlled Dye for only 40 seconds before Fenton's smallest Bison reversed for a 6-2 lead. He was trying to turn DiGuida over for a pin when the buzzer sounded.

Dye went down to open the second period. The only points came when he reversed DiGuida with 15 seconds remaining for a very safe 8-2 lead.

Dye's second pin opportunity went awry midway through the third period. But he was awarded three near fall points and held an 11-2 margin.

DiGuida's reversal with 30 seconds showing ended the scoring.

Maine North's Jack Horowitz got by North Chicago's Dale Johnson 7-4 in the consolation match. That necessitated a wrestleback which Horowitz won from DiGuida, 2-0.

105 POUNDS

The score was closer but the result the same. Fred Gano won again.

Gano of Maine West defeated Notre Dame's Vito Vee 10-0 for the Ridgewood district title. He did it 7-3 for Evanston sectional honors.

Vee never led Gano although he lost a good chance at a first period single leg takedown that could have provided a 2-0 lead.

Instead, it was Gano up 5-0 after two periods. Following a scoreless first two minutes, Gano exploded for a reversal and near fall that switched all the momentum his way.

Vee's only points came when he escaped early in the third period and came on for a takedown. Gano reversed Vee with 37 seconds left to pick up his seventh point.

Vee won his all-or-nothing second place wrestleback, 3-2, over Hersey's Kurt Weisenborn.

112 POUNDS

If this match had ended 35 seconds early, Maine East would have two title winners to advertise in Champaign.

Just that much time remained when New Trier West's Mickey Rossetti scored a takedown over East's Jim Sylverne that gave him a 5-4 victory.

It was Rossetti's second takedown of the final period when he tallied four points. Sylverne could manage just two escapes after earning a first period takedown.

A penalty point awarded Rossetti in the second period proved critical to Sylverne's title hopes.

119 POUNDS

For nearly two periods, winner Craig Mann of Elk Grove could do no right. Then loser Lonnie Parker of North Chicago did everything wrong.

"Twice in the second period and once in the third, Mann was awarded penalty points when Parker illegally locked his hands."

The first two infractions cost Parker one point apiece. The third cost him two points and gave Mann a 5-4 lead. Parker had led, 4-1.

Mann made it an honest victory when he escaped for a 6-4 lead, then took Parker down at the final buzzer to win by an additional two points.

It just wasn't Parker's night. He was later pinned at 5:48 by Deerfield's Dean Sherman in second place wrestlebacks.

126 POUNDS

All the important action of this match occurred during 40 seconds of the opening period.

It began when winner Dan Cysewski of Glenbrook South scored a takedown over North Chicago's Artis Frank at 1:35. Frank got away but he was back underneath again at 0:58 and trailed 4-1.

The second period was scoreless and dull. Cysewski reversed for a 6-1 lead to open the third stanza. He maintained Frank on the mat until 10 seconds remained, the loser getting away for his final point.

132 POUNDS

It was easy all the way for Niles North's Bruce Zimmer who breezed to an 8-0 title victory over Palatine's Randy McAlister.

But that's okay. McAlister is still a state qualifier.

Zimmer moved to early control when he grabbed onto McAlister's left leg with about 40 seconds of the first period remaining.

A takedown followed almost immediately and Zimmer was near the evening's first pin when the buzzer sounded. Three points awarded for a near fall gave him a 5-0 lead after two minutes.

He got another near fall in the middle period. Only an inability to move McAlister's left arm aside prevented a pin. There was no third period scoring.

138 POUNDS

More Fenton power here. Tom Perry recorded his third consecutive shutout (4-0) after an opening match pin. He was easily the weight's best wrestler.

Perry's title match victim was Prospects' Randy Cherwin who had won three times before meeting his equal.

It was a costly evening all the way around for Cherwin. He lost 3-0 to Wheeling's Kent Lewis in wrestlebacks, dropping completely from the state picture.

Perry had a 2-0 lead over Cherwin after only 17 seconds. One pinning combination went for naught when Cherwin worked off the mat.

Cherwin was down to open the second period. Perry easily dominated but couldn't score.

They switched roles to open the final two minutes. But Perry reversed after only 16 seconds. Still, he could do nothing further with Cherwin.

145 POUNDS

After a slow opening four minutes that had Forest View's Steve Dolphin leading 1-0 on an escape point, winner Hank Altenburg of Lake Park erupted for six third period points and a 6-2 win.

CSL basketball

CENTRAL SUBURBAN BASKETBALL
Varsity Only

Friday

Maine East at Glenbrook North
Highland Park at New Trier West
Niles North at Deerfield
Niles East at Maine South
Niles West at Maine West

Altenburg reversed for a 2-1 lead that swelled twice as large with a predicament.

Dolphin got away for his final point. Altenburg effected his only takedown with about one minute remaining.

He delivered tremendous punishment to Dolphin those final seconds, hauling him around by neck and shoulders much as a small child tosses around a stuffed panda.

Dolphin bounced back one hour later to decision Maine East's Scott Vaughan 3-1 for second place and a Champaign trip.

167 POUNDS

Although he got a spirited battle from Barrington's Tom Cooke, highly regarded Marc Grant of Maine East was never in serious trouble while posting a 5-3 victory.

Twice, Cooke lifted Grant's right leg. But neither time could the Barrington Bronco do anything further as Grant's superior power was the equalizer.

Still, Grant did not appear sharp or overly aggressive — "hungry" might be the word — in winning his 32nd bout against no defeats.

Grant led 2-0 after one period and 5-0 following the middle minutes. Cooke scored an escape and takedown in the final period.

Cooke needed a 16-6 wrestleback win over Arlington's Steve Frankovic to earn Champaign rights.

185 POUNDS

No other wrestler, not even teammate Dye, received louder ovations than did Fenton's Gary Siebert, an 8-4 winner over Waukegan's Doug Richards.

A strong candidate for state honors, Siebert acknowledged his fans with a wide display of teeth plus raised right arm during the awards presentation.

Siebert never trailed Richards although the pair were tied 2-2 and 3-3. Siebert's decisive points came with a takedown as 45 seconds remained in the final period.

Leading 5-3, he was a quick recipient of three more points for a near fall. Richards escaped with one second left.

HEAVYWEIGHT

The crowd finally got a pin. It took Hersey's 250-pound Kevin Pancratz only 77 seconds to flatten out Glenbrook North's 280-pound Chuck Haley.

Pancratz led 4-0 at the time, having recorded a takedown and predicament before flattening Haley for good.

In a second place wrestleback, New Trier East's Ken Steward needed just over three minutes but he also stuck Haley.

Deadline nears for

Maine-Northfield

Maine-Northfield is issuing its last calls for young men 16-18 to play ball in the area in the new Big League program.

Young men 16-18 who live north of Dempster and south of Euclid-Lake (including the Willows and Timber Trails), and west of Sherman and east of Route 83 are eligible. They will be assigned to teams representing communities within these boundaries.

Anyone interested in joining the league is invited to call 299-1285 for further information.

Sports Shorts

Jean 4th in USA

Jean Killhoffer of Buffalo Grove has recorded the fourth best performance nationally in the 100-yard dash while competing in the National AAU Junior Olympic track and field program.

An effort of 11.2 seconds gave her fourth place in the category for 14-15 year olds.

Bondeson, Illini in win

Former Maine East All-State basketball player Mark Bondeson played a key role recently when the University of Illinois junior-varsity defeated Chanute Air Force, 117-80.

Bondeson scored 23 points and pulled down 21 rebounds as the young Illini finished their season at 6-5.

Illini freshman Dennis Graff of Gibson City broke the school's underclass scoring record by hitting 44 points against Chanute.

Kentucky JVs troubled

The University of Kentucky junior-varsity cagers have had their problems, winning only twice in 10 games.

But one of their strong performers has been former Wheeling cager Roger Wood, a 6-11 center. He's averaged 9.4 rebounds and 12.7 points for the Wildcats.

Wood also has two varsity points in one appearance.

Knights drop indoor meet

York, always a state power in track, had little trouble with Prospect in an indoor meet, topping the Knights 48-11.

Prospect managed just one first place and one second. Mark Turay won the 440-yard dash with :57.4 and Mike Skelton was second in the 40-yard low hurdles with :5.7. Turay was also third in the long jump with 18-6 and Skelton was third in the 40 high hurdles with :5.9.

Prospect will host Conant in a dual meet Monday.

Cougars claim No. 1 in track

Conant's indoor track team picked up its first victory in its third meet of the winter, winning a triangular meet at Niles East. The Cougars of coach Joe Mortimer totaled 61 points to Niles' 55 and Dundee's 20.

Five of the 13 events resulted in Conant wins — Scott Clark's 11-foot pole vault, Russ Windholz's 48-4 shot put, Dave Elderkin's 2:12.0 800-yard run, Warren Rodie's :57.1 440, and the 12-lap relay team's 4:13.2. Members were Bob Everly, Rodie, Lennie Olson and Dan Kosrow.

Jeff Brandl picked up a pair of seconds in both 60-yard hurdles events with :8.4 in the highs and :7.8 in the lows. Other runners-up were Doug Paape in the vault, Charley Redinger in the shot, Kosrow in the 440 and John Bond in the mile.

Fenske stars in Big Ten

Former Fremd gymnast Greg Fenske has been one of the few bright lights in an otherwise dismal varsity season at the University of Illinois.

The defending Big Ten parallel bar champion, Fenske recently recorded a 9.3 against Michigan State. The Illini, however, lost their seventh dual meet in eight tries, 158.65 to 140.30.

Triplet in at Florida A&M

A former player with the Northwest Travelers of the Continental Basketball Association has been named head basketball coach at Florida A&M in Tallahassee.

Alac Triplett moves down from Western Michigan University where he has held assistant duties. Triplett performed with the Travelers when they were based at Prospect High School.

IHSA taps six officials

Six basketball officials from the Herald area have been given Class AA regional assignments by the Illinois High School Association.

Alan Otto of Elk Grove Village will work the Maine West regional. Gene Kelly of Mt. Prospect will be at Downers Grove North. John Katzler, also of Mt. Prospect, will be at Rockford Auburn.

Elk Grove's Larry Peddy and Des Plaines' Steve Zebos will work the Niles West regional. Ed Curtin of Hoffman Estates will officiate at Wheeling.

Fitness for oldsters

At the Northwest Suburban YMCA each Wednesday from 11:30 a.m. until noon you can find about 25 Golden Agers doing their jogging, walking, bending, stretching exercises and enjoying themselves.

This program is offered free as a community service to any Golden Ager who would like to keep up with the times. Classes are under the direction of Dottie Koelling and registration must be made at the desk.

Winners in Zebco fishing

Four area fishing enthusiasts will be receiving a Zebco 33 reel plus a quantity of Stern line after winning their respective categories in the Zebco FishAmerica program.

Mrs. Linda Kunkle of Schaumburg won by catching a seven-pound, nine-ounce steelhead. Des Plaines fisherman John Warnstedt won after submitting a five-pound walleye.

Schaumburg's Mike Berkson captured honors for Wisconsin channel catfish when he landed a 20-pound, nine-ounce catch. Palatine's Robert Lueder won with a 12-pound, four-ounce brown trout caught in Illinois.

He skates for Hamline

David Bekter of Palatine is playing varsity hockey for Hamline University in St. Paul, Minn. Just a freshman, Bekter is a graduate of Fremd and now studying pre-law at Hamline.

'Y' boys swim to win; topple Indian Boundry

The powerful Northwest "Y" swim team was too strong for the Indian Boundary team Saturday in a meet at Downers Grove.

The boys posted a lopsided score of 222-93.

They got off to a fast start by dominating the relays and continued their dominance in the individual events as first place finishes constantly eluded the losers. In addition to establishing 16 new pool records, the swimmers posted many district and state qualifying times.

CADET 8 and under — 1st 100 yd. medley relay, Jay Takata, Jay Rossiter, Richard Behnke and Dennis Fitzsimmons (1:19.3); 1st 25 yd. freestyle, Jim Wilcox (17.3); David Mitchell (17.9); 2nd 25 yd. butterfly, John Sersen (21.4); 1st 50 yd. freestyle, Richard Behnke (36.4); 1st 25 yd. backstroke, Jay Takata (18.7); 3rd 25 yd. Jim Wilcox (25.9); 1st 100 yd. freestyle relay, Scott Rossiter, Richard Behnke, Dennis Fitzsimmons and Jay Takata.

ST. THOMAS WINS TROPHY

St. Thomas won the trophy for the first time in its history when it defeated St. Joseph 31-20 in the final game of the tournament. The Trojans, coached by Coach Mike Smith, were led by forward Kevin Weaver, who scored 10 points, and guard John Foster, who scored 12 points. St. Joseph, coached by Coach Mike Smith, was led by forward Kevin Weaver, who scored 10 points, and guard John Foster, who scored 12 points.

The Trojans used a balanced scoring attack to take leads of 10-0 at the quarter mark and 18-0 at half. St. Joseph's defense was not able to stop the Trojans' attack, and they were forced to shoot from the free-throw line.

10 years ago...

Palatines Mike Clump won the state wrestling championship at 103 pounds. Pirates' Seth Norton (133) and George McCreery (154) were in runner-up spots. Arlington's Hal Sellick took third at 180. Arlington's Doug Rice finished sixth in the 400 free freestyle at the state swimming finals. Al Allen was named head football coach at Arlington, replacing "Bus" Ormsbee who resigned after 12 years as the head man.

16-year-old to compete here in Virginia Slims

Kathy Kuykendall is only 16, but the Miami teen-ager is beginning to make a name for herself on the Virginia Slims women's tennis circuit.

Playing in the qualifying round of the $25,000 Virginia Slims tournament in Indianapolis last week, Kathy — who became the youngest pro in the history of tennis Jan. 25 when she announced her decision to play for pay — followed in the footsteps of Florida's sensational Chris Evert — vaulted onto the national sport scene by handing France's no. 1 woman player, Francoise Durr, a 6-2, 1-6 upset.

Miss Durr currently holds the ninth spot in world ranking of women's professional tennis. Margaret Court of Australia, former Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion, won the first four Virginia Slims tournaments on the 1973 tour. With Billie Jean King, biggest woman money winner of all time, she ranks as the world's best.

As a result of her stunning victory over the highly regarded Miss Durr, Miss Kuykendall earned the right to compete in the championship bracket of the Indianapolis Slims and go after the $6,000 first prize. However, the young Floridian, probably still jittery over her surprisingly easy triumph over one of the world's top women pros, lost her next match.

Miss Kuykendall, Mrs. Court, and Mrs. King will be in Chicago next week for the $25,000 Virginia Slims of Chicago tournament here. Early round matches in this year's Slims tournament will be played at the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, 1350 Northwest Highway in Palatine, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Quarterfinals, semifinals, and finals will move to the Lake Shore Racquet Club, 1320 W. Fullerton Ave., on Chicago's near west side, starting Wednesday night. The 10-court Lake Shore Racquet Club, one of the newest indoor clubs in the city, has a 2,500 seating capacity, and will be the site of the finals Sunday, Mar. 11.

The winner of this Virginia Slims of Chicago tournament will pick up a $6,000 purse — which would buy Kathy Kuykendall a lot of bobby pins should she win it all in her rookie year debut.

Alphonse the game 3-29. Forward John Martin and guard Chris Plank played exceptional games, defensively. Martin grabbed 11 rebounds and scored seven points. Plank accounted for numerous errors on the part of Alphonse and stole the ball from the opponents several times. Plank also contributed to the balanced scoring attack with six points. McKinnis was high man with 11 points and six rebounds. Weaver had six and guard John Foster added six points and hauled in five rebounds. Hays and Litzinski took scoring honors for St. Alphonsus with 18 and 10 points each respectively. Theresia hit 10 out of 11 from the field.

The winners St. Theresia's 10th of the year and the first seventh grade title for the school. Quincy North Tournament. St. Theresia faced St. Helen's of Chicago's west side in the opening round of the Quincy North tournament and had a very close win, 30-28. Theresia used a full court press in making its early 18-6 lead after the first quarter of play and adding 16 more in the second and third to lead it half 34-11. The Trojans and used their third point in the second half.

Martin and McKinnis lead the Trojans with 11 and 12 points respectively. Foster had a great evening as playmaker and Weaver and Plank showed out defensively. Guard Mike Summers took over for Foster after he had fouled out and proceeded to hit 3 of 4 baskets from the field. The win sends Theresia against physical opponents, conception on Thursday. If the Trojans win 16, they must then face the top rated seventh grade team in the entire Chicago area, in Friday at 7:30 p.m. Washington Junior High from Maywood would be an interesting match up for Theresia.

When the 10 public school teams from the far North Shore arrive to the Northwest side to meet this area's best seventh grade product in an exciting match up. Such was the case Tuesday night at Saint Heart High School in Rolling Meadows, as the St. Theresia's and Saint Junior High of Wilmette played an even battle. But when the final buzzer had sounded St. Theresia had won their first game 21-21.

Martin and the Trojans attack with 12 hauled in points. Foster had another stand-out performance in ball control. Dave Mee led all Trojans with 11 points. Litzinski moved to an early 6-0 first quarter lead, but the Trojans lost it at half 18-16. In the third quarter, St. Theresia held a comfortable 11-0 lead, but Foster didn't give up and came close at 21-21.

St. Joseph's Tournament. The eighth grade team of St. Joseph The Workers defeated Holy Rosary of North Chicago 53-42 to win a 16-team tournament staged at Carmel High School in Mundelein.

The Chargers had been forced into overtime to down a very tough Maryville team 49-48 in the semi-finals.

Brian Bagrowicz scored 26 points each in the semi-final and championship games to walk away with the tournament's Most Valuable Player award. Scott Sticker contributed nine points in the title game and played an outstanding floor game.

The Chargers upped their season to 27 wins against only five defeats.

In the 32nd St. Mary's of Lake Forest tournament St. Joseph routed Sears Junior High of Kenilworth 42-16 in a first-round game. It was an outstanding defensive performance by the young Chargers as they held Sears to only two field goals in the first half. St. Joseph scored a 21-5 halftime advantage. Marty Schuchz with 12 points and Mark Begrowicz with 10 led St. Joe in scoring.

In their next conference action St. Joseph teams will try to clinch championships on all three levels at St. Peter of Antioch Sunday, March 4.

St. Francis Tournament. Eight teams have entered the first annual St. Francis de Sales Fifth Grade Invitational Basketball Tournament. The St. Francis de Sales gym in Lake Zurich on March 5, 6, 11 and 12. Tournament director Al Ziegler has announced that two games will be played nightly starting at 6:30 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. respectively.

In the Monday, March 5 curtain-raiser, the St. Francis de Sales Eagles will duel Mother of God from Waukegan. The nightcap brings together the Jack & Frugo's St. Emily's (Mount Prospect) and St. Joseph the Worker from Wheeling.

On Tuesday, March 6 St. Francis Xavier (Wilmette) will tangle with Joe Lapcewicz's St. Raymond Saints of Mount Prospect. The first round win/loss matches two more Mount Prospect fives when the Robert Frost Rebels, coached by Frank Holan and Bob Martinski, battle St. Mark Lutheran in a game played by Kurt Bostrom.

The semi-finals will be played on Sunday, March 11 and the finals on Monday, March 12. Team trophies will be awarded to the top three teams and the two finalists will get individual trophies. The St. Francis de Sales gym is located at Route 22 and Bushong Road in Lake Zurich. Admission will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

Schaumburg tops Wheeling to end busy track week

Stamina was demonstrated by Schaumburg's indoor track team Saturday when it traveled to Wheeling for its third meet in as many days but still whipped the host Wildcats 67-42.

"We got better as the week went on," said Saxon coach Denny Garber. "I was pleased with the way we held up. I thought we might get tired with three meets in a row."

Schaumburg captured firsts in eight of the 13 events as star distance runner Arnold Jackson — last fall's Mid-Suburban League cross country champion — led the way with a pair of wins. Wheeling's Art Subrin also was a double winner.

Jackson ruled the two-mile run in 9:42.6 and the mile in 4:38.3 while Subrin was first in the long jump with 18-11 1/2 and in the 50-yard dash in 5.8.

Schaumburg had two other boys who notched a first and a second. Bob Nomenlani won the 50-yard low hurdles with 5.8 and was second in the 50-yard dash with 5.8, same as the winning time. Steve Wright topped the 50 high hurdles with 7.2 and was runner-up in the lows with 6.9.

Another Saxon runner who won was Efren Fontecha in the 440-yard dash with 55.9.

One boy from each school registered two second places. Schaumburg's Bob Cummings did so in the long jump and high jump and Wheeling's Brian Crehan did likewise in the mile and two-mile. Steve Wilhelm of Wheeling was first in the 800-yard run (2:04.1) and third in the 440.

Schaumburg performers finished 1-2 in the shot put and pole vault. Mickey Elks won the shot with 47-3, followed by Ken Jaffke's 45-2, and Bob Nathey took the vault with 11-5 ahead of teammate Steve Kropke.

Other second places were by Wheeling's John Arendall in the high hurdles and Key May in the 440, along with Schaumburg's Bob Solik in the 800.

The teams split the relays, Wheeling winning the four-lap in 1:13.6 by Subrin, May, Jeff Paulson and Bill Frank. Schaumburg's 12-lap unit of Mike Lane, Eric Porter, Fontecha and Paul Peters was first.

Schaumburg also won the frosh-soph meet, 69-39.

Saxon trackmen keep busy

Schaumburg's indoor track team stayed busy with a triangular and quad-rangular meet on consecutive days away from home last week. The Saxons of coach Denny Garber totaled 65 points, behind Elgin's 76 and was ahead of Dun-dee's six, then were third the following day with 40 points to Glenbrook North's 90½ and Niles West's 51½. East Aurora was last with 23.

In the meet against Elgin the Saxons collected seven first places, with stand-out distance runner Arnold Jackson and jumper Bob Cummings getting two each.

Jackson won the two-mile run in 9:57.4 and the mile in 4:41.4, while Cummings took the high jump with 5-8 and the long jump with 18-8½. Other winners for Schaumburg were Ken Jaffke with 46-9 in the shot put, Bob Natthey with 11-6 in pole vault and Eric Porter with 25-6 in the 220.

Porter was also second in the 50-yard dash with :6.0, Mickey Elkins was second in the shot put with 45-3 and Bob Nomellini was runner-up in the 60-yard low hur-dles with :7.0.

In the quadrangular at Niles West, Jackson again was a double winner for two of Schaumburg's three firsts. He won the two-mile in 9:55 and the mile in 4:38.4. Only other Saxon win came on Cummings' 40-8½ in the triple jump, a new event being tried experimentally this year. (It will become official next season, along with the 440-yard relay and 330-yard intermediate relay).

Schaumburg's four-lap relay team of Porter, Cummings, Nomellini and Ed Martin was second with 1:12.3. Jaffke was third in the shot put with 49-10½. Fourth went to Elkins with 48-7½ in the shot, Cummings with 19-7 in the long jump and Nomellini with :6.7 in the 50-yard low hurdles.

Schaumburg finished third on both the sophomore and freshman levels.

Arts, crafts show at Art Institute

by GENIE CAMPBELL

There are now two good reasons to visit the Art Institute of Chicago. In addition to the much talked about Renoir exhibit in progress in the Morton Wing, another show, "The Arts and Crafts Movement in America, 1876-1916," recently opened in the A. Montgomery Ward Gallery.

The exhibition of approximately 300 objects, including furniture, stained glass windows, metalwork, leatherwork, textiles, art pottery and books, with finely crafted bindings, will be on view through April 22.

This represents the first major survey of the work of the American arts and crafts movement which linked the High Victorian and World War I periods. The movement developed as a protest against the eclectic style of the 19th century and the general decline in craftsmanship that resulted from the machine age.

THE DEVELOPMENT of American arts and crafts is followed from the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition (1876), when new tendencies in American decorative arts first emerged, through the first decades of the 20th century.

Significant trends are depicted by examples of the work done by Louis C. Tiffany, the more severely designed New York art furniture, and the sturdy, simply constructed Prairie School furniture designed by such architects as Frank Lloyd Wright and George Maher.

The handwrought silver in the show features a number of pieces by Robert Jarvie of Chicago.

The exhibition was jointly organized by the Art Institute and the Art Museum, Princeton University, where the show first opened in October. After closing in Chicago, it will be shown at the Renwick Gallery of the National Collection of Fine Arts, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C.

IN THE ILLUSTRATED catalog prepared to accompany the exhibit, Robert Judson Clark of Princeton University comments, "The arts and crafts movement was principally a British phenomenon. The land of the Industrial Revolution produced the first and most decisive reaction against its own inventions.

"But the philosophy of Thomas Carlyle and John Ruskin, fortified by the tangible creations of William Morris, soon affected the continent as well as the United States. By the time of the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition in 1876, the art pottery movement had begun here and was further encouraged by foreign exhibits at the fair. In the following years there were innovations in American furniture design which reflected the reform tenets of Eastlake and the 'Art Furniture' of England.

"During the 1890s there were various American flirtations with the curvilinear aesthetic of Art Nouveau. Yet it was not until the turn of the new century that the arts and crafts movement in this country resembled anything like a nation experience. Arts and crafts societies were founded in large and small cities with periodic exhibitions to encourage fine craftsmanship and good design.

"THE TERMINAL date of 1916 is suggested not merely because it rounds out the four decades that followed the Philadelphia Centennial. In December 1916, the Craftsman, (a magazine that served as the chief spokesman for a generation of designers), ceased publication. It had not adapted itself to the genteel historicism that was invading architecture and furnishings. Then within a few months we were at war. When things again stabilized in the 1920s we were at last in the 20th century."

"The Arts and Crafts Movement in Chicago: 1876-1916" will be shown at Glessner House, 1800 S. Prairie Ave., from March 10 through April. The exhibit will complement the show at the Art Institute.

According to Robert Peters, program chairman for the Chicago School of Architecture Foundation, the exhibition will showcase the Chicago-produced crafts of this period, showing how the Prairie School architects integrated furnishings with architecture. Although many of the items were mass-produced, they had the feeling of design and craftsmanship of the handmade products.

THE EXHIBIT at Glessner House will feature objects from members' collections and will include furniture from Prairie School architects, including Frank Lloyd Wright, Drummond and Elmslie. There will also be Sullivan ornaments, Teco pottery and Kalo silver.

There will also be a special showing of furniture and ceramics by Isaac Scott, artist-craftsman who designed most of the Glessner family furniture.

Several items from Glessner House are included in the exhibit at the Art Institute. These include a chair designed for Glessner House by Charles Coolidge, a Frank Lloyd Wright chair and a desk and ceramic vase by Isaac Scott.

Glessner House is open to the public Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sundays, 1-5 p.m.

FROM VAN BRIGGLE Pottery Co. in Colorado Springs, Colo., 1906, this piece of pottery has a molded decoration of two conventionalized women in flowing gowns.

JOHN BAKOS, owner of Uncle Andy's, serves special Greek dinners to his wife, Mary Ann, and Mr. and Mrs. Coss Aiello. Bakos began hosting Grecian nights four years ago. He now schedules one on the last Monday of every month as this ethnic emphasis has caught on with area residents.

Ethnic dining

Grecian Nights set trend

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Asumi made out like a bandit Monday night at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace in Palatine.

Dollar bills spewing from her belly dancing costume, put there by male members of a pleased audience, bore witness to the success of Grecian nights in the northwest suburbs.

"Specialty nights" is a new trend underway in several area restaurants. Both unusual entertainment and cuisine, most likely ethnic, are offered as "one nighters" for a set price. And Grecian nights are catching on the fastest.

John Bakos, owner of Uncle Andy's and host of Monday's gala affair, "A Night in Athens," claims he was the first person, four years ago, to plan a Grecian night.

"POPULARITY in Greek entertainment and food is rapidly increasing," he said, adding that he was sold out for this last one two weeks in advance. The main dining area overflowed with 300 persons who were there not only to watch the floor show but also taste the Greek menu that included such dishes as Dolmades (stuffed grape leaves), Avgolemono (chicken rice soup), Souvlaki (Shish-Kebab) and Pastuchio (Greek lasagna).

Bakos now schedules Grecian nights the last Monday of every month. He experiments with different Greek musicians, entertainers and dancers who regularly appear at clubs and restaurants in Chicago's Greek Town Monday night, usually their night off, makes it easier for Greek entertainers to accept extra bookings in the suburbs.

"Most people have to go all the way downtown if they want to see something like this," said Bakos. "I bring it out to them."

A FOUR-PIECE Grecian band continually played throughout the evening and served as the backup for Asumi, female vocalist Vaso and singer Spiros Skouras, who put together the entertainment package for Bakos.

His first time performing in the suburbs, Skouras said, "I like it here. I'd like to do more things here in the northwest."

Admitting to being part Greek himself, Bakos said he tries to authenticate his "Nights in Athens" by offering an appropriate menu and even importing special Greek wine. (Ouzo is given out in small medicine cups for those brave enough to try it.)

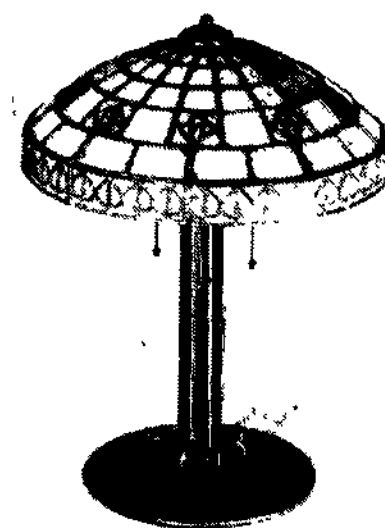

"The only thing I don't have are Greek waiters and I can't get them out here."

But no one seemed to mind that the usual American waitresses were taking orders... particularly the man at one of the front tables who borrowed his wife's finger cymbals and got out on stage and did his own belly dance. Not as sexy as Asumi... but certainly more daring.

Ladder's Chalet in Elk Grove Village also recently hosted a Grecian night. Arthur Charleas tries to plan one every three months. His next one will be sometime in April.

THE PICKWICK House in Palatine, another restaurant that has had a great deal of success with specialty nights, will be hosting a Grecian night later this month. Another hit at the Pickwick house was a "Country and Western Night" with square dancing instead of belly dancing.

The Captain's Steak Joynt, a new restaurant that recently opened on the corner of Algonquin and Route 83 in Mount Prospect, offers Greek dishes on its main menu and plans to host Grecian nights in the near future. No dates have yet been set.

DESIGNED BY DARD Hunter, ca. 1903-08, this 23-inch lamp is made with a copper base and leaded-glass shade in shades of green and pink.

FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT designed this oak dining room table and six chairs in 1906 for the Frederick C. Robie house in Chicago. It is considered one of Wright's most famous ensembles. Simultaneous shows now at the Art Institute and Glessner House feature arts and crafts in America from 1876 to 1916.

Cotton

Isaac Asimov is an etymologist and historian who has written a great many books about as many diverse subjects: The Greeks, the Egyptians, the Near East, mythology, language and semantics and even about science fiction (my favorite).

A great place to spend a Sunday afternoon is the Arlington Heights library, and there I found a book by Dr. Asimov about word origins, "Words from History." Some of his "words" we use every day but probably never think of their source (for instance, alphabet, mystery, dunce and sandwich); others are used by antiquaries but no longer have their original meaning.

The word "attic," for example, refers to the English Greek revival in architecture from the 18th century, meaning the room beneath the peaked roof of Attic style buildings. Originally the word meant all that was intellectual and cultured, and so the name was given to the style.

AS PROFESSOR ASIMOV says in his book, "Nowadays, the attic is usually a jumbled storeroom and junkpile that would horrify any truly Attic soul." I take exception with him there, because I can't imagine a more fascinating place than an attic, but then I probably haven't an Attic soul.

Some other words I found are: Antimacassars. These are the little dollies grandma placed on all her chair backs to protect them from macassar oil with which early dandies slicked their hair.

Ballyhoo means noisy rowdiness, from the Irish (what else?) county called Ballyhoo. In that place strenuous debate was often aided with fists and thrown bottles. It seems they're still going at it in Belfast.

An early Feminist, Amelia Jenks, scorned long dresses which forced women into clumsy, mincing gait, and so she invented Bloomers. She didn't use her husband's name for herself, but she did give her invention his name, which was Dexter C. Bloomer, in 1840.

CALICO is a popular word with all us quilt makers, and it was named by Portuguese explorers who found a new kind of fabric, cotton, on the southwestern coast of India in 1498. Its place of origin, Calicut, gave the fabric its name.

The word chauvinist came from one Nicholas Chauvin, who was such an admirer of Napoleon in the 1830s and praised him to such an extent that it became ridiculous. Nowadays, chauvinism means any ultranationalist feeling that upholds the glories of one particular nation and by association, it has also come to mean a person who extols the virtue of his (or her) sex.

If you have something not worth a Continental, it is because the Continental Congress tried to conduct the Revolutionary War (with notable inefficiency) and since it had little backing, the Congress printed large quantities of paper money with no real value. Continental currency came into being. (By the way, speaking of the Continental Congress, if you haven't seen it, go see "1776." It's a must for antiquaries and history buffs.)

EVERY TIME YOU eat a sandwich you commemorate a bitter enemy of our country in Revolutionary days, the 4th Earl of Sandwich. He was a staunch friend and supporter of King George III. He was also an inveterate gambler, and once during a marathon session, he ordered a servant to bring him cold meat placed between two pieces of bread, so that he wouldn't have to leave the gambling table to eat. Voilà! A sandwich!

The Dutch and English weren't the best of friends during early Colonial days in our country. Since so many Englishmen were named John, the Dutch called them by the Dutch diminutive, Janke or Johnny. Janke, or Yankee, came to mean all English from Connecticut, and eventually all Easterners. It now means all Northerners to our South, and all Americans to the English abroad.

Dr. Asimov has a couple hundred other words from history in his book, and you might care to look them over and become the star at the supper table with your knowledge of trivia. Or you might just earn a "sardonic" smile. That's in the book, too.

If you have a question, or would like your collection featured, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Padcock Publications, Suburban Living, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

The Book Stall

By United Press International
"HOW YOU CAN GET BETTER MEDICAL CARE FOR LESS MONEY," BY DR. MORRIS N. PLACERE AND
CHARLES S. MARWICK
Walker, $7.95

Despite the disagreeably commercial title, this is a sensible, straightforward advice book that will leave even the jaded reader numbed by medical horror stories.

Possibly two better titles might be: "How to live longer despite the medical profession" or "Dishonest doctors and how they prosper."

The main argument is that medical services are over-utilized to the point of foolishness and sometimes danger to the patient. The fault lies not only with the ignorance of the patient but often the cupidity of the doctor.

In the roster of medical disservices, surgery tops the list. "For some inexplicable reason, far too many normally sane individuals seem perfectly willing to hop onto an operating table and let anyone with a license . . . open them up and rummage in their interiors," the authors write.

They depict incredible routine abuses. Hospitals, they say, love to stock up on new equipment and, once bought, logic demands that it be fully utilized whether necessary or not. The patient may suffer both physically and financially.

They cite an unnamed rich suburban hospital with no cardiologist on the staff simply because a top hospital official does the readings for an extra $35,000 a year.

Here is an assessment of today's medical care more shocking than the spectre of ever-rising hospital costs.
Joan Hanauer (UPI)

Vincent Price at Harper

Vincent Price, widely known to motion picture, television and theater audiences, will read from works of American authors at Harper College, Wednesday, at 8 p.m.

He will present "Three American Voices." Selections will be from Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass," Tennessee Williams' "The Last of My Solid Gold Watches," and James A. McNeill Whistler's "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies."

Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students, with Harper students, faculty and staff admitted free with ID card.

While pursuing art studies in London, Price obtained his first theatrical role as a lark. He was brought along with the London production of "Victoria Regina" to New York, and his role as Prince Consort Albert opposite Helen Hayes made him a star overnight.

SINCE THAT time he has been a leading film, television and stage star. Price has appeared as narrator with orchestras such as the St. Louis Symphony, the Roger Wagner Choral and The El Paso Symphony.

He is also an amateur archaeologist and anthropologist as well as a major art collector and critic.

Price's appearance is sponsored by the Harper College student-faculty Cultural Arts Committee. Ticket information may be obtained at the Student Activities Office, 359-4200, extension 243.

by Tom Von Malder

"Heartbreaker" (Island SW-9324) is a solid album by Free, the British group who had a big hit with "It's All Right Now" a couple of years ago.

The group's earlier primitive sound has been modified with the addition of electric and acoustic piano that gives a full textured sound to the album.

As always, lead singer Paul Rodgers' voice is the group's best asset. He is in fine form with the title song, which borders on the majestic in parts, and "Come Together in the Morning." Free is a blues-oriented group (as were many other British groups including the Beatles) and the past is evident in "Travelin' In Style," a nice blues tune.

Guitarist Paul Kossoff, who recently left Free, aids on five of the eight tracks. His fine playing will be sorely missed if the break becomes permanent. The album should gain Free the recognition in America they have long and undeservedly been without.

Chicago-based Wilderness Road may have come up with the rock album of the year in "Sold for the Prevention of Disease Only" (Reprise MS-2125). The album is a clever and skillful blending of rock, rhythm and blues and satire.

Wilderness Road was formed in 1968 when Nate Herman and Warren Leming (both vocals and guitar) left the Second City Theatre. Brothers Tom Haban (drums) and Andy Haban (bass) joined them. Since then they have been bringing their show and music to the people and recorded two albums.

THE FOUR-PART theater-piece "The Gospel" is the new album's high point. There is a takeoff on drag race ads, radio shows and salvation religion throughout. The final part, "Heavily Into Jesus" is an exceptionally well done parody of a Jesus rock song.

"Rock Garden" has a good strong beat and shows the group can play straight-on, driving rock. Jim Horn throws in some zesty sax work to help out. Other well done songs are "Bored" and "The Authentic British Blues," which begins as a classical ensemble recital and ends with a "Wait a minute" lyric followed by a clock ticking unaccompanied.

Wilderness Road is a fun thing to get into.

With the tremendous commercial and artistic success of his "Super Fly" movie score, Curtis Mayfield has become one of the hottest soul singer writers today.

Yet Curtis has been around for some time and he's been very consistent in his work. "His Early Years With the Impressions" (ABC X-780/2) is a fine 20-song, two-record collection of Mayfield's work with that group. They were formed in 1958 and he did most of the writing and arranging, as well as lead singing.

Included here are "Gypsy Woman," "Keep On Pushing," "Woman's Got Soul" and "We're a Winner." All feature a very pleasant, smooth sound. Samuel Gooden and Fred Smooth rounded out the group.

ANOTHER NEW RELEASE, "Preacher Man" (Curton CRS-8016), shows that the Impressions by themselves have also moved into today's fuller soul sound with no problem.

Richard Tufo has taken over much of the role Mayfield once played with the group. He writes five of the seven songs in "Preacher Man" and does the arranging and production. Mayfield keeps his hand in by coordinating the album and having it released on his own label.

Much of the "Super Fly" approach has been captured by Tufo and the Impressions, particularly in the title track. It is filled with strings, horns and a female chorus such as Mayfield has used so perfectly. A 10 1/2-minute "Thin Line" closely resembles recent work by the Temptations.

The style may not always be original, but the results justify any borrowing that may have been done. The Impressions have shown they are "with" today's sound and they can perform such with quality.

Radio show tonight on women's rights

What rights does the married woman have? What rights are denied her? If she is liberated will she lose certain rights?

Women's rights will be the topic discussed on tonight's program of "Focus: Northwest," a public service discussion program over Arlington Heights Radio station WMM-FM (92.7).

The discussion of the privileges and drawbacks of being a woman will be moderated by Pat Smith, instructor of speech at Harper College. Participants will be Carol Haack, student from John Marshall Law School; Ruth Bateman, member of the DuPage County Board; and Sharon Alter, instructor of political science at Harper College.

The program will be broadcast at 8:45 p.m. and aired again at 9 a.m. Sunday.

"Focus: Northwest" is produced by Susanne Havlic for the Office of Community Relations at William Rainey Harper College in association with WMM.

Humble beginnings

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two years after its formation, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences met at a small private banquet in Hollywood to present the first Academy Awards for the films of the 1927-28 season. The date: May 6, 1929.

Attendance jumped

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Between the film "silents" of 1922 and the introduction of Hollywood "talkies" five years later, theater attendance jumped from 40 million to nearly 90 million a year.

"WHERE CAN YOU take a girl?" ponder the four executives of "Promises, Promises," Ted Weiss, Elk Grove, seated; Hal Genesen, Des Plaines; Dan Kreisman, Skokie; and Pete Piper, Arlington Heights. Scheduled next week and the following week, Friday and Saturday performances are at 8:30 and Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Many familiar faces in 'Promises'

When the curtain goes up on the Music on Stage production of "Promises, Promises," opening next week, the audience will see and hear many experienced community performers in lead and supporting roles of this melodic show of backstage corporation life and loves.

The musical will be presented in Wheeling High School theater March 10, 11, 16 and 17.

A Northwestern University speech and drama student, Greg Zhomek, of Palatine is the romantic lead. Greg has played for St. James, Des Plaines Theatre Guild and the BOB players in such roles as Conrad in "Bye Bye Birdie," Sky Masterson in "Guys and Dolls" and Tony in "West Side Story."

The female lead is Marie Peterson, Arlington Heights, who has appeared previously as Adelaide in "Guys and Dolls," Nancy in "Oliver" and Tessie in "Gypsy."

Jim Tuverson has been seen by Music on Stage audiences in "Pajama Game," "Once Upon a Mattress" and "Little Mary Sunshine." Strictly dramatic roles are not alien to Tuverson, who was Dr. Johnny in the Des Plaines Guild production of "Summer and Smoke."

MIKE WOULD, president of Music on Stage, has had a continuous and varied theatrical experience. He just finished directing a children's show for MOS, and in the fall appeared in "Fiddler on the Roof." Other MOS roles were in "Can Can," "Once Upon a Mattress" and "Forum."

"Fiddler on the Roof" also had Ted Weiss and Karen Mason as the husband-wife stars and Pete Piper as Motel. This trio have important roles in "Promises," as do Dan Kreisman and Hal Genesen, who appeared in the musical presentation "Kiss Me Kate."

Words, "oos," "ahs" and "doot-doots" come from the pit chorus, whose voices are used in an unusual manner in "Promises." These singers are: Tom Curtis, Palatine; Linda Jarvis, Hanover Park; Sue Lufkin, Mount Prospect; Ron Napier, Schaumburg; Chris Peterson, Arlington Heights; Liana Rallsback, Buffalo Grove; and Beth Wouds, Schaumburg.

Symphony will perform 'German Requiem' March 11

Northwest Symphony Orchestra will feature the North Shore Choral Society and two vocal soloists in its presentation of Brahms' "A German Requiem" Sunday, March 11, at Maine East High School in Park Ridge.

The program, with Perry Crafton conducting the orchestra, will begin at 3:30 p.m. in the school auditorium at Dempster and Potter.

Featured soloist Bette Bere is a soprano from Aurora, who has appeared with the Chicago Symphony, the Fox Valley Symphony and the Kenosha Symphony as well as the North Shore Choral Society. She also has sung on television's Artist Showcase and in lead roles in both opera and summer stock.

The other featured artist is Spence Jackson of Chicago, who has performed in world opera premieres at Tanglewood and the Newport Music Festival and has soloed with the Interlochen Arts Academy. He was a member of the Metropolitan Opera Studio and is currently in television commercial and modeling work.

THE CHORAL society, a 100-mixed voice chorus directed by Richard Rosewall, will sing an English translation of "A German Requiem," Brahms' first large work for chorus and orchestra, written between 1867 and 1868. Rosewall is chairman of the Evanston High School Music Department.

Adult tickets at $3 and student tickets at $1.50 may be purchased prior to the concert by contacting Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, 823-2293. Children under 12 will be admitted free if accompanied by an adult. Golden agers will be charged only $1.50 if they present their membership cards.

Concert pianist invited to membership kick-off

Pianist Leonard Pennario, artist for the Arlington Heights Community Concert Association's concert Tuesday evening, has been invited to the group's membership drive kick-off dinner the night before.

The dinner will be held at Faith Lutheran Church and will launch the week-long drive for subscriptions to the 1973-74 season which ends next Friday.

Drive headquarters will be in the Arlington First National Bank at Campbell and Dunton. Subscriptions are $6 for students and $12 for adults. At least four concerts are planned with a fifth a possibility, according to Mrs. Alroy F. Aschoff, first vice president.

Leonard Pennario, Tuesday's concert artist, has been a soloist with nearly all the world's symphonies, is a popular recitalist and has recorded albums that are consistent best-sellers. He has performed in all 50 states.

The concert will be at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows at 8 p.m. Those unable to attend are asked to call Mrs. Aschoff, 394-8084.

Helen Van Tempera guest artist at Tuesday's Art League meeting

Helen Van Tempera will be the guest demonstrator for Tuesday's meeting of Mount Prospect Art League at 8 p.m. in the Community Center.

Helen Van Tempera is known to art connoisseurs for her unusual wide range in style and for the vivid colors that characterize many of her paintings.

Because mood or feeling are of primary importance to this artist, she uses many approaches: semi-abstract to best show rain reflections on a city summer evening, subtle color in a foggy New England scene, bright color for the speed of thoroughbred horses, racing cars, polo ponies — impressions captured by the artist in determined brush strokes and thick palette knife areas of color. Her figure drawings in oil are described as "extremely creative in approach."

She has exhibited nationally and locally, winning awards in prestigious juried and invitational art exhibits.

Guests are welcome and memberships in the art league are invited. Further information about the League may be obtained from Robert Musser, president, CL-5-8743, or Madeleine King, membership chairman, 299-5806.

TV's Jay North at Pheasant Run

Pam Hayes

JAY NORTH, who was Dennis the Menace for six years on television, enacts one of his first adult stage roles in "BUTTERFLIES ARE FREE" at PHEASANT RUN PLAYHOUSE. The play opens next Tuesday and will run through April 1. JOAN BENNETT takes the role of his mother in the production.

The play is about a blind boy who tries to escape his over-protective mother by moving into his own apartment on Manhattan's lower east side. A "kooky" would-be actress moves in next door and when the mother arrives unexpectedly and discovers their friendship, the fight is on.

North makes his home in California. A rabid hockey fan, he arrived in Chicago a week early for rehearsals so he could see a Blackhawks game.

PAT PAULSEN will star in the Neil Simon Comedy "LAST OF THE RED HOT LOVERS" at Pheasant Run April 3 through April 29. The current production, "HERE LIES JEREMY TROY," starring GEORGE MAHARIS, is scheduled through Sunday. PAM HAYES plays Maharis' wife.

Now in the SHERATON INN-WALDEN'S SOLE MATES' LOUNGE for a month is the DAVE SHIPP TRIO. Entertainment begins at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday and 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday nights. The new Sheraton Inn-Walden is located at 1723 Algonquin Road at Illinois 53.

TERI CRISPINO has opened a 10-week engagement at the CHICAGO MAR-

RIOTT'S WINDJAMMER LOUNGE, 8535 W. Higgins Road. Teri performs twice nightly, at 10 o'clock and midnight Wednesday through Friday and Sunday, with three shows at 9 and 11 and 1 a.m. on Saturdays.

She is backed by CENTURY 21, a trio of musicians.

A Mount Prospect comedian, RUSTY RYAN, is helping to produce a record album of a RON SANTO RIB N' ROAST to raise money for such charities as the Cystic-Fibrosis and the Diabetes Association of Chicago. The fund-raising idea is being sponsored by the Entertainers Club of Chicago.

The record is a comedy album of the Santo Roast recorded live at the Sherman House. It features humorous comments from DON KESSINGER, RANDY HUNDLEY, GLEN BECKERT, CARMEN FANZONE, KEN RUDOLPH, VINCE LLOYD and comedians SONNY MARS and STU ALLEN. Those interested in purchasing the album may contact Ryan at 824-0802.

Juried show at Countryside Gallery

Countryside Art Center's juried show opens today with a reception honoring the exhibiting artists from 8 to 10 tonight. The show continues at the gallery, 414 N. Vail, Arlington Heights, through March 28.

The 55 pieces in the show were selected from more than 400 pieces submitted by 94 artists. As in the past Countryside hired jurors from outside the gallery who would have the respect of the artists. They were Dennis Adrian, a free lance art critic, and Richard Gray of Richard Gray Gallery in Chicago.

Each piece submitted for jurying was considered separately so that not all pieces by one artist would necessarily be accepted.

After the show the work will form the basis for Countryside's sales and rental gallery.

DISILLUSIONED AND HARD, Judy Castaldi, "The Heiress," turns away from her fortune-hunting suitor, played by John Schile of Wheeling.

The Des Plaines Theatre Guild production has its last performances tonight and tomorrow night at the Guild Playhouse in Des Plaines.

The accepted artists come from a number of communities in keeping with Countryside's reputation as an area gallery.

THIS SHOW will include work by Marlene Hunt, Mount Prospect; Donald Collins, Merna Larsen and Raymond G. Novacek, all of Arlington Heights; Michael Barkman and Roy Stafford, both of Palatine; Carol Karzen, Buffalo Grove; Keith Peterson, Rolling Meadows; and Joy Anderson, Des Plaines.

Artists from 16 suburbs, one from Huntington, Ind., and six from Chicago are represented in the show. One, Phyllis Kapp, also was chosen for a one-man show later.

Opening at the same time as the juried exhibition is a showing of crafts featuring potters Don Johns and Dale Raddatz.

Second time at Arlington Park

Hugh O'Brian on busman's holiday

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Hugh O'Brian is not the first repeat performer at Arlington Park Theater (centerfold personality Burt Reynolds has appeared there twice already), but he is the first actor to admit he plans to come back again... and again.

O'Brian opens tonight in "The Desperate Hours".... "A spine-tingling drama that will scare the hell out of a person because of its reality" is how the self-assured television star describes the play. "It is something that is happening around us everyday."

Comparing it to the macabre murders and kidnappings making daily headlines, O'Brian tells a bit about the play... how an average, middle class family suddenly becomes helpless and terror-stricken when two escaped convicts take over their house.

HE WON'T SAY much more for fear of giving away the plot.

It's been just over a year since O'Brian was in Arlington Heights to star in the comedy "A Thousand Clowns." At that time he was overly enthusiastic about his TV series, "Search," then in its final preparation before being aired.

While he doesn't shy away from discussing the program, he waits now for someone else to mention it first.

"Search" has had a lot of problems," he admits. "We're on our third producer looking for the key to make the series more humanistic. But I think the writing is better now and so is the casting."

HUGH O'BRIAN

"I won't know until the end of March if it will be renewed for another season, but frankly I don't care. I have so many other things going."

ONE OF THOSE things going for O'Brian includes another television series which he won't divulge until he learns of the "Search" fate.

Right now he's too busy concentrating on "Desperate Hours".... "one of the most exhausting shows I have ever done," he said. "Just physically it's bad. In-the-Round there is no way of faking anything," he adds referring to a scene where he is forced to sleep his son.

"I play the father, a much different role from what I've ever played before."

In deciding upon "The Desperate Hours," O'Brian said that he and producer David Lonn were looking for a play that had meaning to it, but would still be more entertaining than its immediate predecessor, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

"THERE IS MORE audience identification with 'Desperate Hours.' It's entertaining but not just a piece of fluff," he continued.

Considering himself "part of the family" over at Arlington Park Theatre with the interest of the theater at heart, O'Brian mentioned that his engagement here might become an annual event.

If he does return, he'd like to do some Neil Simon, either "Plaza Suite" or "The Prisoner of Second Avenue."

"Coming back to Chicago is like a busman's holiday for me," said the actor, who grew up in Wilmette. "I get paid well and I also get to see all my friends." (He doesn't forget to add that the Wirtzes, who own the Blackhawks, are his very best friends.)

"THE FUN OF MY career is the variety of things I do," he continued, "from super sleuths like in 'Search' to comedies like 'A Thousand Clowns.' It's a great business, it really is. No business like Hugh Business.... Ah, I'm going to have to remember that one."

O'Brian, who was forced to use a cane in "A Thousand Clowns" because of a knee injury suffered while making the pilot film for "Search," is still nursing that leg although a small limp is now visible.

An operation to correct the injured ligaments was performed Jan. 4.

"I knew I had to have the operation. It was only deciding on the timing."

The operation came on the heels of the last filming session for "Search".... In time to be out of the hospital, even though still in a wheel chair, for the Super Bowl.... on crutches for the Inaugural Ball.... and off crutches and ready to begin rehearsals for "The Desperate Hours."

Without a hint of modesty he added, "Joe Namath and I have a lot in common. This is just one."

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: My husband has wash-and-wear shirts and they seem to lose their body after a certain number of washings. Is there a way to put body back into these shirts and still have them remain wash-and-wear? —Mrs. George Weber Afraid not, Mrs. Weber. The polymerized treatment makes the fibers stiff and repeated washings soften them, although there is no loss in the wash-and-wear qualities. A laundry executive explained it this way: Crush a stiff piece of paper repeatedly and then straighten it out. Do it a dozen or so times and it will be limp. Same thing with these shirts, he said. But give thanks. The wash-and-wear quality alone is a great plus, isn't it?

Dear Dorothy: Mrs. T.C.K. may have meant well, with her tip for pipe smokers that they can clean the things with a paper clip in such places as a doctor's office. But I am appalled at her assumption that a doctor's office is a natural place for pipe smokers. And I am surprised that you tumbled for this and went along instead of gently pressing for smokers to be humane and abstain from contenting themselves in such close quarters. There is nothing worse than being cooped up in a doctor's or dentist's waiting room with smokers. —A Ritz Fan

You have an excellent point. If I'm insensitive, it's because I have grown used to a house with pipes all over the place.

Don't you mean a cold room — not cool?

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Epner

Cheryl Irene Stein and Paul L. Epner met at the University of Illinois when Cheryl was a freshman and Paul a sophomore. Their wedding Feb. 10 fulfilled a promise made to each other years ago to marry as soon as Cheryl graduated. She speeded wedding plans up by accomplishing that goal in three and one half years.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Stein, 510 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights, Cheryl is a '69 graduate of Arlington High School and a February '73 graduate of the University. She is employed part time at Max McGraw Wildlife Foundation, Dundee.

Paul, a '72 graduate of the University, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Epner of Park Forest. He is employed by Antioch Upper Grade School, Antioch.

The couple were married in a 5:30, double ring and candlelight service in the Stein home and greeted 150 guests at 7 at a buffet reception in Old Orchard Country Club.

THE NEWLYWEDS honeymooned that weekend at the Regency Hyatt House, and in April will spend eight days in Spain. Meanwhile, they are residing in a Grayslake apartment.

For her wedding Cheryl chose a white Empire gown of satin faced organza. Peau d'ange lace edged the high neckline and formed a V on the bodice. Bands of satin bound the lace on the bodice and followed down the A line skirt and satin covered buttons trimmed the lace-edged band from neckline to ruffled hem. A chapel train was also trimmed with the lace, and a white satin Camello headpiece completed her ensemble.

She carried a nosegay of white baby roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and carnations.

Patrice Stein, Arlington Heights, was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Susan Evans, Danville, Ill., and Gloria DeVacht, Rock Island, Ill., both Delta Delta Delta sorority sisters of the bride, and Kimberly Hodges of Arlington Heights.

THEIR A LINE gowns were in burgundy velvet, the bodices overlaid with lace coming to a V below the waist. They carried lace-trimmed nosegays of red roses and pink carnations.

Flower girl was 7-year-old Carolyn Jorgenson, Northbrook, who also wore a floor-length gown of the same burgundy velvet with a lace bib coming to a V at the waist. She carried a basket of pink carnations and baby's breath.

Marc Epner, brother of the groom from Park Forest, was best man, and ushers were William Hewitt, Chicago, and the couple's brothers, William Stein, Arlington Heights, and Steven Epner, St. Louis.

Before I joined the Payroll
Savings Plan
all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.
Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Sick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

Take stock in America.
New Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Ecologists fight submarine base

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — With more layoffs coming at the Kennedy Space Center, Brevard County leaders are wrestling with an economy vs. ecology dilemma over a proposed Navy submarine base in a spaceport wildlife refuge.

The site is one of three east coast locations under consideration by the Navy for the home port for the large new Trident missile submarines.

The base eventually will serve up to 25 Trident subs and employ 10,000 persons, according to Navy estimates. The submarines, each capable of carrying 24 Trident rockets, are expected to be operational by 1978.

The Navy has refused to pinpoint the location of the proposed Cape Kennedy area site and for months it has assumed the Navy was considering Port Canaveral, a man-made port south of the Cape used by Polaris and Poseidon submarines going to sea to test-fire their rockets.

HOWEVER, WORD leaked out last month that the Navy actually was considering Mosquito Lagoon, a shallow, undeveloped Wildlife haven separated from the Atlantic Ocean by a narrow strip of beach just north of Cape Kennedy.

The land is part of 83,894 acres owned by the National Aeronautics and Space

As soon as it was learned Mosquito Lagoon was one of the proposed sites for the Trident base, environmentalists began an all-out attack on the idea.

Administration (NASA) and Mosquito Lagoon is part of the Merritt Island National Wildlife Refuge. A NASA spokesman confirmed that the Navy has been discussing Mosquito Lagoon for some time as a possible site for the sub base.

The other sites being considered are near St. Marys, Ga., just north of the Florida border, and at Charleston, S.C., home of the Polaris and Poseidon subs.

In Washington, Rep. Bo Ginn, D-Ga., said a Navy site selection team has completed its appraisal of the possible locations and forwarded its secret recommendations to Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, chief of Navy Operations.

FOR MOSQUITO Lagoon to be used, the Navy would have to cut through the ocean barrier dunes and beach and dredge the three-to-eight-foot lagoon to a depth estimated at 45 feet or greater. Port Canaveral, south of the cape was constructed similarly 20 years ago.

"Some sacrifice of the environment will have to be made if the Trident base is located here. The question is: how much?"

As soon as it was learned that Mosquito Lagoon was one of the proposed sites for the Trident base, environmentalists began an all-out attack on the idea.

They said the lagoon and its islands and marshes is a fragile wildlife habitat, a haven for thousands of shore and water birds, a prolific nursery for shrimp, crabs, game fish and other wildlife and a summer nesting ground for the giant loggerhead turtle and the rare green sea turtle.

"Site selection by the U.S. Navy of Mosquito Lagoon would be tantamount to its destruction," said Harold Wylie, president of the Indian River Audubon Society, at a recent hearing sponsored by the North Brevard Environmental Action Committee in nearby Titusville.

"Mosquito Lagoon is the last remaining extensive ecologically rich wilderness area left along the entire east coast of Florida," said Allan D. Cruickshank, nationally known environmentalist and former chief photographer of the Audubon Society.

"WHEREVER the site is to be, let it do the least environmental damage to the ecosystem as we now know it," Wylie said.

Johnny Johnson, vice president of Save Our Waterways, Inc., said, "There's no way they can say that they're not going to damage the ecology of Mosquito Lagoon. When you've cut through that sand dune, you've destroyed it all."

Leading the public effort to bring the base to the area is the Cape Kennedy area Chamber of Commerce.

"We want to improve the economic base here through diversification and strengthening, we want to improve our national defense posture and we also hope to improve and certainly protect the environment which we enjoy," said George Cone, executive vice president of the Chamber.

"WE WANT IT here, but with the understanding that if locating it here would violate the provisions of the National Environmental Protection Act, then we don't want it here."

The Brevard County Commission, the Titusville City Council, the Rockledge City Council and the Melbourne Chamber of Commerce also have endorsed the Trident base as a way to strengthen the coastal county's economy.

NASA's work force at the Kennedy Space Center dropped from 26,000 in the mid-1960s to 14,000 today. It will be down to 12,000 or less after the Skylab space station project ends this year.

In an editorial Jan. 31, the newspaper Today said the Cape Kennedy Chamber of Commerce's "decision to give tentative backing to the Trident program was not an unthinking, knee-jerk response. Can the same be said of the action of the environmentalists?"

"OBVIOUSLY SOME sacrifice of environment will have to be made if the Trident base is located here. The question is how much of a sacrifice in relation to the much-needed economic benefits?"

As far as the environmentalists are concerned, Today said, "An acre of marsh land is worth more than 100 jobs, maybe even 1,000. We don't think our unemployed aerospace workers would feel that way, nor do we think the majority of the general population hold that value."

The state of Florida has jurisdiction over the submerged lands in Mosquito Lagoon and the Navy would have to have state approval to go ahead with the project.

Gov. Reubin Askew said he would have to think "long and hard" before approving the project. State Atty. General Robert Shevin said whether the project is necessary to the national defense would weigh heavily in the state cabinet's decision on requests for permission to dredge the Lagoon.

"It is possible some equities other than conservation would be involved," he said in Tallahassee.

FLORIDA SEC. OF State Richard Stone said he had "doubts" about the project and added, "The long range economic future of Brevard County is tourism and the use of its great environment."

In Washington, Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., said the economic benefits of the base would be "particularly good" for Brevard County. But he said before the base could be located in Florida, the Navy would have to file an environmental impact statement which must be approved by the Environmental Protection Agency. Public hearings would be held and the agency's decision could be challenged in court, he said.

Gurney said he has talked with Navy Sec. John W. Warner, other members of the Florida congressional delegation and citizens groups from Brevard County in an attempt to reconcile environmental problems with the proposed location of the base in Mosquito Lagoon.

Gurney said he also has reintroduced legislation to turn Mosquito Lagoon and other government owned lands north of spaceport launch pads into the Spessard L. Holland National Seashore Park. Such a designation by Congress would prevent all development in the area.

A SPOKESMAN for Sen. Lawton M. Chiles, D-Fla., said, "The senator is very much interested in the location of the base but can't take a responsible position until more facts are in hand. We haven't seen the environmental studies and won't take a position until we do."

An aide to Rep. Lou Frey Jr., R-Fla., whose district includes the cape, said, "We must unite together to put forward our best assets but under no circumstances will one spade of dirt be turned if our environment is threatened."

Tourists play havoc with Tanzania's animals

NAIROBI (UPI) — Film containers, wrappers and other litter dropped by tourists are killing off some of the wild animals in Tanzania's Ngorongoro crater.

Bus and cars in Nairobi National Park are sometimes jammed almost bumper-to-bumper, prompting conservationist Michael Sawyer to liken the scene to "Brighton Beach on a national holiday."

Visitor impact — the effect the increasing number of tourists is having on the habits of wild animals and the terrain — is a new problem facing conservationists and government officials.

A decade ago, the number of visitors to East Africa's 16 major game sanctuaries was manageable but park tourists have increased tenfold to more than half a million. This figure will double in the next two or three years, according to tourist officials.

The results of research into this problem still are tentative, but it seems clear that change is being forced on the animals — especially the lion, cheetah and leopard.

WARDENS SAY there are often so many vehicles in the Nairobi national park around 4 p.m., the traditional hunting time for many animals, that some are prevented from attacking prey. They often go hungry.

The Ngorongoro Conservation Unit recently issued a bulletin which warned visitors: "Don't be a killer when you go into the crater. Animals are eating film packets and wrappings thrown away by visitors. You too will be a killer if you were to throw them away at any place within the conservation area."

The terrain, too, is suffering from the visitor influx.

Experts say each time the wheels of a tourist bus cut through natural grasslands in search of game, it will take one month for the grass to recover. If another vehicle uses the same track, it will take three months.

A third time and track is probably permanent. Eventually, the area may become a dustbowl, denuded of grass and animals.

It seems probable that in the next few years governments will restrict the num-

Czechs keep white deer under wraps

PRAGUE (UPI) — The great blue-eyed white deer is alive and well in eastern Bohemia. But you can't see him.

At the Zehusce game park, 50 miles east of Prague, Czechoslovak officials are protecting what they believe to be the world's last herd of white deer.

The public is kept out of the park near the town of Kutna Hora in eastern Bohemia for fear of frightening or bringing disease to the sensitive animals.

White deer were first brought to Europe in 1780 by Count Thun, a minister under Austrian Archduchess Maria Theresa. Thun shipped four animals from Persia (now Iran).

Only two deer survived the trip, and when the size of the herd failed to grow sufficiently the white animals were cross-bred with red deer in order to regenerate their blood.

Because the white deer had blue eyes, authorities determined that it was not albino which has red eyes and cannot form pigment and, therefore, must stem from red deer.

Over the years, the size of the pure white wavered from reasonably strong to dangerously weak.

TODAY, THERE ARE several dozen white, 10 spotted and 20 red deer in the Zehusce park herd.

Authorities recently started a campaign to boost the white herd's strength and numbers again.

A veterinary official at the Forestry Research Institute who asked not to be identified, said the herd would soon be separated — to avoid the possibility of it dying out through disease.

The red herd will be taken to another park and, whenever a white deer is born, it will be separated and strengthened for further breeding.

"From the point of view of genetics, our research with the white deer will be very interesting," the official said.

"But, as it is the only herd of its kind in the world, it is part of the program of the protection of nature and environment to safeguard its existence."

Officials trying to keep up the white deer numbers face problems that even laymen can well understand.

Last year a big white stag was shot because he was suffering from an unbearable toothache.

Whooping crane . . .

Alive and fairly well in Texas

by DON OAKLEY

ROCKPORT, Tex. — Long before ecology became a household word, Americans were aware of, if not especially concerned about, the struggle for survival of something called the whooping crane.

Standing as high as five feet, its black-tipped wings stretching seven feet, crimson-crested Grus Americana, the whooping crane, is not only one of the Western Hemisphere's most magnificent birds, it has become today almost the living symbol of our belated realization of how much of our natural heritage we have lost, and how much we are in danger of losing.

If the whooping crane can make it, maybe there's hope for a lot of other things.

From the razor's edge of extinction in 1941, when the official count found only 15 of the birds, the whooping crane has staged a remarkable comeback.

IN THE WINTER of 1971-72, 58 whoopers were counted at Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on the Gulf Coast below Houston, having successfully made the annual 2,600-mile migratory flight from northern Canada across Saskatchewan, the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

This winter, however, the number spotted amid the salt marshes and tidal pools of the refuge dropped to 51, the greatest setback since the counting began. What made it worse was that five of the 51 were juveniles, meaning that a total of 13 adult birds were lost in one year. What happened to them remains a mystery.

There may never have been any great population of whooping cranes, although it is known that as recently as a century ago they ranged over much of North America. As man settled the continent, their habitat and numbers shrank. Many were shot, even after they came under international protection in 1916.

The 47,000-acre Aransas preserve was established in 1937, administered by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

In 1967, conservationists began to assume more than a passive guardianship of the cranes.

STUDIES BY Canadian biologists had shown that the number of young cranes reaching Aransas each year averaged only about one-fourth of the number of eggs laid in the birds' vast nesting grounds only 400 miles south of the Arctic Circle. It was decided that one of the two eggs usually laid in a clutch could be removed without affecting the wild population and be hatched at the Fish and Wildlife Service's Endangered Wildlife Research Station at Patuxent, Md.

Including birds in zoos in New Orleans and San Antonio, a total of 21 whooping cranes are in captivity. Studies are continuing on the possibility of raising chicks and introducing them as adults into the wild flock.

Aransas is not just the winter home for 51 wild whooping cranes. Some 320 species of birds and 37 species of mammals are found there, several of them on the rare or endangered list.

There is something else at Aransas, deep underground. Oil.

CONTINENTAL OIL Company had obtained leases on the peninsula as far back as 1934. When the government bought the surface rights and established the refuge in 1937, an agreement provided for the company to continue exploration and drilling. Production began in 1947 and has continued since then.

Conoco's operations, which are invisible to visitors to Aransas, are the least of the potential dangers threatening the whoopers and other wildlife, if they are any threat at all. Production is entirely computerized and fail-safe. Employees have been instructed to put environmental protection before petroleum.

According to Jerome J. Pratt, secretary-treasurer of the Whooping Crane Conservation Association, greater hazards are the extensive waterfowl hunting on the perimeter of the refuge, the encroachment of vacation cabins near the birds' feeding territories and boats plying the Intercoastal Waterway, which slices through the area within viewing distance of the whoopers.

Had there been a pickup of eggs from wild nests in Canada each year since 1967, this year's loss of birds would have been greatly offset, says Pratt.

The collection program is a means of obtaining a "bonus crop" of young birds, he explains. This is because the chance of a pair of whoopers rearing one chick from one egg appears to be much greater than doing the same with two eggs. When two chicks hatch they both die more often than not, while a single chick has an excellent chance for survival.

The chance for survival of Grus Americana itself remains far from excellent, but compared to 20 or 30 years ago, the outlook is hopeful.

And if the whooping crane has become symbolic of man's concern for the wild creatures that share an increasingly industrialized world with him, the oil well has become symbolic of man's fear of his own technology.

The successful co-existence of the two at Aransas National Wildlife Refuge thus also gives cause for hope.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Ngorongoro Crater in Tanzania.

Experts predict they will become little more than "open zoos" unless something is done shortly to check the tourist flood.

One suggestion here is that ditches be built along the recognized park roads to deter vehicles from driving onto virgin grassland.

Professional hunter Ishamel Kimani also would like to see all hunting lodges removed from the parks themselves and located on the fringe of the sanctuaries.

"When man moves into an area permanently, the animals move out," he said. "And where you have game concentrations such as around waterholes, this is where developers want to put their lodges."

KIMANI WOULD restrict visiting hours in the park and discourage the smaller private cars in favor of larger minibus type vehicles capable of carrying more people with less disruption than a stream of autos.

The people boom has its positive aspects. The tourist dollar has added much needed muscle to depressed African economies.

Growing visitor interest in wild animals also has convinced governments that the species are worth preserving since a live zebra is worth more to the country as a tourist attraction than dead as meat.

The problem facing government officials and conservationists in the next few years is to try to find a delicate balance between the tourists and the continent's wild animals.

I would like some facts on Bobby Sherman and Chad Everett. I heard that Bobby was married and had a son. Is this true? Please print a picture of one of them.

A.N.

Arlington Heights

Bobby Sherman

Bobby kept his marriage a secret for a long time and it is true that he is the father of a little boy, Sherman, who initially achieved stardom as a singer, became immensely popular with TV viewers as a co-star in the HERE COME THE BRIDES series. He made his acting debut in a guest role on the FBI.

A native of Calif., Bobby's birthdate is July 22, 1947. His special interests center on his music—he tries to practice on various instruments two or three hours a day—his recording studio and home movie production.

A man of many interests, Chad has known since high school that he wanted to become the best possible actor. That he has succeeded as is evinced by his portrayal as Dr. Joe Gannon on MEDICAL CENTER.

Of Scotch and English descent, Chad was born in South Bend, Ind., on June 11, 1937 as Ray Crampton. Everett has not only made a name for himself in TV, but also in motion pictures. Some of his movies include "Made in Paris", "The Singing Nun", "The last Challenge" and "Return of the Gunfighter".

On May 22, 1966, he married actress Shelby Grant. They now live on a seven acre ranch with their two daughters. Though Chad is presently devoting his time to drama, some day he would like to do a musical. He has done a little bit of recording and also published a book of poetry.

Could you please tell me how old are Rock Hudson and Susan St. James of "McMillan and Wife"? I really like their show and I hope that it stays on next season. Is Rock married? If so, to whom and how many children does he have? I'd appreciate it if you would print a picture of Rock in TV Mailbag.

S.H.

Mt. Prospect

Rock Hudson

Rock, 47 has not been married! He values his privacy and personal friends very highly, but is devoted to his fans and public. "I like people," he says, "but I don't like talking about myself." He does enjoy camping, reading, playing bridge and skiing.

His co-star, Susan St. James is 26 and married. The show is enjoying substantial ratings, but at this point who knows what the revised fall schedule will bring?

Would you please print a picture of Lori Saunders? Where may I write to her? Please tell me something about her.

C.H.

Arlington Heights

Lori Saunders

Born in Kansas City, Mo. on Oct. 4, 1941, Lori moved to Sacramento, Calif. with her parents at age three. While still in her teens, she entered and won several beauty contest. It was by winning the Miss Sacramento title in 1960 that she attracted the attention of a talent agent, who was so impressed by the face, figure and poise she exhibited, that he made it his mission to persuade her to go to Hollywood and have a try at the acting game. Lori did this and in 1965, she landed her role as Bobbie Jo in Petticoat Junction.

Lori has appeared in many TV commercials, performed on drama and variety shows and in a couple of motion pictures. The actress is married to talent agent Bernard Sandler and they have two children—a boy and a girl. This past year, Lori was in a pilot, "Oh, Nurse." You may write to her in care of 20th Century Fox, 10201 W. Pico Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90035.

The music from the movie has been recorded. Check with your local record store. The theme song is "Tin Soldier."

Could you please print a picture of Alan Alda? Can you give me some information about him and include where I can write to him?

J.P.

Des Plaines

Alan, alias Hawkeye on M*A*S*H, was born on Jan. 28, 1936 in New York City. His first brush with the theatre came at the age of 16 in summer stock. His junior year at Fordham took him to Europe where he performed on the stage in Rome and on TV with his father, Robert.

For a time, Alda was a regular on THAT WAS THE WEEK THAT WAS. He also has an impressive record of stage credits. His first motion picture came in "Gone Are The Days", in which he recreated his stage role from "Purlie Victorious". An actor who becomes deeply involved with the personalities he portrays, Alan learned to play football, mastered the piano, and even saw life from inside prison walls—all for research for his roles.

Alda and his wife Arlene, a concert clarinetist, have three daughters. Send letters to him in care of CBS-TV, 51 W. 52nd St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

For example, even if you're not a driver, your insurance company is already giving you a lower rate for a car. So why not get the Aetna All-Driver Plan? It's the best way to get the best.

Had a couple of fender benders in the past few years? No problem. You could still save. The All-Driver premium may be less than other insurance companies could ask.

"Sports quotes"

Joe Garagiola reminisces about those days gone by

Joe Garagiola, an ex-major league ballplayer, recalled some of the more humorous sports quotes of the year during a recent broadcast on the NBC Radio Network. His remarks follow:

"As we do every year, we're going to take a look...at some of the better sports quotes of 1972.

"After Colorado's basketball team beat Oklahoma State, 83 to 62, State's coach, Sam Aubrey, was asked how he slept following the game. Said Aubrey, 'just like a baby. I would sleep an hour, then wake up and cry for an hour.'

"Fraser Scott is a middleweight boxer who has had what we might call 'acheckered career.' He was asked if he had ever been threatened with harm, and he said, 'not yet. But I'd like to say right now that if I meet accidental death, it wouldn't be accidental.'

Joe Garagiola

"There's a difference, sometimes, between the way a ball player looks playing against your team, and how he looks when he's playing for your team. The Milwaukee Brewers made a deal for first baseman George Scott, then saw Scott's batting average drop down around 150. At that point, General Manager Frank Lane said, 'Scott used to scare me to death when he wore a Boston uniform. Now he just frightens me.'

"Gerry Cheevers, the hockey goalie, played in a golf tournament, and was asked how he was doing. Cheevers said, 'I'm one under...one under a tree, one under a rock, one under a bush...'

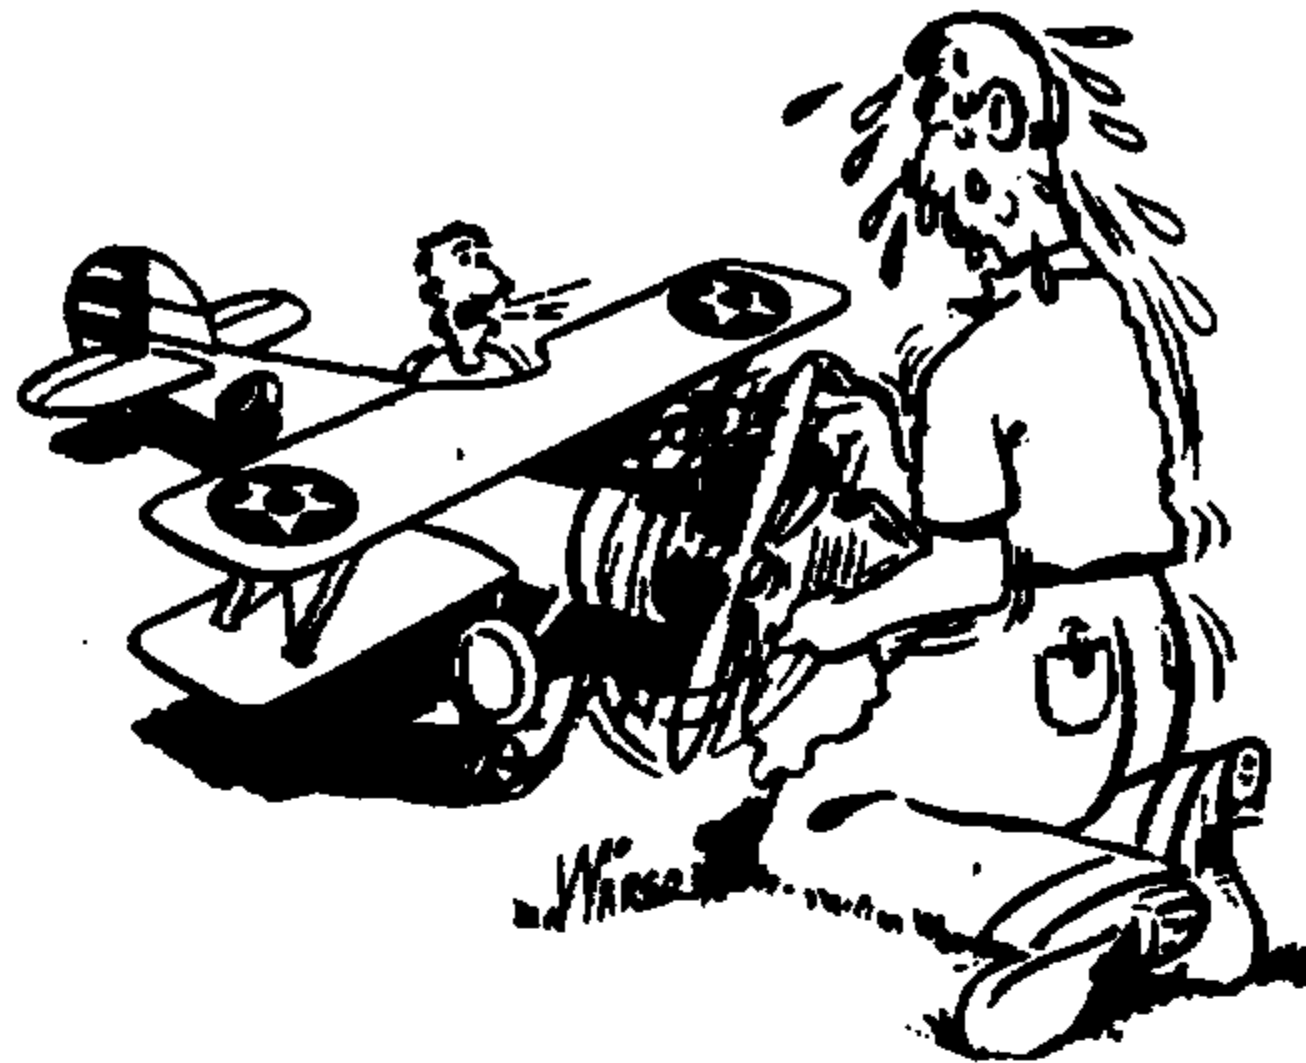

"It's the habit of referees to check with guys who are going to receive kicks if they have any trick plays they might use. When a referee checked with O.J. Simpson on his plans, Simpson said, 'Well, I'm going to catch the ball at the goal line, I'm not going to get any blocking, and I'm going to get my clock cleaned at the ten yard line.'

"When I was playing baseball, I once learned that part of my scouting report said that I had deceptive speed. I was slower than I looked. Well, Rice basketball coach, Don Knodel, described one of his slow players by saying, 'He has difficulty getting to where he knows he ought to be.'

"Red Auerback, who does have a tendency sometimes to sould like a charm school dropout, attended a luncheon of the greater Boston Chamber of Commerce. He began his remarks by saying, 'Let me start by saying that this is not quite the honor, my being here, that you think it is. I haven't had too much regard for the Chamber of Commerce during my years in Boston.'

"And Don Rickles has the nerve to call himself Mister Warmth."

HAVING TROUBLE?

"Come on, Pop - Get it started! The RED BARON is getting away,"

We know the story, you received a nice looking "Cox Stuka," "Cox Dune Buggy" or maybe a Testor's "Cosmic Wind Trainer" for Christmas or your birthday. Or maybe you sold newspaper or magazine subscriptions to get it and there it sits in your closet or basement because you couldn't get the engine started. Dig it out and bring it in to our shop and we'll show you how to start it "Free," regardless of where or when it was purchased.

that laughter, crying

Sid Caesar

The inspired waggery of Sid Caesar returned once again to television.

Over the past 23 years, since his phenomenal television career began when he starred in "Broadway Revue," Caesar's lightning wit and flair for improvisation have managed to keep him a favorite with audiences. Recently, when "Ed Sullivan presents the TV Comedy Years" aired on the CBS Television Network, Caesar made one more of his hilarious appearances.

Caesar, the comedian with the malleable face who is remembered as the star of television's "Your Show of Shows," "Caesar's Hour," "Sid Caesar Invites You," the motion-picture extravaganza "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" and Broadway's "Little Me," presents some cogent truths when he speaks of comedy.

"Comedy is the same release as crying," he says. "If you have too much tragedy, it starts to turn to comedy. Comedy that comes into the home has to deal with life. That explains the preponderance of domestic-situation comedy."

Recently Caesar established his own production company. With the primary aim of rejuvenating comedy, the company is involved in many aspects of entertainment.

"I think comedy has a place in American entertainment," he says. "During the past few years we seem to have forgotten how to laugh. We take ourselves too seriously. So I'm doing what I can to put the laugh back in life."

IN NEW MUSICAL—Susan Hampshire (as Isabel Danvers) shares the spotlight with Kirk Douglas (shown as Dr. Jekyll) in "Timex Presents Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," the new musical version of the Robert Louis Stevenson classic, which will be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Wednesday, March 7.

How do you transform Kirk into a Mr. Hyde? Simply remove cleft!

How does Kirk Douglas effect the transformation from sympathetic Dr. Jekyll to destructive Mr. Hyde in the new 90-minute musical version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde?" "With as little make-up as possible," said the versatile actor.

Douglas, in his dual role in this new production of the Robert Louis Stevenson classic, shares the stage with a roster of top British players, including Susan George, Susan Hampshire, Stanley Holloway, Donald Pleasence and Sir Michael Redgrave. The special, "Timex Presents Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," will be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Wednesday, March 7.

To portray the maddened Hyde, Douglas uses a bit of cotton in his nose, some cotton packed under his lips and (in the finale) an opaque false eye. He is unshaven as Hyde and wears his hair in a scraggly manner, letting it fall beneath a top hat. The cleft in his chin is filled in for the role.

Said Douglas: "I think the challenge of being Hyde can be met without the use of grotesque make-up. Physical movement, facial expressions and the use of the voice can underscore Hyde's personality. To me, bizarre make-up is unnecessary."

Letting life happen

George Maharis wandered onstage and extended a hand. It didn't seem to be the most relaxed of moments for the guy that TV's past chronicles as the star of the late "Route 66" series. That same actor whose widely acclaimed role of "Jerry" in "Zoo Story" on the New York stage won him a screen test for the film "Somebody Up There Likes Me"...which finally lead to his role as Paul Newman's brother in the Otto Preminger production of "Exodus."

"Relax" can be a big word to one treading the waters of limbo that TV's cancellation stamp churn up.

SITTING ON THE edge of a couch the actor who grew up in the "Hells Kitchen" district of New York talked about the future in parable form.

Seems he had a friend once that couldn't quite bring himself to accept what he really was...the son of a very rich man. This "friend" planned a somewhat devious route to stardom in the film world. One that would keep his bank balance a secret.

Finally, according to Maharis the guy gave up the "plan" and began to live what he was. "He was in his late 30's when he decided, 'the hell with it,'" George related. "He took the money and was going to start producing pictures...put himself in the business. A year and a half later he was dead-----cancer. He wasted all those years."

THE ACTOR WENT on to say that he had learned from this experience that life is best when you don't map it out.

"Look at Mr. Nixon," he grinned, "eight years ago he said, 'That's it...you'll never see me again.' Now, we look up and there he is."

The alternative to "planning" in this man's words is, "hanging loose...doing what excites you."

THE FIRST ITEM with the actor would have to be live theatre. In the past year he made his musical-comedy stage debut in "Company." "It's great to do a well-known play. Like being in a house with friends...comfortable. People have heard about it and are eager to see it."

Then there is the more adventurous side of Maharis. He took the zany comedy he was doing at present as a topic of conversation. "Here Lies Jeremy Troy" has never been done on Broadway. I like people who have the guts to try something new and different. I'm still finding my way around in the comedy thing," he said in reference to the fact that his past credits have been mostly in drama. "You can't fool me on drama, but doing this....well, I need somebody to say, Hey that's too much or Hey, that's not enough. But, it's fun. You don't have to worry about everything matching."

An actor with a paint brush in his bag, George was one of three artists who executed the ceiling murals for New York's Lunt-Fontaine Theatre. Asked for a comment on the egg tempera murals he joked, "There's like 500 dozen egg yolks up there....so if you're hungry some morning..."

A SMILE FLASHED through the dark eyes when I mentioned singing. "I'm on my way to Acapulco to sing after this engagement. You know that's the way I started out. Now I have more time for it."

Still single he is..."Sure I'm looking for a girl. But, looking is the wrong word. Look for what? Look where? He threw up one hand. "In the market, like a can of food? Anyway, it's no good to look. Some of my best friends are the people I liked least when I first met them. I leave myself open to people. Whatever happens...happens. Wherever it takes you...it takes you."

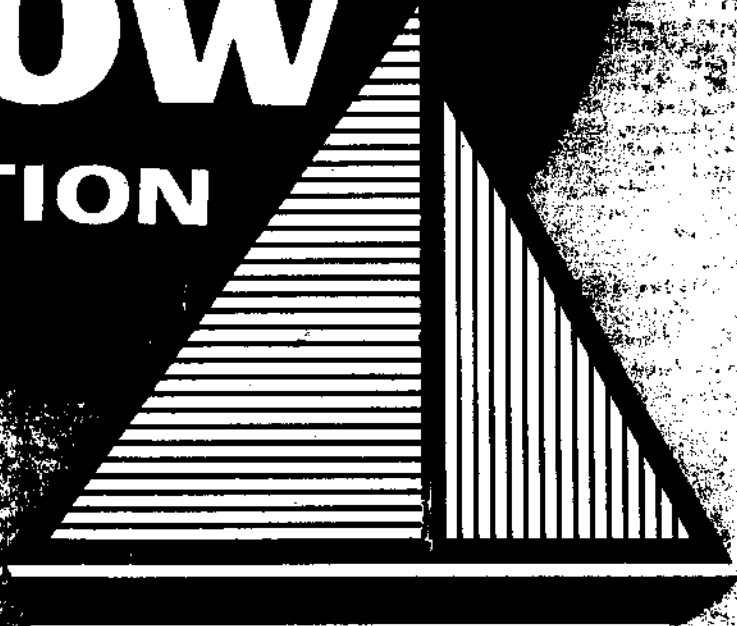

So, actor George Maharis is alive, well, and living life as it happens...his way. "You never know what tomorrow holds," he said. Then walking away he shot back one last comment, "There is one thing I hope to do. Work in theatre till I'm 60 and then paint for the next 25 years."

Why will tax bills be late? The answer is twofold

by ROGER CAPELLINI
and BOB LAHEY

This is a multiple-choice story about late tax bills, a Cook County phenomenon which occurs perhaps seven out of 10 years. Check one:

(A) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because the chief judge of the Circuit Court failed to fill a vacancy on the Board of Tax Appeals.

(B) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because computers in the Department of Local Government Affairs (LGA) were unable to compute figures which used to be done by clerks.

If you checked (A), you were half right. If you checked (B), you were half right.

When County Board Pres. George W. Dunne announced last week the property tax bills would be at least one month late again this year, various sources attributed the costly delay to John Boyle, chief judge of the Circuit Court.

The watchdog Civic Federation, however, said the LGA has to shoulder some of the responsibility.

WHEREVER THE responsibility rests,

the resulting cost to county taxpayers, in the form of interest on tax anticipation warrants, will be an estimated $2 million.

The Civic Federation has estimated the warrants will cost almost $35,000 a day to the City of Chicago, Cook County, Chicago Park District, Forest Preserve and Chicago City Colleges. The cost to the several hundred other county taxing bodies, it has been estimated, will at least double that amount.

Judge Boyle's part in this year's version of the almost annual tax mess stems from his failure to name a successor to George Keane on the Board of (Tax) Appeals for almost two months following Keane's resignation Dec. 1.

Finally, in late January, the judge appointed Seymour Zaban to be post. In the meantime, however, the board fell far behind in its task of hearing thousands of appeals filed by dissatisfied taxpayers.

THE COMPUTATION of tax rates and tax bills cannot begin until the board of appeals has completed its work.

Cook County political observers have claimed the judge's delay in making the appointment, charged to him by law, resulted from disagreement within the Democratic Party over who the successor should be.

Judge Boyle was not available for comment.

The second share of the fault this year goes to the LGA for its inability to provide the county clerk with figures on the assessment of capital stock by March 1.

The LGA is charged with determining the value of state service corporations — such as utilities and insurance companies — over and above the tangible assets of the company.

Those figures also are critical.

A spokesman for the LGA admitted partial responsibility for the late tax bills. He said the LGA has encountered serious problems in the computer system used to determine capital stock assessments.

A second spokesman for the LGA has estimated the work will not be completed until the end of March. The county clerk needs about 30 days in which to compute the tax rates and bills after receiving the information from the LGA.

That timetable apparently coincides with Dunne's estimate the tax bills will be mailed May 1, with the first installment payment due June 1.

But, Dunne said, there may be additional delays if further problems in the billing procedure occur.

Di Vincenzo hits Hawthorne housing project

Michael Di Vincenzo, superintendent of School Dist. 102, told the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission Wednesday night that he thought the proposed 124-acre Hawthorne Development, as planned, would place a severe financial burden on the school system.

The development, which will house from 3,500 to 4,000 persons and could bring as many as 700 children into the school district, was being discussed for the second straight week by the commission.

Di Vincenzo said the school board is in debt and is not equipped to handle the additional students.

BECAUSE OF THE current tax lag which averages about 18 months, no tax funds will be immediately available to the school system to handle the additional students.

"We're concerned about the tax lag," Di Vincenzo said. "Potential money is no good to the school district." Although not opposed to the project, Di Vincenzo said he was concerned about where the needed money would come from.

Art Gingold, of B. A. Berkus Associates, architects for the project, pointed out that the developer had donated 16 acres of the site for construction of a school and park. "I think we've made a significant contribution. I don't think it's economically feasible for us to do anything else," Gingold said.

DI VINCENZO THEN replied, "The land is fine, but when those kids walk in the door in September, that land doesn't do us any good without a building." He said the school district cannot afford to build a school.

Gingold suggested that the developers, the Tekton Corp. and the Richards Group, continue meeting with the school board in an attempt to find a solution favorable to both sides. The public hearing before the plan commission on the project is scheduled for Wednesday.

If annexation is approved by the village board, the development will be located to the northeast of Aptakisic Road (Welland Road) and the Lake-Cook County line.

It will contain 1,232 privately owned townhouses, apartment condominiums and quadrooms. The development will house 9.9 families per acre which is within limitations set in the recently adopted village master plan.

Although plans for water retention have not been completed, the developer told the commission the facilities would be within village specifications. Gingold said flooding probably would not be a problem because none of the structures would be built in the flood plain.

THE DEVELOPMENT will have a centrally located recreation area and a five-acre commercial site.

Although not part of the development, a parcel of land due west of the project will have to be annexed with the other land to make it contiguous with the rest of the village. The developer said the owner of the parcel has agreed to be annexed.

Gingold said the developer plans to meet with officials of the Vernon Township Rural Fire Protection District to discuss fire protection in the development. Commission member Evan Fadar said at last week's workshop meeting that he was told "there is an acute shortage of fire equipment in the area."

BUELL PORTER, director of choral at Baylor University, showed students in the Wheeling High School choral program how to hit the high notes this week during a visit to the school. Porter's visit was financed by the Wheeling Choral League. During his one-day visit to Wheeling, Porter worked with all the school's choral groups.

Principals named for two schools

The Dist. 21 school board has approved two new principals for the Walt Whitman and Mark Twain schools. However, officials are not sure who will head what school.

The two, Jack Cushman and Richard Klaslow, are two of three new principals hired by Dist. 21 as a result of the opening of two new schools, and the shifting of administrators within the district.

Earlier this year officials hired David Staton to replace Steve Stavrakas as principal of Riley School in Arlington Heights. Stavrakas is now administrative assistant for public and staff relations within the district.

At the same time the board hired Staton, it announced that the current Twain principal, Dennis Carpenter, will head the new Washington Irving School in Buffalo Grove, and administrative intern Bob Gerry will head the new Robert Lewis Stevenson School in Wheeling.

Officials also said Katie Samsel, current principal of Whitman School will be the district's new science coordinator in September.

CUSHMAN COMES to Dist. 21 from Houghton Lake, Mich., where he is now a sixth grade teacher. However, Cushman is not new to the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area. He was superintendent of School Dist. 96 in Lake County Buffalo Grove from 1963 to 1965.

Before coming to Dist. 96 Cushman was a principal in the Glencoe school system for six years and a teacher for nine years.

The 51-year-old Cushman received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Michigan State University and is married.

Klaslow currently is principal of Lake Zurich Junior High School. He assumed his duties as principal in that district in 1970 and for three years prior was a teacher in Lake Zurich.

Klaslow, 28, received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Northeast Missouri State College. He is married and has one child.

The new men assume duties at their respective schools at the end of the current school year.

Insight out

WRONG NUMBER? A bewildered Buffalo Grove resident was given a bit of a shock the other day when she tried to call the village hall. After dialing the old telephone number, which was changed almost a year ago, she finally reached an operator.

After explaining the problem the lady said she had a hard time believing the explanation. "I'm sorry but the party you are trying to reach has moved to Schaumburg."

ABOUT THE time. The village board meetings in Buffalo Grove are known for going into the wee hours of the morning, and people are beginning to take issue. In two separate incidents last Monday night the time element was attacked.

The first incident was in the middle of the trustees discussion on the possibility of getting a portable tape recorder to tape meetings. One trustee said the idea was fine, however, the tapes for such recorders only last two hours. Trustee Ed Fabish said, "We can always pass a motion that when the tape runs out the meeting ends."

IN THE SECOND incident Village Pres. Gary Armstrong questioned an insurance company representative as to whether an elected official was eligible for the group medical insurance offered full time employees.

The representative, who was at his first board meeting, said the plan was only for people who worked over 30 hours a week. He said, however, "I don't know how many nights a week you do this — but judging by tonight, I think you can make it."

WHERE'D EVERYBODY GO? The audience at the Wheeling village board meeting Monday night was taken by surprise. It seems everyone has gotten used to having an executive session following the regular meeting.

This week, however, when the trustees got up they went home, while the audience sat waiting for their return. Finally, someone notified the audience that the trustees had left.

Voters in Vernon Twp. must sign by Monday

Lake County Buffalo Grove residents wishing to vote in the April 3 Vernon Township election must register by Monday. Voter registration will be closed at that time and not reopened until April 5.

Voters in Lake County who want to vote in the April 17 Buffalo Grove village election can register up until the day of the election.

Illinois judges would be appointed under a "merit system" instead of political elections under a plan introduced in the Illinois General Assembly.

The world

A new dollar crisis hit Europe yesterday, sending the price of American currency down, and the price of gold up. West Germany's central bank bought more than $2 billion in a battle with speculators.

The security chiefs of Poland and Czechoslovakia were killed in the crash of a Polish military aircraft near the East German border, Police officials said.

Authorities have identified a skeleton dug out of World War II rubble as that of Martin Bormann.

The war

Vietnam peace supervisors reported four specially marked helicopters used by true teams have been hit by gunfire in the past five days. Communist officials said 136 American prisoners of war, and six foreign captives would be set free Sunday in Hanoi. The announcement came as officials signed a pact for a guaranteed peace in Vietnam.

Young people have enthusiasm, new ideas

Intern program for parks proves to be successful

by LYNN ASINOF

Bill Maher is the first student to earn college credit while working for the Wheeling Park District. But if Park Supt. Dave Phillips has his way, Maher won't be the last.

"It really shouldn't be looked at as a source of free labor," Phillips said of the intern program. "Even though that's what it is."

For while the intern is learning the "ins and outs" of park district management, he is also undertaking special projects that the normal park staff has not had time to do. In Maher's case, the special project was a study of operating costs for the indoor Neptune's Pool.

But Phillips said the extra manpower is not the only advantage in having college interns in the park district. "The advantage is in their enthusiasm, in their new ideas," he said.

Phillips first experiment in using a college student for park district management came when Rich Haddock was hired last September as a recreation director on a part-time basis.

The experiment obviously worked since Haddock has been given an increasing amount of responsibility in running various park district programs. Haddock, 24, is a student at Triton College in River Grove.

MAHER, 22 was the next experiment, and of a substantially different kind. While Haddock is paid for his work on an hourly basis, Maher receives only college credit for his efforts. Moreover, while Haddock is not working for a limited time period, the intern from the University of Iowa will spend only 15 weeks with the park district.

During his stay with the Wheeling Park District, Maher will study all aspects of the district's operations. He attends park board meetings, conducts some programs, reviews administrative functions and fills in where extra manpower is needed.

Maher reports back to the university every few weeks, but Phillips grades his reports. "He grades about 60 per cent of what I do here," Maher said.

Phillips said that while the intern and the part-timer have varying duties and responsibilities, their input into the district has several similarities.

According to Phillips, both are trying to find how a park district operates. He said both are used to looking at recreation as a field of study instead of a day-to-day operation.

"They ask a lot of questions that I haven't asked in a long time," he said. Phillips added that he thought this questioning was good for him because he has gotten out of the habit of looking at recreation from a long-range view.

"I think it's really helped me because it brings me back to the philosophy of why we're doing the things we're doing," he said.

PHILLIPS SAID, however, training the college students often takes up a lot of his time. He said the first week or so is needed for orientation. After that he said the students' efficiency improves considerably.

"But 15 weeks of their time is worth my time to spend with them," he said.

Both Maher and Haddock agreed that Phillips is a good person to work for and to learn from. "That's one of Dave's best qualities, if you ask me," said Haddock. "You work with him, not for him."

Maher concurred, saying "It's a very informal atmosphere around here. I enjoy the people in the park district."

PHILLIPS SAID he first got the idea of having interns in the Wheeling Park District from his own college experience. "It's basically because of my contacts back at the University of Iowa and realizing that it is a potential resource to us," he said.

The park superintendent said he is now hoping to have a landscaping intern from Kishwaukee College in Malta do his field work with the park district. If all goes well, the landscaping intern will work from April through August with the development and care of park district grounds.

Phillips said he has been in contact with several other universities and colleges about getting other interns for the park district. "We're looking forward to being able to give other students the opportunity to do their field work here," he said.

He explained, however, that many college students like to do their field work at larger and more prestigious park districts.

"Naturally, most of the students would rather go to a bigger district," Phillips said. "But what we lack in staff and facilities we make up for in our attitudes."

Schools to study what to do with study

The High School Dist. 214 Board will meet Monday to decide what to do with a study of administrative salaries in the district that has cost more than $15,000.

The study, conducted by A. T. Kearney, Inc., a consulting firm, recommends that the board establish a salary plan next year for the district's 101 administrators that would provide a minimum salary of $18,800 and a maximum salary of $43,600 for the superintendent.

In addition, the study recommends that the board consider raising the amount of life insurance and the mileage allowance granted administrators and suggests adopting a system of "management by objectives" to be used in evaluating administrators.

FOLLOWING A discussion of the study at this week's board meeting, members agreed to meet as a committee of the whole Monday to discuss what to do with the recommendations. The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Supt. Edward Gilbert said one thing they may want to discuss is whether to contract with Kearney to develop a "management by objectives" program.

When the board originally hired Kearney it agreed to pay $15,500 for the first part of the study and said it would decide later whether to pay an additional $3,000 to have Kearney develop a management by objectives program.

So far, Gilbert said, the district has paid $15,036 to Kearney with further billings still to come. According to a representative from Kearney, the $15,500 price was an estimate and the total cost for the first part of the study will probably not exceed $16,000.

BOARD MEMBER Jack Costello said

he was pleased with the general salary structure suggested by Kearney, in which jobs would be placed in categories with salary ranges representing levels of experience and competence. The structure, Costello said, "does permit wide latitude for experience and ability. It means we're not headed for equal pay for equal title."

However, Costello said he is concerned about several aspects of the report, including the recommendation for the specific salary ranges.

"I think the minimums set here are much too high," he said.

Board member Jack Matthews said the board should now discuss with district administrators which direction to go with the salary program.

"When we started this study," he said, "what we wanted out of it was some ideas — and we got some ideas."

'Gallery girl' bares naked truth

"What is a nice girl like you doing posing nude in a magazine like that?" That might be the question put to Kris Thornstadt by the average person.

But for Kris, an attractive 21-year-old who has lived in this area most of her life, the reason she posed for eight pages of photographs, including the centerfold, in the March issue of Gallery magazine is simple and unspectacular.

"I see it as just an extension on my modeling career," she said succinctly. The Mount Prospect native who now lives in Hoffman Estates and works in Elk Grove Village said the Gallery gatefold experience did not mark any great milestone in her life.

"It all started as sort of a joke. It took three days to shoot the pictures, and I did not get any kind of kinky thrill from the whole thing," Kris explained.

THAT REMARK might come as a disappointment for the average reader of those magazines — which offer those great literary articles and, oh yes, a few pictures — but Kris emphasized there was "no playing around during the picture session" and "the pictures were not taken during some orgy."

Kris said she eventually hopes to make modeling her full-time career, but right now she finds bartending a good way to make a living. A graduate of Northern Illinois University, Kris said she went to college so she could have a degree.

She does not look at being the Gallery Girl as opening any new doors or offering new job opportunities.

"I have done a few things, but by next month there will be a new issue of the magazine, a new centerfold and everyone will say 'Kris Thornstadt — who was she,'" Kris said.

KRIS DOES NOT share the Women's

Lib appraisal of magazines such as Gallery being debasing to females or a bedrock plank of the male chauvinism ethic.

"It is a matter of personal taste, and choice," she said, adding, "I am as liberated as I want to be. There are very few things around that I cannot do if I really feel like it."

She added, however, Gallery does not try to promote a lifestyle and image, as done by Playboy and other magazines in the field.

"Gallery just presents a magazine with articles and the pictures; they do not try to tell you what type of life to lead or what the typical reader's woman should look and act like," Kris said.

GENERALLY, reaction to Kris' pictures has been favorable, she added.

"My father thought it was great, but my boyfriend was a little embarrassed," she said. Most of the customers at her place of work who recognize her from the magazine have been complimentary, Kris said.

"But it is the two per cent who are creeps that can make things difficult," she added.

She has no great plans for the future, and the Gallery experience will probably not be anything more than a memory in a few weeks, she believes.

"I don't see myself as any type of freak. I don't think it takes any particular type of person to pose nude in a magazine," she said.

"It was just another job."

Why will tax bills be late? The answer is twofold

by ROGER CAPELLINI
and BOB LAHEY

This is a multiple-choice story about late tax bills, a Cook County phenomenon which occurs perhaps seven out of 10 years. Check one:

(A) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because the chief judge of the Circuit Court failed to fill a vacancy on the Board of Tax Appeals.

(B) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because computers in the Department of Local Government Affairs (LGA) were unable to compute figures which used to be done by clerks.

If you checked (A), you were half right. If you checked (B), you were half right.

When County Board Pres. George W. Dunne announced last week the property tax bills would be at least one month late again this year, various sources attributed the costly delay to John Boyle, chief judge of the Circuit Court.

The watchdog Civic Federation, however, said the LGA has to shoulder some of the responsibility.

WHEREVER THE responsibility rests,

the resulting cost to county taxpayers, in the form of interest on tax anticipation warrants, will be an estimated $2 million.

The Civic Federation has estimated the warrants will cost almost $35,000 a day to the City of Chicago, Cook County, Chicago Park District, Forest Preserve and Chicago City Colleges. The cost to the several hundred other county taxing bodies, it has been estimated, will at least double that amount.

Judge Boyle's part in this year's version of the almost annual tax mess stems from his failure to name a successor to George Keane on the Board of (Tax) Appeals for almost two months following Keane's resignation Dec. 1.

Finally, in late January, the judge appointed Seymour Zaban to be post. In the meantime, however, the board fell far behind in its task of hearing thousands of appeals filed by dissatisfied taxpayers.

THE COMPUTATION of tax rates and tax bills cannot begin until the board of appeals has completed its work.

Cook County political observers have claimed the judge's delay in making the appointment, charged to him by law, resulted from disagreement within the Democratic Party over who the successor should be.

Judge Boyle was not available for comment.

The second share of the fault this year goes to the LGA for its inability to provide the county clerk with figures on the assessment of capital stock by March 1.

The LGA is charged with determining the value of state service corporations — such as utilities and insurance companies — over and above the tangible assets of the company.

Those figures also are critical.

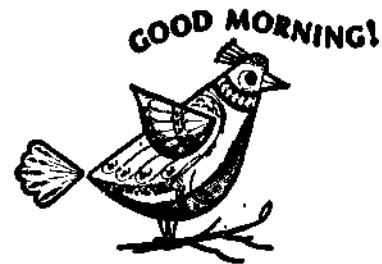

A spokesman for the LGA admitted partial responsibility for the late tax bills. He said the LGA has encountered serious problems in the computer system used to determine capital stock assessments.

A second spokesman for the LGA has estimated the work will not be completed until the end of March. The county clerk needs about 30 days in which to compute the tax rates and bills after receiving the information from the LGA.

That timetable apparently coincides with Dunne's estimate the tax bills will be mailed May 1, with the first installment payment due June 1.

But, Dunne said, there may be additional delays if further problems in the billing procedure occur.

'Superblock' backers seek zoning approval

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Developers of Des Plaines proposed "superblock" next week will ask for a hearing before the city zoning board of appeals to approve planned unit development of the project.

First phase construction, planned for next fall, will be a 10-story office building at Lee and Prairie streets and a two-story indoor shopping mall.

Project financier will be J. R. Gottlieb & Co. of 360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago. Pepper Construction Co. of 643 N. Orleans, Chicago, is expected to be project contractor.

Details of the plan, which may lead to construction of a second, twin mall and office building and a 10-story office over the Chicago & North Western Rwy. tracks, were explained to city officials in a closed meeting Wednesday night.

"We had to bring the city council up to date," James Paroubek, president of Des Plaines Redevelopment Association Inc., told the Herald yesterday. "The developer (Jerome R. Gottlieb) didn't want to walk in next week without them (city officials) having an idea in advance what would happen."

PAROUBEK TOLD city officials plan commission, council and zoning board members at the Camelot Restaurant dinner meeting that "if the developer has no major obstacles — and I don't see any — he should be under construction this year." The redevelopment group, in a similar closed dinner meeting, at the same restaurant announced first "superblock" plans Jan. 21, 1970.

"We think that by late summer or early fall that demolition (of buildings near Prairie between Center and Lee streets) will be under way," Paroubek said yesterday. The sites are owned by Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp.

"It all depends on the speed through zoning boards and the council," he said.

The city will be asked to vacate Center Street between Ellinwood and Prairie in exchange for development-owned land needed to widen Prairie into a divided, four-lane thoroughfare.

CITY OFFICIALS said the zoning board hearing may be scheduled for mid or late April, leading to May city council action.

Gottlieb is expected to head the recently formed for-profit Des Plaines Mall Corp. which will rent planned "superblock" space.

Final project plans will be completed by architects Erickson & Stevens in "three or four weeks," Paroubek said. "The actual size of the buildings will depend on the money available. This has to be a sound financial project."

City officials indicated after Wednesday's meeting that plans discussed were similar to past proposals. "The first plans were a little too ambitious," Mayor Herbert Behrel said.

"The gross built will be about the same, only now we're talking about developing in two phases," Paroubek said.

Original plans called for 64 stores in a two-story all along Prairie between Lee and Center. Plans for the proposed $10 million center, including a 40,000-square-foot air-conditioned mall and 130,000-square-foot of floor rental space, were announced in August 1969.

PAROUBEK SAID yesterday that current plans still include a 10-story office building. The structure site has been moved from near the center of the "superblock" to the Lee-Prairie corner.

Instead of the proposed 64-store mall, the developer will construct a smaller two story mall in the first phase — with 30 to 50 stores. Second phase plans call for construction of an identical mall and office building east of the first phase on former St. Mary's Church property.

Major stores along Ellinwood will not be razed in first phase construction, Paroubek said. Completion of the second phase, which will take less than two years, will lead to an open entrance mall off Ellinwood Street. Four pedestrian entrances are planned.

"The type of project has never been done privately in any city," Paroubek said. "Government money is not involved," although city parking development and widening of Prairie are closely tied to the project.

Paroubek said the "superblock" will not attempt competition with "regional shopping centers. We have many things in our favor that they can't match — the train service, city hall and banking ser-

Tavern 'patron' robs bartender of $700 at gunpoint

A Des Plaines tavern owner was robbed late Wednesday by a man who, after ordering several drinks, threatened him with a gun and fled with $700 cash, according to police.

Gus Tourlis, owner of the Rand House Tap, 864 Rand Rd., told police the man he described as between 25 and 30 years old, five feet 11 inches tall, with dark brown hair and a beard, wearing a dark three-quarter length coat and weighing about 160 pounds had come into the tavern and ordered drinks twice earlier that evening.

He came in a third time with a pistol however and fired a shot into the bar counter, ordering the patrons into a corner of the room, the owner told police.

Police added, one of the patrons, Stanley Noworolnik, 212 Holly Ln., Elk Grove Village, told the gunman to "put the gun away and stop playing around," while the bandit filled his pockets with cash register money.

The man then fled but returned about 10 seconds later, police said, and pointed the gun at Noworolnik, saying he would "put a bullet through" Noworolnik if he tried to follow him.

The robber then disappeared but police said he fired a second shot into a car in the parking lot as he ran.

Police said they were unable to recover either bullet.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

The state department said the U.S. ambassador to the Sudan, Cleo Noel, was among the foreign diplomats seized by the group of terrorists who captured the Saudi Arabian embassy. They are demanding the release of Sirhan B. Sirhan.

Sens. George McGovern and James Abourezk met yesterday with federal Indian officials trying to win the release of 11 hostages held by militant members of the American Indian Movement at Wounded Knee, S.D.

President Nixon has abandoned, at least temporarily, his search for major reform of the nation's welfare system because he said "the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage."

Leaders of a four-week St. Louis public school strike continued to feel its effects as Circuit Judge Thomas McGuire ordered one leader jailed for 60 days, and fined the teacher organization $140,000.

A criminal court judge ruled the film "Deep Throat" obscene, and banned its further showing in Manhattan.

The state

A federal court judge entered an order putting Illinois' abortion law into compliance with the U.S. Supreme Court decision. (Turn to page 10)

Clair M. Roddewig, acting chairman of the Chicago Transit Authority board, said he believed state senators would find a way to help the CTA, which may have to hike fares and cut services on March 18.

Illinois judges would be appointed under a "merit system" instead of political elections under a plan introduced in the Illinois General Assembly.

The world

A new dollar crisis hit Europe yesterday, sending the price of American currency down, and the price of gold up. West Germany's central bank bought more than $2 billion in a battle with speculators.

The security chiefs of Poland and Czechoslovakia were killed in the crash of a Polish military aircraft near the East German border, Police officials said.

Authorities have identified a skeleton dug out of World War II rubble as that of Martin Bormann.

The war

Vietnam peace supervisors reported four specially marked helicopters used by truce teams have been hit by gunfire in the past five days. Communist officials said 138 American prisoners of war, and six foreign captives would be set free Sunday in Hanoi. The announcement came as officials signed a pact for a guaranteed peace in Vietnam.

In behalf of 19-year-old

ACLU challenge on age restriction

by KATHERINE BOYCE

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) will challenge age requirements for school board candidates on behalf of a former Maine East High School student who hopes to run for the Maine Township Dist. 207 Board of Education.

Howard Blassmann, 19, of 9215 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, attempted to file a nominating petition with school board secretary Harold Markworth Wednesday. On the advice of school attorney Allyn Franke, Blassmann's petition was refused because he did not meet the minimum age requirement, 21 years.

Stuart Cohn, ACLU attorney representing Blassmann, said the statute requiring school board candidates to be at least 21 is "absolutely irrational" because the minimum age for voting is 18.

COHN CITED a lawsuit in Michigan last July that succeeded in lowering the minimum age requirement of city council candidates in Detroit from age 25 to 18. The court said there must be a "rational basis" for the age requirement, according to Cohn.

In Blassmann's case the "burden of proof is on the state legislature," said Cohn. The state must justify the age requirement. Cohn stressed that he is not fighting to lower all age requirements in all government elections to age 18, but is representing Blassmann only in this particular election. Cohn said he hopes to file the case within the next few weeks in the U. S. District Court.

Blassmann said his perception of the problems in Dist. 207 schools may be different from those of the older board members. He said a closer relationship should be developed between the community and the school. "As the community changes and develops," said Blassmann, "Maine schools are 'disjointed from the community,'" he said.

The community should be better informed on "the direct effects of the austerity program," said Blassmann. "If parents see they are directly affected they may think twice about voting against a referendum." Instead of producing a barrage of press releases to the community just before a referendum, the community should be informed of the continuing needs of the schools.

THE MAJOR PROBLEM at Dist. 207 is the communication gap between the levels of authority in the school system, said Blassmann. "All other problems center around it." The board of education usually gets its news about the school through the administration and not through the students or teachers, he said. A student proposal rarely goes to the school board, it is handled by the administration, said the former student.

"School board members are unknowledgeable about the working of the school," said Blassmann. "The board doesn't know what goes on in a regular school day."

A more personal environment should be provided for students at Dist. 207, to "make it a more desirable place to be," said Blassmann. Blassmann said he was disturbed by the board's recent decision to turn down student requests for revision of school policy on student smoking. Although he is not in favor of a student smoking lounge, Blassmann said, "I can't see suspension as a solution to the problem."

THE CURRICULUM at Dist. 207 should be revised to combine easily with junior high school programs and college programs in the area. When a Dist. 207 graduate enters Oakton Community College he often has to repeat some basic courses such as business math and business English and learn to write compositions and term papers.

Students also have trouble adapting to programs between junior high school and high school, said Blassmann. The foreign language program at junior high schools in East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63 are very different from foreign language programs at Dist. 207 and the students have trouble adapting, he said.

2 men found guilty in sale of cocaine

Two Mount Prospect men were found guilty this week in Niles Branch of Cook County Circuit Court for the sale of cocaine. A third man, a Des Plaines resident, had his case on the same charge continued.

Richard Walden, 22, was placed on three years probation by the court and Randall Flood, 28, was placed on five years probation. Both men lived at 9 S. Wille St., Mount Prospect. The third man, James Trafford, 22, of 634 Debra Dr., Des Plaines, had his case continued to April 10.

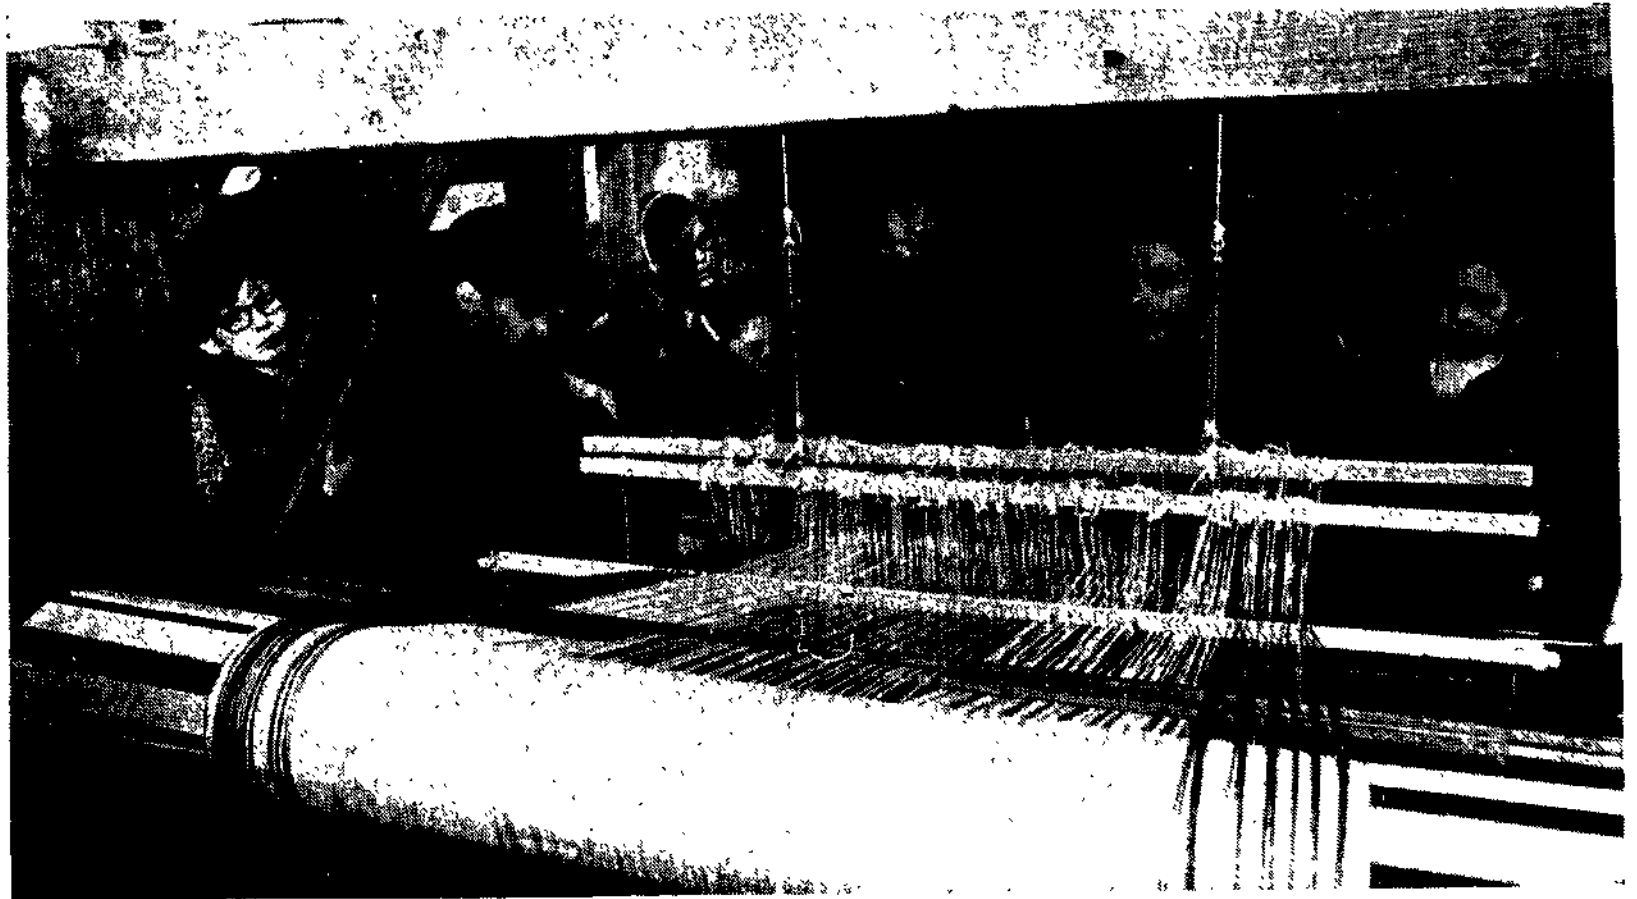

All three were arrested Sept. 19, 1972, when the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) raided the Wille Street address. MEG is an undercover police unit with members from several suburban police departments.

Flood was also found guilty of possession of marijuana and possession of hypodermic needles and syringes, the court clerk's office reported. Trafford has also been charged with possession of marijuana.

Teacher contract parley postponed

The first contract negotiations meeting between Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 and the Teachers' Council has been postponed until Tuesday.

The meeting scheduled for last night, was reset because not all persons involved in negotiations were able to attend.

FROM THREAD TO CLOTH, the school children learned how it's done on the museum's operating hand loom. The museum is featuring exhibits on the Plains Indians (until the end of the month) and on Abraham Lincoln (until the end of April) and is open from 2 to 4 p.m. Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday. For information on group tours, call 297-4912.

Transportation 'inadequate': Wolf

Mayoral candidate David Wolf has called for the city to remedy "inadequate" public transportation here.

"Under the current mayor, we have been studying this problem for years and do not have one concrete proposal for solving the problem," Wolf said in a statement released at a press conference Wednesday.

He criticized the city's failure to act in purchasing United Motor Coach Co., which has had growing financial problems in recent years and has offered to sell. The city has been negotiating with the firm for some time.

Wolf termed the lack of action and the varying purchase prices asked for the company "ridiculous." He said the city should make a decision whether it wants to buy the company, "determine its fair market price and get on with it and provide the transportation."

IF ELECTED, Wolf promised, he would "move firmly to improve our public transportation because senior citizens, young people, one-car families, shoppers and railroad commuters alike share the problem."

A fire department captain on leave of absence, Wolf is opposing four-term incumbent Mayor Herbert Behrel and Burton Kosmen, a teacher, for the city's chief executive post.

He told reporters that he favors a regional transportation system and said the city should be providing more leadership in setting up such a system in the Chicago metropolitan area.

If the city buys United Motor Coach, it should cut off bus service to other communities if that service loses money, Wolf said.

Texas frontier hero Sam Houston was born March 2, 1793.

In 1945, units of the U.S. 9th Army reached the Rhine River opposite Dusseldorf, Germany.

A thought for the day: British statesman John Viscount Morley said, "In my creed, waste of public money is like the sin against the Holy Ghost."

Ex-mayor Meyer endorses Behrel for a fifth term

Mayor Herbert Behrel has been endorsed for a fifth term by his predecessor, former mayor Kenneth Meyer.

In a statement released to local newspapers, Meyer, who served as the city's chief executive from 1949 to 1957 when Behrel was first elected, said "there is no doubt in my mind that Herbert H. Behrel should be reelected."

Meyer, a local attorney, said Behrel's "knowledge of municipal finance, his knowledge of the problems facing our city, and the excellent manner in which he has guided this city during his administration as mayor is a mandate that he should be reelected."

"In my opinion, his qualifications far exceed those of other candidates seeking his office," said Meyer.

THE OTHER candidates, Burton Kosmen, a teacher, and David Wolf, fire captain on leave of absence, also announced endorsements this week.

Wolf was backed by Ald. Robert Michaels (8th), who is not seeking reelection to city council. "His experience with the working function of city government as well as his knowledge gained by consistent attendance at council meetings these past years qualify him in my opinion to serve as our mayor," Michaels said.

"I am proud to support his candidacy and urge my fellow residents of the 8th Ward to do likewise," Michaels said in a press statement.

Wolf also received the backing of Dr. Gerald Meyer, local dentist who is running unopposed for the 7th Ward council seat of retiring Ald. Daniel Bonaguidi.

In a statement released by Wolf, Meyer said Wolf "is a dedicated and knowledgeable man who will bring a refreshing personality to the office of mayor." Meyer will head Wolf's campaign in the 7th Ward working with Bonaguidi and Ald. John Seitz (7th), who are also backing Wolf.

Kosmen was endorsed by the Citizens

Action Committee, a group he organized last year to head off a proposed overpass at River Road and Miner Street.

vices are within walking distance; the center will be in the middle of a large, well developed city.

"We have a labor market here where the office worker can walk and won't have to drive to the middle of some cornfield," he said.

GOTTIEB IS "not a high bidder who's going to take the city," Paroubek said. Construction of the building will "be what the city wants if at all possible within costs."

Gottlieb is a major Chicago industrial developer. The firm, recently called Lieb-Beale & Co., has constructed about 350 area buildings including Clearbrook industrial park, Arlington Heights; Burr Ridge industrial park; Bellwood industrial park; Centex north, Elk Grove Village; and Lehigh industrial park in Wheeling.

Estimated construction period will be two years, Paroubek said.

The plan is the second major construction project in downtown Des Plaines this year. Construction of a $2.2 million civic center along Miner Street is expected this summer.

May lower city's cost of cutting trees

Tree recycling weighed for preserve

The Cook County Forest Preserve District may soon open its tree-burning area just east of Wheeling, but not to burn trees.

The site may be used as a tree-recycling center where a sawmill, debarker chipper and splitter will convert cut trees into usable chips and lumber.

The expected site reopening in April may mean lower Des Plaines bids for tree cutting. Public Works Comr. Joseph Schwab said, "I'm hopeful it will open. It will give contractors a closer place to dump trees, which should lower the price," he said.

CHIEF FORESTER Samuel Gabriel said the district is preparing to take bids from outside companies to open a recycling plant at the site. He said by using a sawmill, debarker, chipper and splitter, diseased wood could be recycled into usable lumber.

Gabriel explained the disease-carrying organisms only live in the bark and outer sap wood of diseased trees. He said this part of the tree would be stripped off in the slabbing process and put through a chipper.

"The basic portions of the logs will be processed into salable materials," he said.

ACCORDING TO Gabriel, the recycling plant would provide a place to get rid of diseased trees without the air pollution that resulted from the open burning of trees. He said the forest preserve district is now in the process of drawing up specifications for the project, which he hopes will be ready by April 1.

The tree-burning site closed last July due to air pollution regulations passed by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency. In order to comply with these regulations, the forest preserve district had originally intended to continue tree burning by using closed-pit air curtain destructors.

The EPA granted the forest preserve district permission to continue open burning while experimenting with the closed-pit burning. Experience with one air curtain destructor, however, indicated the closed pit burning would be too expensive for general operation.

THE SITE WAS closed to the public when the Illinois EPA's extension expired. The air curtain destructor has since been used by the forest preserve to burn their own trees.

Since the site was closed, villages and private arborists have been forced to take their trees to sanitary landfills for disposal. These landfills, however, are reaching their capacity, and are reluctant to take the trees which take up a lot of space because they are non-compressible.

Des Plaines contractors recently have hauled cut trees to Deerfield for disposal. The city is expected to seek bids on a new tree cutting contract this month.

GABRIEL SAID he thought the recycling operation would be helpful to the nearby villages. "It'll take a large burden off the various villages," he said. "Sanitary landfills aren't particularly happy about taking these materials."

According to Gabriel, such recycling of diseased trees has been done before, but "not to this extent." He said this approach to disposing of diseased trees was fairly new in this area.

Gabriel said he expects there will be bidders for the project since he has already received several inquiries about establishing this type of operation.

Citizen band radio stolen from auto

A citizen band radio worth $150 was stolen late Tuesday, when burglars forced their way into the car of Linda Lyding, 2500 Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows, according to Des Plaines police.

The car had been left at 901 W. Oakton St. when the theft occurred.

Classes to start Sept. 5

School will not start for Maine High School students until after Labor Day next fall, Dist. 207 officials said this week.

Opening day of school for all students will be Wednesday, Sept. 5, two days after Labor Day. Teachers are scheduled to attend an all-day teachers' institute Tuesday, Sept. 4.

The official school calendar will include 185 days — 182 days of instruction, and three institute days. It will include seven legal holidays and 13 school holidays. The legal holidays are Columbus Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's Day, Lincoln's Birthday, Good Friday and Memorial Day. The 1973-74 school year will end on June 14, 1974.

Thanksgiving will be celebrated on Nov. 22. There will be a school holiday the following day, Friday, Nov. 23.

Christmas vacation will begin at the close of school on Friday, Dec. 21, and continue until Thursday morning, Jan. 3.

Spring vacation will consist of Good Friday, April 12, 1974, and the five school days following Easter Sunday, April 14. School will reopen on Monday, April 22.

Institute Days for teachers will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 4; Monday, Jan. 28, 1974, and Friday, March 1, 1974. There will be no classes for students on those days.

The District 207 calendar was developed by a committee made up of school officials from both the high school district and the elementary districts, student representatives, and representatives from the Maine Teachers' Association. While not identical in all instances, the high school calendar is coordinated with the calendars for the elementary districts in the area, school officials said.

Stained glass course starts at Niles West

The skills and techniques of stained glass artistry will be taught in a special five-week course offered by the Maine-Oakton-Niles Adult and Continuing Education Program at Niles West High School, 1755 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines, beginning Wednesday.

The class will be held each Wednesday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. The $30 tuition includes all basic materials.

The course will be taught by John Bera, a professional stained glass artist. Students will learn to make objects in stained glass, including how to cut glass, how to "lead" it, how to solder and finish projects in class and how to work at home.

Family sought for AFS student

The Prospect High School AFS (American Field Service) chapter is looking for a family willing to take in a foreign student next year.

Any family living in the Prospect High School attendance area is eligible for the AFS program, whether or not they have children in school, according to AFS officials. The student's expenses are paid by AFS and the student is provided a small allowance, so the only costs to the family involve food and housing costs, they said.

Persons interested in housing a foreign student may call Mrs. Ed Shaler, 255-3384.

Maine summer school schedule set

Summer school at Maine Township High School Dist. 207 will open on Friday, June 15, for all seven-week courses, and on Monday, June 18, for all six-week courses, according to school officials.

Closing dates are: seven-week courses, Aug. 2; six-week courses, Friday, July 27; four-week courses, Friday, July 13; and three-week courses, Friday, July 6.

School will be closed on Wednesday, July 4, and the time will be made up by moving dismissal time from Noon to 12:10 p.m. daily.

Rates remain the same as last year. Registration fee for all courses is $3. Tuition for a one-credit course, $48; for 1/2 credit course, $32; four-week course, $35; and seven-week course, $62.

Typing I runs six weeks from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m., but carries 1/2 credit. A special tuition of $37, plus the $3 registration fee was approved by the board to cover costs.

Full summer school programs will be offered at Maine East, Maine South and Maine West high schools, while a more limited program at Maine North.

Ronald W. Heller completes training

Ronald W. Heller, son of Mrs. Judy Ann Heller of Des Plaines, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Texas, and is stationed at Kaesler AFB, Miss. In the guided missile and radar program. Airman Heller is a graduate of Maine West High School and a former Des Plaines U.S. Postal Service employee.

Why will tax bills be late? The answer is twofold

by ROGER CAPELLINI
and BOB LAHEY

This is a multiple-choice story about late tax bills, a Cook County phenomenon which occurs perhaps seven out of 10 years. Check one:

(A) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because the chief judge of the Circuit Court failed to fill a vacancy on the Board of Tax Appeals.

(B) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because computers in the Department of Local Government Affairs (LGA) were unable to compute figures which used to be done by clerks.

If you checked (A), you were half right. If you checked (B), you were half right.

When County Board Pres. George W. Dunne announced last week the property tax bills would be at least one month late again this year, various sources attributed the costly delay to John Boyle, chief judge of the Circuit Court.

The watchdog Civic Federation, however, said the LGA has to shoulder some of the responsibility.

WHEREVER THE responsibility rests,

the resulting cost to county taxpayers, in the form of interest on tax anticipation warrants, will be an estimated $2 million.

The Civic Federation has estimated the warrants will cost almost $35,000 a day to the City of Chicago, Cook County, Chicago Park District, Forest Preserve and Chicago City Colleges. The cost to the several hundred other county taxing bodies, it has been estimated, will at least double that amount.

Judge Boyle's part in this year's version of the almost annual tax mess stems from his failure to name a successor to George Keane on the Board of (Tax) Appeals for almost two months following Keane's resignation Dec. 1.

Finally, in late January, the judge appointed Seymour Zaban to the post. In the meantime, however, the board fell far behind in its task of hearing thousands of appeals filed by dissatisfied taxpayers.

THE COMPUTATION of tax rates and tax bills cannot begin until the board of appeals has completed its work.

Cook County political observers have claimed the judge's delay in making the appointment, charged to him by law, resulted from disagreement within the Democratic Party over who the successor should be.

Judge Boyle was not available for comment.

The second share of the fault this year goes to the LGA for its inability to provide the county clerk with figures on the assessment of capital stock by March 1.

The LGA is charged with determining the value of state service corporations — such as utilities and insurance companies — over and above the tangible assets of the company.

Those figures also are critical.

A spokesman for the LGA admitted partial responsibility for the late tax bills. He said the LGA has encountered serious problems in the computer system used to determine capital stock assessments.

A second spokesman for the LGA has estimated the work will not be completed until the end of March. The county clerk needs about 30 days in which to compute the tax rates and bills after receiving the information from the LGA.

That timetable apparently coincides with Dunne's estimate the tax bills will be mailed May 1, with the first installment payment due June 1.

But, Dunne said, there may be additional delays if further problems in the billing procedure occur.

Village president candidates agree to March 23 debate

All three Elk Grove Village presidential candidates have agreed to a March 23 debate to discuss election issues. The debates will probably be at a local school.

Village Pres. Chuck Zettek, who originally challenged his two opponents to a confrontation, said yesterday he was talking with School Dist. 59 officials to set up a location for the debate, which would start at 8 p.m. and last about two hours.

"The whole purpose of the debates is to get enough residents out to hear the candidates discuss the issues so they know who they're voting for," Zettek said. He said next week he will send out a suggested list of procedures for the debates and a list of possible moderators to candidates Robert "Bud" Lindahl and Richard McGrenera, for them to comment on.

ZETTEK suggested each candidate be allowed 10-12 minutes for opening remarks with two 10-minute rebuttals. He added there also could be a question-and-answer session with the audience.

Zettek challenged McGrenera and Lindahl to the debate last month in response to criticism by McGrenera that the present village administration was getting farther away from being responsible to the residents.

The present officials have done an excellent job, and "I support all the trustees seeking reelection," Zettek said.

At that time McGrenera said he would be willing to debate his opponents, but he doubted whether it would serve any purpose.

"The debates will serve their intended purpose only if the people show up," he said.

LINDAHL said he felt the people should have an opportunity to hear the candidates speak on the issues, and if a debate would help achieve this end, he was willing to take part.

Lindahl, 52, of 690 Versailles Ct., has lived in the village three years and has served on the village Community Service Board of Directors. He also has been active in boys' baseball and football programs.

Currently serving as village clerk, McGrenera, 46, of 670 Versailles Circle, has served on the village plan commission and zoning board of appeals. He was elected a trustee in 1967 and clerk in 1971.

Zettek, 46, of 44 Woodcrest Ln., has lived in the village since 1957. He was elected a trustee in 1961 and was appointed President in 1971 to replace Jack Pahl, who resigned.

Village hits tax break for new building

The Elk Grove Village trustees went on record Tuesday opposing a proposed state law that would give tax relief to new construction over a five-year period. Trustees said the law would handicap growing communities like Elk Grove.

The trustees said the bill was unacceptable as former Gov. Richard Ogilvie's proposal for a property tax freeze, because the village would have to provide services to a growing municipality without being able to collect full taxes on new construction.

"This bill puts the burden on plants and homes already built to pay for the services for others," Trustee Ed Kenna said. "The legislature should solve the whole problem of tax relief, not just go about it piecemeal."

VILLAGE PRES. Charles Zettek said he felt the rationale behind the bill was to help Chicago regain some of the industry it was losing and a tax break was one method to attract construction.

In a letter to State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, Zettek wrote, "Any tax credits that would reduce the receipt of property taxes over a period of five years would cause a severe strain on our budget and a reduction in the level of municipal services."

At Tuesday's village board meeting, Zettek also appointed three residents to the village housing commission this week, bringing the commission's strength to six of the possible nine seats on the commissions.

The new appointments were William Garvey, 1048 Cheltenham Rd., John Wilbur, 99 Shelley Ct., and Marcia Norian, 507 Bristol Ln. Housing commission members are appointed for the term of the president, which ends this spring.

IN OTHER BUSINESS: A resolution was adopted commending Douglas Stanley, 12, of 271 Clearmont Dr., for skillful action in performing mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to save the life of his 18-month-old sister last month. He also was given the honored citizen award of the village.

Authorization was given for the village president and the clerk to sign an agreement with Cook County for the installation of traffic signals at the intersection of Arlington Heights Road, Cosman Road and Chelmsford Lane.

A resolution was adopted objecting to the delay in the construction of the O'Hare Sewage Treatment Plant at the intersection of Oakton Street and Elm.

Republicans charge 'publicity gimmick'

Independents challenge GOP to debate

The independent slate of candidates for Elk Grove Township offices has challenged the Regular Republican Organization to a debate.

In a letter dated Wednesday, Larry Pahl, independent candidate for highway commissioner, offered to debate at 8 p.m. Thursday at Lively Junior High School, 999 Leicester Rd., Elk Grove Village.

$500 antique baby buggy stolen

An antique baby buggy, valued at $500, and a wicker chair were reported stolen Wednesday from Elizabeth Benkowski, 912 Ridge Sq., Elk Grove Village.

Police said the items were kept in a storage area of the Benkowski's apartment building and were chained to a post in the storage compartment.

Pahl signed the letter as representing himself and the independent candidates for auditor: Paul Rettberg, Julie Sass and Steven Maddock.

The debate offer was made to: Walter Bartley, Wayne Hult and Larry Hintze candidates for auditor; Bernard Lee, incumbent auditor; and Alfred Steil, incumbent highway commissioner.

IN THE LETTER, Pahl suggested a two-part format for the debate. First the two groups would answer each other's questions, then both groups would be open to questions from the audience.

The format could be changed if the Republicans wanted a different format, he said.

Richard Hall, Republican candidate for supervisor and campaign manager for the slate, said, "I don't think the format is acceptable as is."

"I'm not going to be talking to stone walls. Who is going to assure us of a good crowd? Who is going to sponsor the debate? Who will chair it? Who will handle the publicity for it?" asked Hall.

Hall said the Republicans would agree to a debate if the location, ground rules and format were agreed to before hand.

Hall said he did not think the letter was a proper way to offer a debate.

"I think it (the letter) is a flippant attempt to get some publicity on his part."

Teacher contract parley postponed

The first contract negotiations meeting between Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 and the Teachers' Council has been postponed until Tuesday.

The meeting scheduled for last night, was reset because not all persons involved in negotiations were able to attend.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

The state department said the U.S. ambassador to the Sudan, Cleo Noel, was among the foreign diplomats seized by the group of terrorists who captured the Saudi Arabian embassy. They are demanding the release of Sirhan B. Sirhan.

Sens George McGovern and James Abourezk met yesterday with federal Indian officials trying to win the release of 11 hostages held by militant members of the American Indian Movement at Wounded Knee, S.D.

President Nixon has abandoned, at least temporarily, his search for major reform of the nation's welfare system because he said "the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage."

Leaders of a four-week St. Louis public school strike continued to feel its effects as Circuit Judge Thomas McGuire ordered one leader jailed for 60 days, and fined the teacher organization $140,000.

A criminal court judge ruled the film "Deep Throat" obscene, and banned its further showing in Manhattan.

The state

A federal court judge entered an order putting Illinois' abortion law into compliance with the U.S. Supreme Court decision. (Turn to page 10)

Clair M. Roddewig, acting chairman of the Chicago Transit Authority board, said he believed state senators would find a way to help the CTA, which may have to hike fares and cut services on March 18.

Illinois judges would be appointed under a "merit system" instead of political elections under a plan introduced in the Illinois General Assembly.

The world

A new dollar crisis hit Europe yesterday, sending the price of American currency down, and the price of gold up. West Germany's central bank bought more than $2 billion in a battle with speculators.

The security chiefs of Poland and Czechoslovakia were killed in the crash of a Polish military aircraft near the East German border. Police officials said.

Authorities have identified a skeleton dug out of World War II rubble as that of Martin Bormann.

The war

Vietnam peace supervisors reported four specially marked helicopters used by truce teams have been hit by gunfire in the past five days. Communist officials said 136 American prisoners of war, and six foreign captives would be set free Sunday in Hanoi. The announcement came as officials signed a pact for a guaranteed peace in Vietnam.

'Gallery girl' bares naked truth of her nude poses

"What is a nice girl like you doing posing nude in a magazine like that?" That might be the question put to Kris Thornstadt by the average person.

But for Kris, an attractive 21-year-old who has lived in this area most of her life, the reason she posed for eight pages of photographs, including the centerfold, in the March issue of Gallery magazine is simple and unspectacular.

"I see it as just an extension on my modeling career," she said succinctly. The Mount Prospect native who now lives in Hoffman Estates and works in Elk Grove Village said the Gallery gatefold experience did not mark any great milestone in her life.

"It all started as sort of a joke. It took three days to shoot the pictures, and I did not get any kind of kinky thrill from the whole thing," Kris explained.

THAT REMARK might come as a disappointment for the average reader of those magazines — which offer those great literary articles and, oh yes, a few pictures — but Kris emphasized there was "no playing around during the picture session" and "the pictures were not taken during some orgy."

Kris said she eventually hopes to make modeling her full-time career, but right now finds bartending a good way to make a living. A graduate of Northern Illinois University, Kris said she went to college so she could have a degree.

She does not look at being the Gallery Girl as opening any new doors or offering new job opportunities.

"I have done a few things, but by next month there will be a new issue of the magazine, a new centerfold and everyone will say 'Kris Thornstadt — who was she,'" Kris said.

KRIS DOES NOT share the Women's Lib appraisal of magazines such as Gallery being debasing to females or a bedrock plank of the male chauvinism ethic. "It is a matter of personal taste, and choice," she said, adding, "I am as liberated as I want to be. There are very few things around that I cannot do if I really feel like it."

She added, however, Gallery does not try to promote a lifestyle and image, as done by Playboy and other magazines in the field.

"Gallery just presents a magazine with articles and the pictures; they do not try to tell you what type of life to lead or what the typical reader's woman should look and act like," Kris said.

GENERALLY, reaction to Kris' pictures has been favorable, she added.

"My father thought it was great, but my boyfriend was a little embarrassed," she said. Most of the customers at her place of work who recognize her from the magazine have been complimentary, Kris said.

"But it is the two per cent who are creeps that can make things difficult," she added.

She has no great plans for the future, and the Gallery experience will probably not be anything more than a memory in a few weeks, she believes.

"I don't see myself as any type of freak. I don't think it takes any particular type of person to pose nude in a magazine," she said.

"It was just another job."

Zettek for president, says Trustee Chernick

Elk Grove Village Trustee Ron Chernick endorsed incumbent Pres. Charles Zettek for reelection this week, saying Zettek's experience in government "cannot be matched by any candidate."

"Zettek has served 12 years in office, which includes 10 years as a trustee and almost two years as president," Chernick said. He said Zettek has attended almost every board meeting in the past 12 years.

"Zettek has shown a deep dedication and determination to provide every person in Elk Grove Village with the best in services at the least possible cost," Chernick said. "His (Zettek's) experience, his proven leadership, and his devotion to the village only support the fact that Charles Zettek is the most qualified candidate."

Revenue-sharing funds distributed

The Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center and Schaumburg Township Public Library each received a $25,000 portion of the Schaumburg Township $103,000 federal revenue-sharing fund Wednesday.

The Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board had previously requested almost three times that amount, $65,000, be given to the center.

Township officials at an earlier meeting received a financial report substantiating the request for $65,000 for the center.

However, Wednesday a revised report showed a need for $35,000 instead of the previously anticipated deficit of $44,900.

In that previous report, Schaumburg Township's share of costs from September of 1972 to June of 1973 was estimated at $64,900.

Schools to study what to do with study

The High School Dist. 214 Board will meet Monday to decide what to do with a study of administrative salaries in the district that has cost more than $15,000.

The study, conducted by A. T. Kearney, Inc., a consulting firm, recommends that the board establish a salary plan next year for the district's 101 administrators that would provide a minimum salary of $18,600 and a maximum salary of $43,800 for the superintendent.

In addition, the study recommends that the board consider raising the amount of life insurance and the mileage allowance granted administrators and suggests adopting a system of "management by objectives" to be used in evaluating administrators.

FOLLOWING A discussion of the study at this week's board meeting, members agreed to meet as a committee of the whole Monday to discuss what to do with

MARCH GALLERY girl Kris Thornstadt does not see posing nude for the magazine's centerfold section as anything spectacular. "It is just another modeling job for me," Kris explains.

5 file for high school board seats

Five persons filed Wednesday for the two seats in the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education that will be filled in the April 14 election.

The five included one incumbent, Board Pres. Robert Creek of Inverness. Other candidates are Dianne Marks, of 369 Carleton Rd., Hoffman Estates; Robert Weseman, of 1432 S. Monterey, Roselle; Orland C. Vangsness, of 1590 Indian Hill, Hanover Park; and Edward Perry, 36 Heatherlea Dr. West, Palatine.

A second incumbent, Alexander Langsdorf, has said he will not seek reelection.

MISS MARKS, 35, is president of the school board of Schaumburg Township Elementary Dist. 54. She said she is switching from the elementary to the high school board because she has a daughter in high school and one who will be a freshman next year. She is employed as a legal secretary.

Miss Marks also said that in running for the board "I have some ideas of things I'd like to see done differently in Dist. 211." Specifically, she said, "I would like to see an improvement in the way they react to the public."

Weseman, 40, is a math teacher at Taft High School in Chicago and a resident of the Sunset Hills subdivision in unincorporated Schaumburg Township. He was not available for comment Wednesday, but his wife said the recent dispute between the board and residents of several areas in the district about attendance boundaries for Hoffman Estates High School had "brought the school situation to his attention."

Weseman has lived in the district for five years and has one child in high school and four younger children.

VANGSNES, 54, is a staff assistant for administration for IBM. He said he had planned to run for the board two years ago but was unable to because of ill health.

"Now I can predict that I will have the time to serve and will not be transferred during my term," he said. He added that he intended to run before residents of Hanover Park began protesting attendance boundaries set for Hoffman Estates High School, but added, "Hanover Park has never been represented on the board and I think that is important."

He has been a resident of the district for five years and worked on advisory committees for the Champaign, Ill., school district when he lived there, he said.

PERRY, 52, is a retired colonel in the U. S. Air Force and a real estate broker. He said he is running because, "This is our 25th home and we've had four children educated on someone else's effort and I think it's time to do my bit."

Perry has been a resident of the district for two years and is president of the Heatherlea Homeowners Association.

Creek has served on the board since 1969 and said yesterday he is seeking reelection because "I like the job." He is vice president for administration for Union Oil Co. and has been board president since April, 1970.

Candidates may continue to file for the board through March 23. Candidates must be 21 years old, residents of the district and registered voters.

Unit study joint effort

Local school officials will be working together in the next few months compiling enrollment projections and information on buildings, curriculum and other issues as part of the High School Dist. 214 study of school organization.

The officials of six local elementary school districts agreed Tuesday to cooperate with Dist. 214 in compiling data for the study, which has been started in response to a study on forming unit school districts in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

However, the officials backed away from forming an official "steering committee" for the study because, as Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Supt. Donald Strong said, "The word steering has other implications than words like liaison or cooperation."

The Dist. 214 project has been designed to study possible changes in organization that would affect the high school district and its seven elementary districts. The study, Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert said, "is not a feasibility study on the formation of a unit school district. It will produce data, but any decision would be made by the boards, individually or collectively."

A UNIT district study is under way in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 on the feasibility of forming a unit district in that area. A unit district places all schools under a single board and administration. The area is presently organized into dual districts, with elementary and high schools administered separately.

Officials from the elementary districts agreed with Dist. 214 officials that the Dist. 214 study is necessary to provide ammunition with which the boards can fight a unit district move in Dist. 59 if that would harm other school districts.

In addition, Supt. Edward Grodsky of Prospect Heights Dist. 22 said other possible kinds of reorganization may be suggested by the study. Grodsky, whose district is the smallest in the area, said, "We may find that consolidation for some of the smaller elementary districts may come out of this."

Plans for the study say that information will be gathered in 10 areas including population, enrollment, facilities, staffing, curriculum, finance, transportation, legal, community and governmental relations and administrative organization. Some of the areas will be studied by school district employees and others will require citizen's committees working with paid consultants, according to William Reid, Dist. 214 coordinator of research and testing.

THE STATE has indicated it will provide $3,500 for the study, Reid said, and an application for funding has been sent to the National Institute of Education, part of the U. S. Office of Education.

Deadline for completion of the study is March, 1974. The study in Dist. 59 was originally scheduled for completion this week, but will probably be postponed until May 1.

Township hall open for registration

Elk Grove Township voters will have several opportunities to register for the April 3 township elections before registration closes Monday.

Township Clerk George R. Busse said the township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., will be open as usual Saturday, but will have extra hours Monday. The office will be open 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Monday.

Mount Prospect Village Hall will also be open Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon for registration, and will be open during regular office hours Monday. Des Plaines City Hall and Arlington Heights Village Hall will be closed Saturday, but will accept registration Monday.

Registration normally is halted 30 days prior to an election. Voters may continue to register for other elections later in April, but will not be able to vote April 3 if they aren't registered by Monday.

Elk Grove Village plant windows broken

Officials of Boise Cascade Roll Paper Distribution Center, 1510 Lunt Ave., Elk Grove Village, reported this week that three windows of the plant have been broken with a pellet gun or sling shot, with damage amounting to $625.

The damage occurred during the last week in February, officials said.

New auto missing from leasing firm

Hoskins Leasing Inc., 175 Arlington Heights Rd., Elk Grove Village, reported Wednesday that a 1973 two-door compact sedan was leased until Feb. 12 but has not been returned.

Elk Grove Village Police said the car was leased Feb. 9 to David Woods, 240 Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows. The car was valued at $2,300.

11-story building set near Woodfield mall

Plans for an 11-story office building as the first phase of Woodfield Place development of IDC Realty Company were to be announced this morning by Robert Wislow, local executive for the El Paso, Tex., firm.

The office building will be at the intersection of Woodfield and Mall drives, and will have underground storm water retention, according to unofficial but well-placed sources.

Future development on the 28-acre parcel that stretches from Woodfield Drive to Higgins Road will include a large hotel, not expected to be as tall as the office structure but not yet tied down to a specific size. While no firm has been signed to operate the hotel, sources believe, negotiations are being held "both with hotel chains and nonchain operators."

Retail property also is included in the development plan, and some sources speculated Neiman-Marcus Co., exclusive Texas retailer, still may be in the Woodfield Place picture. While Neiman-Marcus has petitioned for a zoning change for a facility in Northbrook, residents there are opposing the project, and IDC is known to have been negotiating with Neiman-Marcus. It is the "kind of a store IDC would love to have," one source noted.

A health club and tennis center also will be in the IDC plans, with other entertainment facilities.

NORTHBROOK officials said yesterday the future of the proposed center there still is undetermined. The roughly 140-acre development there is to be anchored by a Sears Roebuck and Co. store, if the zoning change is approved.

The village's plan commission has held its first public hearing on the request, which was the scene of local opposition, and further commission discussions are scheduled for March 6. At that point, the commission is expected to make a recommendation to the village board, said staff assistant James Mathews.

Mathews said the commission may recommend plan approval as is, may deny plan approval or may approve the plan with stipulated changes. The earliest date the village board could receive and consider the commission's decision is March 19, he said. The Northbrook site is at the intersection of Lake Cook and Lee roads.

Neiman-Marcus is a subsidiary of Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., of Dallas, and is headed by members of the Marcus family. In current references it is listed as grossing $80 million in sales in its four Texas retail stores, a Florida store and boutiques in Houston and Dallas. It was merged with Broadway-Hale in August 1970.

Permit not granted in open meeting

Hospital OK may have violated law

by STEVE BROWN
Approval by the Illinois Hospital Licensing Board of an application for an initial operating permit for the Schaumburg branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes (RPSL) Medical Center may have violated the state's open meeting law.

If the board did not make its recommendation to grant the operating permit in an open session the deliberations were unauthorized and the action could be invalid, said former Democratic Rep. Anthony Scariano of Park Forest, sponsor of the law.

Dr. William Lees, a member of the state board, said the board was polled by mail for their recommendations on the request. He said the board did not meet.

The board at their last regular meeting in January said they would defer action until their next meeting in April. Officials announced yesterday the permit had been approved.

ALSO, DR. FRANKLIN YODER, former director of the department of public health, told Dr. James Campbell, RPSL president, the decision would be deferred until April.

Yoder has since been replaced by Dr. Joyce Lashof, the former chairman of the hospital's department of preventive medicine. She approved the operating permit after the board made the recommendation.

The open meeting law states that action taken in unauthorized sessions by a public body is invalid. The law also requires that the public be informed of all meetings held by public bodies.

State Representatives Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said they both plan to examine the action of the board to determine if there were any irregularities.

Dr. Lees said he had received a letter from George Hendrix, chairman of the hospital licensing board, requesting his recommendation on the application.

"The application was in order. There was not one iota of evidence presented against the development of a hospital there. We did not hide anything. We did not violate the law," he said.

THE BOARD had agreed to review a health planning study prepared for the Northwest Cook County Health Needs Study Committee before making recommendations.

Dr. Lees said he did not receive a copy of the report, which was partially financed with a $12,000 state grant, before making a decision. He added that he did not believe any of the board members had seen the report either.

Both Chapman and Totten were unclear as to what action they could take, but they said the plan to examine the board's actions.

"It appears that the board did not make an effort to allow the people of the community to become fully involved in this decision," Rep. Chapman said.

Totten said he had received requests from several persons to look into the matter to determine what could be done.

An action can be filed with the courts to have a review of the board's conduct and the court can set aside any decisions made during unauthorized sessions, said Scariano.

Arlington Park Theatre adds dash of culture

by BETTY LEE
The Arlington Park Theatre has been called a miniature John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, providing a dash of culture to the rapid sprawl of housing developments and shopping centers in the Northwest suburbs.

But many local residents who drive by have never been inside to see the looming columns, plush red carpeting, the lighted fountains or Burt Reynolds, Rudy Vallee and other stars who ply their trade on stage.

The theater was constructed at this site at Euclid Avenue and Rohlfing Road "because of the tremendous potential for growth here," said Karen Alton, publisher. "Arlington Heights is a good community because a lot of people know where it's located. People are moving and expanding. A quality theater can no longer be restricted to the Loop or the inner city."

THE ARLINGTON Park Theatre was built less than two years ago. Architect Milton Zie of Chicago was commissioned to design it, and David Lonn, managing director, worked closely with him to create the kind of theater Lonn wanted. A quick visual tour shows a theater-in-the-round, or arena, as they like to call it. It has a capacity of 723 persons with the farthest seat 23 feet from the stage.

"Lonn didn't want just a section of a restaurant or the basement of some hotel for a quality theater," said Miss Alton. "He wanted a free-standing theater with the grace and magnitude of professionalism."

Two years prior to groundbreaking of the Arlington Park theater, there was a lot of hard work and a lot of anguish, but there was also a strong feeling of confidence for a full-quality theater to grow in the Northwest suburban communities.

"We try to get away from the concept of the suburban theater for they often have a connotation of less quality," said Miss Alton.

Lonn is constantly reading plays, looking for quality plays of no particular type. He usually visualizes a certain star for certain parts and tries to get him.

"We don't categorize the types of shows they are, just so they are done with great talent, and that the play itself is of great talent," said Miss Alton.

LONN'S VISUALIZATION is so strong that we don't have a pool of artists to choose from. For example, he wanted James Farentino to play in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." He couldn't come for a long time, so we postponed it until he was able to play the part. That was over a year and a half ago.

Top stars have been professionals like Joan Fontaine, Richard Chamberlain, Lois Nettleton and others who are in television, Broadway or movies.

Shows usually run for six to eight weeks because stars are often committed to other projects concurrently.

"Engagements are often sold out and we can't make extensions," said Miss Alton. "A lot of people don't understand this, and we may be making some enemies."

And why do these top stars come to Arlington Heights when there are good Loop theaters?

"Actors are happy to work for a theater like this and for David Lonn because he's an idealist," said Miss Alton. "Word spreads fast in this business. Craftsmen want to work in unrestricted ways. Their ideas are always taken into consideration."

When Lonn was planning "Death of a Salesman," he first sought out permission from its playwright, Arthur Miller, who was living in Connecticut. The play had not been allowed in professional hands for about nine years. When Lonn told Miller of his plans, Miller was so enthused that he offered to come to Arlington Heights as an adviser for the play.

Why will tax bills be late? The answer is twofold

by ROGER CAPELLINI
and BOB LAHEY

This is a multiple-choice story about late tax bills, a Cook County phenomenon which occurs perhaps seven out of 10 years. Check one:

(A) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because the chief judge of the Circuit Court failed to fill a vacancy on the Board of Tax Appeals.

(B) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because computers in the Department of Local Government Affairs (LGA) were unable to compute figures which used to be done by clerks.

If you checked (A), you were half right. If you checked (B), you were half right.

When County Board Pres. George W. Dunne announced last week the property tax bills would be at least one month late again this year, various sources attributed the costly delay to John Boyle, chief judge of the Circuit Court.

The watchdog Civic Federation, however, said the LGA has to shoulder some of the responsibility.

WHEREVER THE responsibility rests,

the resulting cost to county taxpayers, in the form of interest on tax anticipation warrants, will be an estimated $2 million.

The Civic Federation has estimated the warrants will cost almost $35,000 a day to the City of Chicago, Cook County, Chicago Park District, Forest Preserve and Chicago City Colleges. The cost to the several hundred other county taxing bodies, it has been estimated, will at least double that amount.

Judge Boyle's part in this year's version of the almost annual tax mess stems from his failure to name a successor to George Keane on the Board of (Tax) Appeals for almost two months following Keane's resignation Dec. 1.

Finally, in late January, the judge appointed Seymour Zaban to the post. In the meantime, however, the board fell far behind in its task of hearing thousands of appeals filed by dissatisfied taxpayers.

THE COMPUTATION of tax rates and tax bills cannot begin until the board of appeals has completed its work.

Cook County political observers have claimed the judge's delay in making the appointment, charged to him by law, resulted from disagreement within the Democratic Party over who the successor should be.

Judge Boyle was not available for comment.

The second share of the fault this year goes to the LGA for its inability to provide the county clerk with figures on the assessment of capital stock by March 1.

The LGA is charged with determining the value of state service corporations — such as utilities and insurance companies — over and above the tangible assets of the company.

Those figures also are critical.

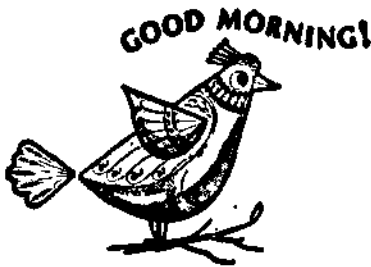

A spokesman for the LGA admitted partial responsibility for the late tax bills. He said the LGA has encountered serious problems in the computer system used to determine capital stock assessments.

A second spokesman for the LGA has estimated the work will not be completed until the end of March. The county clerk needs about 30 days in which to compute the tax rates and bills after receiving the information from the LGA.

That timetable apparently coincides with Dunne's estimate the tax bills will be mailed May 1, with the first installment payment due June 1.

But, Dunne said, there may be additional delays if further problems in the billing procedure occur.

Work on YMCA on time; fall opening planned

Construction of the Countryside YMCA is on schedule, with an opening date set for September. And Y officials now are preparing rental charges for local organizations to use the swimming pool and other facilities included in the new building.

Membership fees have already been set by YMCA officials. YMCA memberships are based on a two-part contribution system, with an annual pledge to the Y of $25 to $100 and a four-year investment pledge to support the building fund. For those members, a proposed set of program fees is also being worked out.

Those tentative annual program fees would cost families $75, youths 8-18, $30; age 19-24, $35; college students outside the area, $20; and adults, $45. Daily visitor fees of $1.50 and $2 are also planned for a limit of three visits per year for recreational activities.

ALTHOUGH THE fee schedule has not officially been approved by Y directors, the membership committee now has set up proposed rental procedures and costs for non-Y members.

Under the tentative schedule, hourly rates for the swimming pool would be $40, the gymnasium, $30; kitchen $25; meeting rooms $15 hourly or $50 daily, and all purpose rooms for $25 an hour or $150 a day.

Equipment, such as film projectors, slide projectors and program equipment will also be available for rental.

RESERVATIONS FOR the facilities will be taken between two weeks and a month before the event, and a $25 deposit will be required with each application. Religious, social, educational, civic, cultural, recreational and service groups will be given priority in the use of the facilities among non-Y groups.

During the week, the facilities will be rented during times when there are no YMCA programs scheduled. Saturday evenings are open from 6 to 10 p.m. for group rental. Sunday reservations will require special consideration by the Y board of directors.

Its first year of operation will cost the Countryside Y an estimated $500,000, according to a proposed 1973-74 budget starting in July. The last full year of operation in the Johnson Street house in Palatine cost $150,000, according to Y executive director Herman Hertog.

The house at 115 W. Johnson St. belongs to the village and may be used by a village department after the Y staff moves out in August.

The annual meeting and dinner-dance for Y members will be April 27 at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge in Palatine. Bylaw changes affected by completion of the new building on Northwest Highway and Baldwin Road will be approved by the members at that meeting.

Bluff almost works, but he boots story

The bluff didn't work yesterday for a young Palatine gasoline attendant who reportedly told police the station had been robbed.

Just before midnight, 17-year-old Leonard Eugene White, of 175 S. Brockway St., called police that an armed robber had made off with $285 from Gas U.S.A., where the youth works.

During questioning, White gave police a description of the alleged robber. Police questioners apparently became suspicious of White's testimony and asked him to submit to a lie detector test.

Palatine detective Walter Schoenfeld asked White to remove his boots for the test, and when he did some $250 in cash fell out of the youth's shoes.

Leo Glukas, owner of the gasoline station at Northwest Highway and Wilson Street, signed a complaint against White for theft.

Police charged White with making a false police report, or disorderly conduct. His hearing is set for 1:30 p.m. March 15 in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

HELIUM-FILLED BALLOONS with postcards attached were set a sail yesterday by 1st and 2nd grade students at Pleasant Hill School in Palatine. The students, who got the idea from their reading book, hope the finder of the balloons will send them a letter so they can determine how far the balloons traveled.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

The state department said the U.S. ambassador to the Sudan, Cleo Noel, was among the foreign diplomats seized by the group of terrorists who captured the Saudi Arabian embassy. They are demanding the release of Sirhan B. Sirhan.

Sens. George McGovern and James Abourezk met yesterday with federal Indian officials trying to win the release of 11 hostages held by militant members of the American Indian Movement at Wounded Knee, S.D.

President Nixon has abandoned, at least temporarily, his search for major reform of the nation's welfare system because he said "the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage."

Leaders of a four-week St. Louis public school strike continued to feel its effects as Circuit Judge Thomas McGuire ordered one leader jailed for 90 days, and fined the teacher organization $140,000.

A criminal court judge ruled the film "Deep Throat" obscene, and banned its further showing in Manhattan.

The state

A federal Court judge entered an order putting Illinois' abortion law into compliance with the U.S. Supreme Court decision. (Turn to page 10)

Claire M. Roddewig, acting chairman of the Chicago Transit Authority board, said he believed state senators would find a way to help the CTA, which may have to hike fares and cut services on March 18.

Illinois judges would be appointed under a "merit system" instead of political elections under a plan introduced in the Illinois General Assembly.

The world

A new dollar crisis hit Europe yesterday, sending the price of American currency down, and the price of gold up. West Germany's central bank bought more than $2 billion in a battle with speculators.

The security chiefs of Poland and Czechoslovakia were killed in the crash of a Polish military aircraft near the East German border. Police officials said.

Authorities have identified a skeleton dug out of World War II rubble as that of Martin Bormann.

The war

Vietnam peace supervisors reported four specially marked helicopters used by truce teams have been hit by gunfire in the past five days. Communist officials said 136 American prisoners of war, and six foreign captives would be set free Sunday in Hanoi. The announcement came as officials signed a pact for a guaranteed peace in Vietnam.

There's no sin in the centerfold

'Gallery girl' bares naked truth

"What is a nice girl like you doing posing nude in a magazine like that?" That might be the question put to Kris Thornstadt by the average person.

But for Kris, an attractive 21-year-old who has lived in this area most of her life, the reason she posed for eight pages of photographs, including the centerfold, in the March issue of Gallery magazine is simple and unspectacular.

"I see it as just an extension on my modeling career," she said succinctly. The Mount Prospect native who now lives in Hoffman Estates and works in Elk Grove Village said the Gallery gatefold experience did not mark any great milestone in her life.

"It all started as sort of a joke. It took three days to shoot the pictures, and I did not get any kind of kinky thrill from the whole thing," Kris explained.

THAT REMARK might come as a disappointment for the average reader of those magazines — which offer those great literary articles and, oh yes, a few pictures — but Kris emphasized there was "no playing around during the picture session" and "the pictures were not taken during some orgy."

Kris said she eventually hopes to make modeling her full-time career, but right now finds bartending a good way to make a living. A graduate of Northern Illinois University, Kris said she went to college so she could have a degree.

She does not look at being the Gallery Girl as opening any new doors or offering new job opportunities.

"I have done a few things, but by next month there will be a new issue of the magazine, a new centerfold and everyone will say 'Kris Thornstadt — who was she,'" Kris said.

KRIS DOES NOT share the Women's Lib appraisal of magazines such as Gallery being debasing to females or a bed-rock plank of the male chauvinism ethic.

"It is a matter of personal taste, and choice," she said, adding, "I am as liberated as I want to be. There are very few things around that I cannot do if I really feel like it."

She added, however, Gallery does not try to promote a lifestyle and image, as done by Playboy and other magazines in the field.

"Gallery just presents a magazine with articles and the pictures; they do not try to tell you what type of life to lead or what the typical reader's woman should look and act like," Kris said.

GENERALLY, reaction to Kris' pictures has been favorable, she added.

"My father thought it was great, but my boyfriend was a little embarrassed," she said. Most of the customers at her place of work who recognize her from the magazine have been complimentary, Kris said.

"But it is the two per cent who are creeps that can make things difficult," she added.

She has no great plans for the future, and the Gallery experience will probably not be anything more than a memory in a few weeks, she believes.

"I don't see myself as any type of freak. I don't think it takes any particular type of person to pose nude in a magazine," she said.

"It was just another job."

MARCH GALLERY girl Kris Thornstadt does not see posing nude for the magazine's centerfold section as anything spectacular. "It is just another modeling job for me," Kris explains.

Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." He couldn't come for a long time, so we postponed it until he was able to play the part. That was over a year and a half ago."

"Actors are happy to work for a theater like this and for David Lonn because he's an idealist," said Miss Alton. "Word spreads fast in this business. Craftsmen want to work in unrestricted ways. Their ideas are always taken into consideration."

UNLIKE A LOT of theaters, Arlington Park has no strict budgets. Rather, some of the expense has been passed on to the public when they purchase tickets. The price range of the tickets, the lowest from $5 to $8, the highest $12, fluctuates, depending on the type of production, the number of artists and set expenses.

"People are charged on what we are giving them," said Miss Alton. "They don't seem to mind. There were times when people appear near the box office and try to buy tickets off other people for handsome prices."

Word of mouth from the audiences to their friends has been one of the theater's effective form of conveying the theater's professionalism, as well as actors among themselves.

"Living in the city doesn't stop people from driving out here," said Miss Alton.

"One time a group of students came out to see a performance, and for many of them, it was their first. When the show was over, the kids enjoyed it so much that they said they would like to see plays more often and would prefer it over a movie. They had planned to come out at least once a month. That gave me a feeling of confidence and achievement."

What is the future for the quality theater in the suburbs? According to Miss Alton, the Arlington Park Theatre still is in its "embryonic stage," but she thinks that with well constructed plays and good people around, people will enjoy going to the theater.

Cracker barrel

WHY DID THE CHICKEN cross the road? Palatine trustees were trying to figure out what to do with the fence erected by Dist. 15 in violation of the local fence ordinance. One of the things wrong with the fence is its height; though it's only allowed to be 30 inches, it's actually twice as high. Asked why the school district made the fence so high, Deputy Supt. Joe Kizka said a 30-inch fence "would serve as a motivator for children to jump." "Well," Mayor Jack Moodie was overheard to mutter, "it would slow 'em down."

Census taker deadline today

Today is the final day applications can be submitted for census takers in Palatine.

The work is on a full-time basis for three to four weeks, beginning next week.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens, but need not live in Palatine. The pay is 11 cents for each name submitted.

Interested persons are asked to contact Palatine Village Hall, 358-7500, for additional information.

The special census, authorized by the Palatine Village Board at a cost of $9,500, is to begin next week.

In the last regular census in 1970, Palatine's population was set at 26,104.

Village officials are hopeful the special census can show a substantial growth in population, which would qualify the village for more federal revenue sharing, state income tax and motor vehicle fuel tax funds.

Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun bases his estimate of Palatine's present population at 28,000 on the increase in the number of water bills the village has been issuing since 1970.

Permit not granted in open meeting

Hospital OK may have violated law

by STEVE BROWN
Approval by the Illinois Hospital Licensing Board of an application for an initial operating permit for the Schaumburg branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes (RPSL) Medical Center may have violated the state's open meeting law.

If the board did not make its recommendation to grant the operating permit in an open session the deliberations were unauthorized and the action could be invalid, said former Democratic Rep. Anthony Scariano of Park Forest, sponsor of the law.

Dr. William Lees, a member of the state board, said the board was polled by mail for their recommendations on the request. He said the board did not meet.

The board at their last regular meeting in January said they would defer action until their next meeting in April. Officials announced yesterday the permit had been approved.

ALSO, DR. FRANKLIN YODER, former director of the department of public health, told Dr. James Campbell, RPSL president, the decision would be deferred until April.

Yoder has since been replaced by Dr. Joyce Lashof, the former chairman of the hospital's department of preventive medicine. She approved the operating permit after the board made the recommendation.

The open meeting law states that action taken in unauthorized sessions by a public body is invalid. The law also requires that the public be informed of all meetings held by public bodies.

State Representatives Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said they both plan to examine the action of the board to determine if there were any irregularities.

Dr. Lees said he had received a letter from George Hendrix, chairman of the hospital licensing board, requesting his recommendation on the application.

"The application was in order. There was not one iota of evidence presented against the development of a hospital there. We did not hide anything. We did not violate the law," he said.

THE BOARD had agreed to review a health planning study prepared for the Northwest Cook County Health Needs Study Committee before making recommendations.

Dr. Lees said he did not receive a copy of the report, which was partially financed with a $12,000 state grant, before making a decision. He added that he did not believe any of the board members had seen the report either.

Both Chapman and Totten were unclear as to what action they could take, but they said the plan to examine the board's actions.

"It appears that the board did not make an effort to allow the people of the community to become fully involved in this decision," Rep. Chapman said.

Totten said he had received requests from several persons to look into the matter to determine what could be done.

An action can be filed with the courts to have a review of the board's conduct and the court can set aside any decisions made during unauthorized sessions, said Scariano.

Plans for an 11-story office building as the first phase of Woodfield Place development of IDC Realty Company were to be announced this morning by Robert Wislow, local executive for the El Paso, Tex., firm.

The office building will be at the intersection of Woodfield and Mall drives, and will have underground storm water retention, according to unofficial but well-placed sources.

Future development on the 28-acre parcel that stretches from Woodfield Drive to Higgins Road will include a large hotel, not expected to be as tall as the office structure but not yet tied down to a specific size. While no firm has been signed to operate the hotel, sources believe, negotiations are being held both with hotel chains and nonchain operators.

Retail property also is included in the development plan, and some sources speculate a Neiman-Marcus Co., exclusive Texas retailer, still may be in the Woodfield Place picture. While Neiman-Marcus has petitioned for a zoning change for a facility in Northbrook, residents there are opposing the project, and IDC is known to have been negotiating with Neiman-Marcus. It is the "kind of a store IDC would love to have," one source noted.

A health club and tennis center also will be in the IDC plans, with other entertainment facilities.

NORTHBROOK officials said yesterday the future of the proposed center there still is undetermined. The roughly 140-acre development there is to be anchored by a Sears Roebuck and Co. store, if the zoning change is approved.

The village's plan commission has held its first public hearing on the request, which was the scene of local opposition, and further commission discussions are scheduled for March 6. At that point, the commission is expected to make a recommendation to the village board, said staff assistant James Mathews.

Mathews said the commission may recommend plan approval as is, may deny plan approval or may approve the plan with stipulated changes. The earliest date the village board could receive and consider the commission's decision is March 19, he said. The Northbrook site is at the intersection of Lake Cook and Lee roads.

Neiman-Marcus is a subsidiary of Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., of Dallas, and is headed by members of the Marcus family. In current references it is listed as grossing $80 million in sales in its four Texas retail stores, a Florida store and boutiques in Houston and Dallas. It was merged with Broadway-Hale in August 1970.

Edward Mraz, attorney for the owner, was granted a 30-day continuance to March 28 to redesign the plans and meet the village's parking requirements.

THE ARCHITECT, Lawrence Gold, had provided 208 spaces, an inadequate number for a motel designed to service businessmen associated with local companies, board chairman Russell Parker said.

The motel would have 150 rooms, 10,000 square feet of meeting rooms, and a restaurant with seating for 100 persons. Samatas said only hotel guests would use the meeting rooms and restaurant, and therefore parking was more than adequate.

Board members disputed this point, stating business meetings would also be attended by local residents who work at such companies as Motorola and Western Electric.

Aside from the parking issue, board members said that Thorntree Lane would have to be improved and widened, further reducing the size of the lot.

A buffer zone between the residential section to the north and east of the property would be required, the board said. Although the Metropolitan Sanitary District does not require water retention on a lot this small, Parker said the village would insist the hotel take care of its own water runoff.

As the zoning change is approved, the motel would have 150 rooms, 10,000 square feet of meeting rooms, and a restaurant with seating for 100 persons. Samatas said only hotel guests would use the meeting rooms and restaurant, and therefore parking was more than adequate.

Zoners oppose motel project

Citing inadequate parking and lot size, the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals Wednesday voiced disapproval of a proposed seven-story motel at the northeast corner of Algonquin Road and Thorntree Lane, across from Walden Apartments.

Approximately 75 residents from Plum Grove Estates, unincorporated Palatine, attended the meeting in protest of the motel, which would be adjacent to their homes.

The 2 1/2-acre parcel is in unincorporated Cook County, and the land owner, George Samatas, requested annexation to Schaumburg and business zoning for the motel, the Royal Court Inn.

He also asked for a variation from the 35-foot height restriction to construct the 7-story building, and a variation in setback requirements. Samatas owns another motel, also called the Royal Court Inn, in Des Plaines.

Suspect moved to Bridewell

Cook County Sheriff's police yesterday took custody of Elaine Edfors, the Rolling Meadows woman charged with the murders of her two daughters Monday. Mrs. Edfors was moved from Northwest Community Hospital to the Bridewell House of Corrections hospital wing in Chicago yesterday.

A spokesman for the Cook County state's attorney's office said sheriff's police took custody of Mrs. Edfors early yesterday and ordered the move. She had been listed Wednesday in critical condition, suffering from psychological rather than physical injuries, according to a hospital spokesman.

ROLLING MEADOWS Police Chief Lewis R. Case said yesterday, however, that doctors reported Mrs. Edfors was semi-conscious when she was brought to the Bridewell, but relapsed into unconsciousness soon after.

The state's attorney's spokesman said Mrs. Edfors is thought to be in good condition.

"She would not have been moved unless she was in fairly good condition," the spokesman added.

POLICE HAVE not yet questioned Mrs. Edfors in connection with the slayings of her eight- and nine-year-old daughters, Pamela and Debbie, in their home at 3600 Jay Ln. Monday. The girls were beaten to death with a hammer.

Mrs. Edfors was hospitalized following the incident suffering from apparent self-inflicted cuts on the wrists and throat. She has been charged with both murders and could face a maximum sentence of life imprisonment if convicted.

A court date has not been set, but the state's attorney's spokesman said a trial will probably be held within two weeks.

A coroner's inquest into the deaths will not be held for six weeks. Case has said the contents of several bloodstained letters apparently written by Mrs. Edfors and found at the scene of the murders would be revealed during an inquest. Case has indicated the letters contain information related to the killings.

Why will tax bills be late? The answer is twofold

by ROGER CAPETTINI
and BOB LAHEY

This is a multiple-choice story about late tax bills, a Cook County phenomenon which occurs perhaps seven out of 10 years. Check one:

(A) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because the chief judge of the Circuit Court failed to fill a vacancy on the Board of Tax Appeals.

(B) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because computers in the Department of Local Government Affairs (LGA) were unable to compute figures which used to be done by clerks.

If you checked (A), you were half right. If you checked (B), you were half right.

When County Board Pres. George W. Dunne announced last week the property tax bills would be at least one month late again this year, various sources attributed the costly delay to John Boyle, chief judge of the Circuit Court.

The watchdog Civic Federation, however, said the LGA has to shoulder some of the responsibility.

WHEREVER THE responsibility rests,

the resulting cost to county taxpayers, in the form of interest on tax anticipation warrants, will be an estimated $2 million.

The Civic Federation has estimated the warrants will cost almost $35,000 a day to the City of Chicago, Cook County, Chicago Park District, Forest Preserve and Chicago City Colleges. The cost to the several hundred other county taxing bodies, it has been estimated, will at least double that amount.

Judge Boyle's part in this year's version of the almost annual tax mess stems from his failure to name a successor to George Keane on the Board of (Tax) Appeals for almost two months following Keane's resignation Dec. 1.

Finally, in late January, the judge appointed Seymour Zaban to the post. In the meantime, however, the board fell far behind in its task of hearing thousands of appeals filed by dissatisfied taxpayers.

THE COMPUTATION of tax rates and tax bills cannot begin until the board of appeals has completed its work.

Cook County political observer, have claimed the judge's delay in making the appointment, charged to him by law, resulted from disagreement within the Democratic Party over who the successor should be.

Judge Boyle was not available for comment.

The second share of the fault this year goes to the LGA for its inability to provide the county clerk with figures on the assessment of capital stock by March 1.

The LGA is charged with determining the value of state service corporations — such as utilities and insurance companies — over and above the tangible assets of the company.

Those figures also are critical.

A spokesman for the LGA admitted partial responsibility for the late tax bills. He said the LGA has encountered serious problems in the computer system used to determine capital stock assessments.

A second spokesman for the LGA has estimated the work will not be completed until the end of March. The county clerk needs about 30 days in which to compute the tax rates and bills after receiving the information from the LGA.

That timetable apparently coincides with Dunne's estimate the tax bills will be mailed May 1, with the first installment payment due June 1.

But, Dunne said, there may be additional delays if further problems in the billing procedure occur.

Work on YMCA on time; fall opening planned

Construction of the Countryside YMCA is on schedule, with an opening date set for September. And Y officials now are preparing rental charges for local organizations to use the swimming pool and other facilities included in the new building.

Membership fees have already been set by YMCA officials. YMCA memberships are based on a two-part contribution system, with an annual pledge to the Y of $25 to $100 and a four-year investment pledge to support the building fund. For those members, a proposed set of program fees is also being worked out.

Those tentative annual program fees would cost families $75, youths 8-18, $30; age 19-24, $35; college students outside the area, $30; and adults, $45. Daily visitor fees of $1.50 and $2 are also planned for a limit of three visits per year for recreational activities.

ALTHOUGH THE fee schedule has not officially been approved by Y directors, the membership committee now has set up proposed rental procedures and costs for non-Y members.

Under the tentative schedule, hourly rates for the swimming pool would be $40, the gymnasium, $30; kitchen $25; meeting rooms $15 hourly or $50 daily, and all purpose rooms for $25 an hour or $150 a day.

Equipment, such as film projectors, slide projectors and program equipment will also be available for rental.

RESERVATIONS FOR the facilities will be taken between two weeks and a month before the event, and a $25 deposit will be required with each application. Religious, social, educational, civic, cultural, recreational and service groups will be given priority in the use of the facilities among non-Y groups.

During the week, the facilities will be rented during times when there are no YMCA programs scheduled. Saturday evenings are open from 6 to 10 p.m. for group rental. Sunday reservations will require special consideration by the Y board of directors.

Its first year of operation will cost the Countryside Y an estimated $600,000, according to a proposed 1973-74 budget starting in July. The last full year of operation in the Johnson Street house in Palatine cost $150,000, according to Y executive director Herman Hertog.

The house at 115 W. Johnson St. belongs to the village and may be used by a village department after the Y staff moves out in August.

The annual meeting and dinner-dance for Y members will be April 27 at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge in Palatine. Bylaw changes affected by completion of the new building on Northwest Highway and Baldwin Road will be approved by the members at that meeting.

Bookmobile idea unpopular here

More than half of the nearly 300 Rolling Meadows residents recently surveyed on the need for a bookmobile in the city were opposed to the idea.

Many of those opposing the idea said they would not use a bookmobile because it would be just as easy for them to go to the Rolling Meadows Public Library at 3110 Martin Ln.

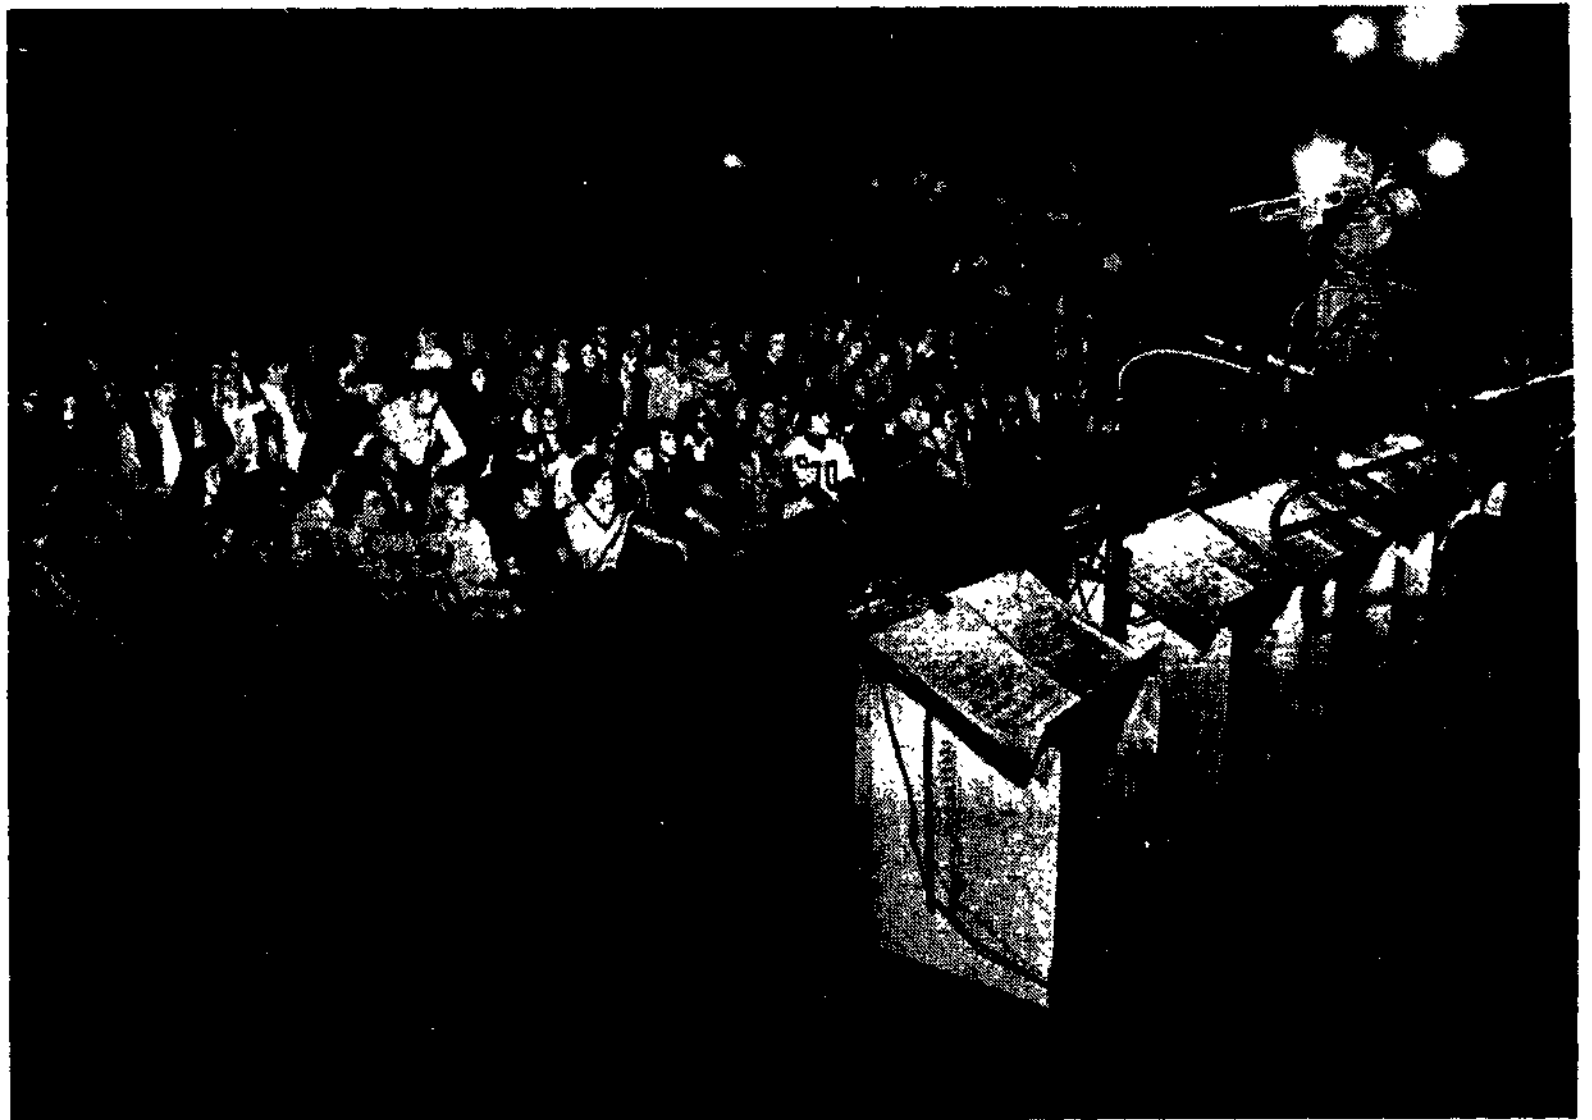

44 per cent of the residents surveyed said they would use bookmobile services if they were offered. The results of the survey have not yet been broken down geographically.

The Project Bookmobile committee has decided to continue the telephone survey of residents until its next meeting on March 28.

At the March 28 meeting the Project Bookmobile committee is expected to make a decision on how to proceed with the idea of starting a bookmobile in Rolling Meadows.

The committee could decide there is not enough interest and abandon the project, decide to continue pursuing the idea in conjunction with the Rolling Meadows Civil Defense Department or decide to go off on their own.

SINCE THE IDEA of a bookmobile originated the committee has been working with the civil defense department looking for a government surplus vehicle that could be used as a bookmobile except when needed by the civil defense for emergency transportation. A suitable vehicle has not been found yet.

Students dump council; seek to improve communications

by JOANN VAN WYE

After a year and a half of trying to make student government work at Rolling Meadows High School, the student council has been abandoned.

So ended the tradition of holding annual popularity contests under the guise of student government elections at the school. Popularity and hard work just didn't go hand in hand.

The decision to dissolve the representative council was technically an administrative one but it was spurred by a group of interested students who felt there had to be a better way to represent the student body.

"High school elections are popularity contests. They always have been and they always will be," said Larry Pressi, a handsome senior athlete who also happens to be student body president.

"Once the people get elected they find out it isn't what they wanted," said Larry. "They end up becoming a lot of dead weight. They come to the meetings out of a sense of obligation but don't participate."

"We had about 20 members on the council who didn't want to give any time," said Larry.

"WE HAD REACHED the limits of the old system," said Larry. In addition to lack of interest, there were conflicts over goals and responsibilities with the old system, said Larry.

The students had no intention of giving up their voice in school affairs by dissolving the representative council but were simply looking for a more effective way to communicate.

Since dissolving the representative council a group of approximately 50 interested students has been meeting on a regular and voluntary basis to come up with a workable alternative to the old system.

A STUDENT BODY assembly is planned for the early spring to present the new plan.

While the details are still being worked out, Larry said it appears there will only be two elective posts — president and vice president.

The remainder of the council will be composed of students who were interested enough to circulate nominating petitions and get a specified number of signatures. Larry said under the free petition system students might be given three days to get 500 student signatures. Any students meeting the deadline would automatically become council members.

"CAMPAGNING used to scare kids away. The hardest workers were not always the most popular. Under the new system these kids will have a chance to get involved too," said Larry.

It is also hoped the new system will open up the council to new group of students so it can become truly representative of the student body and not just the athletes and cheerleaders.

"High school students don't know how to accept responsibility. They don't know how to get involved," he said. Under the new system students will be able to accept as much or as little responsibility as they can handle.

There's no sin in the centerfold

'Gallery girl' bares naked truth

"What is a nice girl like you doing posing nude in a magazine like that?" That might be the question put to Kris Thornstadt by the average person.

But for Kris, an attractive 21-year-old who has lived in this area most of her life, the reason she posed for eight pages of photographs, including the centerfold, in the March issue of Gallery magazine is simple and unimpeachable.

"I see it as just an extension on my modeling career," she said succinctly. The Mount Prospect native who now lives in Hoffman Estates and works in Elk Grove Village said the Gallery gatefold experience did not mark any great milestone in her life.

"It all started as sort of a joke. It took three days to shoot the pictures, and I did not get any kind of kinky thrill from the whole thing," Kris explained.

THAT REMARK might come as a disappointment for the average reader of those magazines — which offer those great literary articles and, oh yes, a few pictures — but Kris emphasized there was "no playing around during the picture session" and "the pictures were not taken during some orgy."

Kris said she eventually hopes to make modeling her full-time career, but right now finds bartending a good way to make a living. A graduate of Northern Illinois University, Kris said she went to college so she could have a degree.

She does not look at being the Gallery Girl as opening any new doors or offering new job opportunities.

"I have done a few things, but by next time there will be a new issue of the magazine, a new centerfold and everyone will say 'Kris Thornstadt — who was she,'" Kris said.

KRIS DOES NOT share the Women's Lib appraisal of magazines such as Gallery being debasing to females or a bedrock plank of the male chauvinism ethic.

"It is a matter of personal taste, and choice," she said, adding, "I am as liberated as I want to be. There are very few things around that I cannot do if I really feel like it."

She added, however, Gallery does not try to promote a lifestyle and image, as done by Playboy and other magazines in the field.

"Gallery just presents a magazine with articles and the pictures; they do not try to tell you what type of life to lead or what the typical reader's woman should look and act like," Kris said.

GENERALLY, reaction to Kris' pictures has been favorable, she added.

"My father thought it was great, but my boyfriend was a little embarrassed," she said. Most of the customers at her place of work who recognize her from the magazine have been complimentary, Kris said.

"But it is the two per cent who are creeps that can make things difficult," she added.

She has no great plans for the future, and the Gallery experience will probably not be anything more than a memory in a few weeks, she believes.

"I don't see myself as any type of freak. I don't think it takes any particular type of person to pose nude in a magazine," she said.

"It was just another job."

From Burt Reynolds to Rudy Vallee

Arlington Theatre adds dash of culture

by BETTY LEE

The Arlington Park Theatre has been called a miniature John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, providing a dash of culture to the rapid sprawl of housing developments and shopping centers in the Northwest suburbs.

But many local residents who drive by have never been inside to see the looming columns, plush red carpeting, the lighted fountains or Burt Reynolds, Rudy Vallee and other stars who ply their trade on stage.

The theater was constructed at this site at Euclid Avenue and Rohlfing Road "because of the tremendous potential for growth here," said Karen Alton, publicist. "Arlington Heights is a good community because a lot of people know where it's located. People are moving and expanding. A quality theater can no longer be restricted to the Loop or the inner city."

THE ARLINGTON Park Theatre was built less than two years ago. Architect Milton Zie of Chicago was commissioned to design it, and David Lonn, managing director, worked closely with him to create the kind of theater Lonn wanted. A quick visual tour shows a theater-in-the-round, or arena, as they like to call it. It has a capacity of 723 persons with the farthest seat 23 feet from the stage.

"Lonn didn't want just a section of a restaurant or the basement of some hotel for a quality theater," said Miss Alton. "He wanted a free-standing theater with the grace and magnitude of professionalism."

Two years prior to groundbreaking of the Arlington Park theater, there was a lot of hard work and a lot of anguish, but there was also a strong feeling of confidence for a full-quality theater to grow in the Northwest suburban communities.

"We try to get away from the concept of the suburban theater for they often have a connotation of less quality," said Miss Alton.

Lonn is constantly reading plays, looking for quality plays of no particular type. He usually visualizes a certain star for certain parts and tries to get him.

"We don't categorize the types of shows they are, just so they are done with great talent, and that the play itself is of great talent," said Miss Alton.

LONN'S VISUALIZATION is so strong that we don't have a pool of artists to choose from. For example, he wanted James Farentino to play in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." He couldn't come for a long time, so we postponed it until he was able to play the part. That was over a year and a half ago.

Top stars have been professionals like Joan Fontaine, Richard Chamberlain, Lois Nettleton and others who are in television, Broadway or movies.

Shows usually run for six to eight weeks because stars are often committed to other projects concurrently.

"Engagements are often sold out and we can't make extensions," said Miss Alton. "A lot of people don't understand this, and we may be making some enemies."

And why do these top stars come to Arlington Heights when there are good Loop theaters?

"Actors are happy to work for a theater like this and for David Lonn because he's an idealist," said Miss Alton. "Word spreads fast in this business. Craftsmen want to work in unrestricted ways. Their ideas are always taken into consideration."

When Lonn was planning "Death of a Salesman," he first sought out permission from its playwright, Arthur Miller, who was living in Connecticut. The play had not been allowed in professional hands for about nine years. When Lonn told Miller of his plans, Miller was so enthused that he offered to come to Arlington Heights as an adviser for the play.

UNLIKE A LOT of theaters, Arlington

Park has no strict budgets. Rather, some of the expense has been passed on to the public when they purchase tickets. The price range of the tickets, the lowest from $5 to $8, the highest $12, fluctuates, depending on the type of production, the number of artists and set expenses.

"People are charged on what we are giving them," said Miss Alton. "They don't seem to mind. There were times when people appear near the box office and try to buy tickets off other people for handsome prices."

Word of mouth from the audiences to their friends has been one of the theater's effective form of conveying the theater's professionalism, as well as actors among themselves.

"Living in the city doesn't stop people from driving out here," said Miss Alton.

"One time a group of students came out to see a performance, and for many of them, it was their first. When the show was over, the kids enjoyed it so much that they said they would like to see plays more often and would prefer it over a movie. They had planned to come out at least once a month. That gave me a feeling of confidence and achievement."

What is the future for the quality theater in the suburbs? According to Miss Alton, the Arlington Park Theatre still is in its "embryonic stage," but she thinks that with well constructed plays and good people around, people will enjoy going to the theater.

PEOPLE GATHER in the lobby of the miniature Kennedy Center, the theater brings top stars to the suburbs.

Firm hired to prepare city audit

The auditing firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. has been approved as the company to prepare the Rolling Meadows city audit for 1972.

The company was the lowest of three bidders, agreeing to perform the audit for $6,850. Other bidders were Ernst and Ernst, which bid $7,500, and Arthur Andersen and Co., which bid $9,000.

Peat, Marwick, Mitchell, and Co. has performed municipal audits for Lake County, Schaumburg, Harwood Heights, the Niles Park District, and Oak Park.

Why will tax bills be late? The answer is twofold

by ROGER CAPELLINI
and BOB LAHEY

This is a multiple-choice story about late tax bills, a Cook County phenomenon which occurs perhaps seven out of 10 years. Check one:

(A) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because the chief judge of the Circuit Court failed to fill a vacancy on the Board of Tax Appeals.

(B) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because computers in the Department of Local Government Affairs (LGA) were unable to compute figures which used to be done by clerks.

If you checked (A), you were half right. If you checked (B), you were half right.

When County Board Pres. George W. Dunne announced last week the property tax bills would be at least one month late again this year, various sources attributed the costly delay to John Boyle, chief judge of the Circuit Court.

The watchdog Civic Federation, however, said the LGA has to shoulder some of the responsibility.

WHEREVER THE responsibility rests,

the resulting cost to county taxpayers, in the form of interest on tax anticipation warrants, will be an estimated $2 million.

The Civic Federation has estimated the warrants will cost almost $35,000 a day to the City of Chicago, Cook County, Chicago Park District, Forest Preserve and Chicago City Colleges. The cost to the several hundred other county taxing bodies, it has been estimated, will at least double that amount.

Judge Boyle's part in this year's version of the almost annual tax mess stems from his failure to name a successor to George Keane on the Board of (Tax) Appeals for almost two months following Keane's resignation Dec. 1.

Finally, in late January, the judge appointed Seymour Zaban to his post. In the meantime, however, the board fell far behind in its task of hearing thousands of appeals filed by dissatisfied taxpayers.

THE COMPUTATION of tax rates and tax bills cannot begin until the board of appeals has completed its work.

Cook County political observers have claimed the judge's delay in making the appointment, charged to him by law, resulted from disagreement within the Democratic Party over who the successor should be.

Judge Boyle was not available for comment.

The second share of the fault this year goes to the LGA for its inability to provide the county clerk with figures on the assessment of capital stock by March 1.

The LGA is charged with determining the value of state service corporations — such as utilities and insurance companies — over and above the tangible assets of the company.

Those figures also are critical.

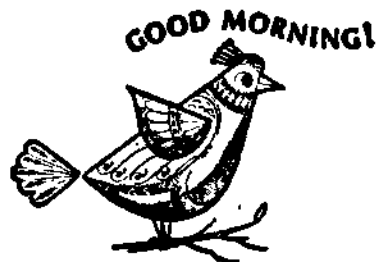

A spokesman for the LGA admitted partial responsibility for the late tax bills. He said the LGA has encountered serious problems in the computer system used to determine capital stock assessments.

A second spokesman for the LGA has estimated the work will not be completed until the end of March. The county clerk needs about 30 days in which to compute the tax rates and bills after receiving the information from the LGA.

That timetable apparently coincides with Dunne's estimate the tax bills will be mailed May 1, with the first installment payment due June 1.

But, Dunne said, there may be additional delays if further problems in the billing procedure occur.

At Woodfield, Mall Drive

Announcement of 11-story office building seen today

Plans for an 11-story office building as the first phase of Woodfield Place development of IDC Realty Company were to be announced this morning by Robert Wislow, local executive for the El Paso, Tex., firm.

The office building will be at the intersection of Woodfield and Mall drives, and will have underground storm water retention, according to unofficial but well-placed sources.

Future development on the 20-acre parcel that stretches from Woodfield Drive to Higgins Road will include a large hotel, not expected to be as tall as the office structure but not yet tied down to a specific size. While no firm has been signed to operate the hotel, sources believe, negotiations are being held both with hotel chains and nonchain operators.

Retail property also is included in the development plan, and some sources speculated Neiman-Marcus Co., exclusive Texas retailer, still may be in the Woodfield Place picture. While Neiman-Marcus has petitioned for a zoning change for a facility in Northbrook, residents there are opposing the project, and IDC is known to have been negotiating with Neiman-Marcus. It is the "kind of a store IDC would love to have," one source noted.

A health club and tennis center also will be in the IDC plans, with other entertainment facilities.

NORTHBROOK officials said yesterday the future of the proposed center there still is undetermined. The roughly 140-acre development there is to be anchored by a Sears Roebuck and Co. store, if the zoning change is approved. The village's plan commission has held its first public hearing on the request, which was the scene of local opposition, and further commission discussions are scheduled for March 6. At that point, the commission is expected to make a recommendation to the village board, said staff assistant James Mathews.

Mathews said the commission may recommend plan approval as is, may deny plan approval or may approve the plan with stipulated changes. The earliest date the village board could receive and consider the commission's decision is March 19, he said. The Northbrook site is at the intersection of Lake Cook and Lee roads.

Neiman-Marcus is a subsidiary of Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., of Dallas, and is headed by members of the Marcus family. In current references it is listed as grossing $80 million in sales in its four Texas retail stores, a Florida store and boutiques in Houston and Dallas. It was merged with Broadway-Hale in August 1970.

Zoners oppose plans for new motel

Citing inadequate parking and lot size, the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals Wednesday voiced disapproval of a proposed seven-story motel at the northeast corner of Algonquin Road and Thorntree Lane, across from Walden Apartments.

Approximately 75 residents from Plum Grove Estates, unincorporated Palatine, attended the meeting in protest of the motel, which would be adjacent to their homes.

The 2½-acre parcel is in unincorporated Cook County, and the land owner, George Samatas, requested annexation to Schaumburg and business zoning for the motel, the Royal Court Inn.

He also asked for a variation from the 35-foot height restriction to construct the 7-story building, and a variation in setback requirements. Samatas owns another motel, also called the Royal Court Inn, in Des Plaines.

EDWARD MRAZ, attorney for the owner, was granted a 30-day continuance to March 28 to redesign the plans and meet the village's parking requirements.

THE ARCHITECT, Lawrence Gold, had provided 208 spaces, an inadequate number for a motel designed to service businessmen associated with local companies, board chairman Russell Parker said.

The motel would have 150 rooms, 10,000 square feet of meeting rooms, and a restaurant with seating for 100 persons. Samatas said only hotel guests would use the meeting rooms and restaurant, and therefore parking was more than adequate.

Board members disputed this point, stating business meetings would also be attended by local residents who work at such companies as Motorola and Western Electric.

Aside from the parking issue, board members said that Thorntree Lane would have to be improved and widened, further reducing the size of the lot.

A buffer zone between the residential section to the north and east of the property would be required, the board said. Although the Metropolitan Sanitary District does not require water retention on a lot this small, Parker said the village would insist the hotel take care of its own water runoff.

Plum Grove Estates residents in the audience also questioned the adequacy of the sanitary system, which Parker assured them would be sufficient for the project.

Norbert Hladler, representing the Plum Grove Estates Property Association, said the zoning requested would not be consistent with the residential area. Mrs. Robert Ashley of N. Circle Drive, Palatine, pointed to the storm water problem and the possible devaluation of area homes as a result of the project.

THE SUGGESTION that the land be purchased for a park was brought up by Gary Perkins of Thorntree Lane. Perkins suggested the village condemn the land and turn it into a park.

Parker suggested the residents in the affected area consider purchasing the land, which does not affect most Schaumburg residents who live further south.

When asked by board members if they would approve a building with fewer stories, Plum Grove Estates residents were unwilling to specify any maximum height. One resident did suggest a smaller commercial structure, compatible with the residential area, would be tolerated.

Hospital permit may have violated open meeting law

by STEVE BROWN

Approval by the Illinois Hospital Licensing Board of an application for an initial operating permit for the Schaumburg branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes (RPSL) Medical Center may have violated the state's open meeting law.

If the board did not make its recommendation to grant the operating permit in an open session the deliberations were unauthorized and the action could be invalid, said former Democratic Rep. Anthony Scariano of Park Forest, sponsor of the law.

Dr. William Lees, a member of the state board, said the board was polled by mail for their recommendations on the request. He said the board did not meet.

The board at their last regular meeting in January said they would defer action until their next meeting in April. Officials announced yesterday the permit had been approved.

ALSO, DR. FRANKLIN YODER, former director of the department of public health, told Dr. James Campbell, RPSL president, the decision would be deferred until April.

Yoder has since been replaced by Dr. Joyce Lashof, the former chairman of the hospital's department of preventive medicine. She approved the operating permit after the board made the recommendation.

The open meeting law states that action taken in unauthorized sessions by a public body is invalid. The law also requires that the public be informed of all meetings held by public bodies.

State Representatives Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said they both plan to examine the action of the board to determine if there were any irregularities.

Dr. Lees said he had received a letter from George Hendrix, chairman of the hospital licensing board, requesting his recommendation on the application.

"The application was in order. There was not one iota of evidence presented against the development of a hospital there. We did not hide anything. We did not violate the law," he said.

THE BOARD had agreed to review a health planning study prepared for the Northwest Cook County Health Needs Study Committee before making recommendations.

Dr. Lees said he did not receive a copy of the report, which was partially financed with a $12,000 state grant, before making a decision. He added that he did not believe any of the board members had seen the report either.

Both Chapman and Totten were unclear as to what action they could take, but they said the plan to examine the board's actions.

"It appears that the board did not make an effort to allow the people of the community to become fully involved in this decision," Rep. Chapman said.

Totten said he had received requests from several persons to look into the matter to determine what could be done.

An action can be filed with the courts to have a review of the board's conduct and the court can set aside any decisions made during unauthorized sessions, said Scariano.

Mental Health Center, library each get $25,000

Revenue-sharing funds distributed

The Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center and Schaumburg Township Public Library each received a $25,000 portion of the Schaumburg Township $103,000 federal revenue-sharing fund Wednesday.

The Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board had previously requested almost three times that amount, $65,000, be given to the center.

Township officials at an earlier meeting received a financial report substantiating the request for $65,000 for the center.

However, Wednesday a revised report showed a need for $35,000 instead of the previously anticipated deficit of $44,900.

In that previous report, Schaumburg Township's share of costs from September of 1972 to June of 1973 was estimated at $44,900.

THE REVISED report submitted Wednesday by Mrs. Connie Schoeld, chairman of the mental health board, showed a drastic reduction in past treatment expenses, lowering the cost to $35,000.

Mrs. Schoeld explained that the earlier report, hastily drawn up, did not fully indicate other anticipated income.

Also, statistical data on the Schaumburg Township caseload had not taken into consideration those cases that had terminated.

The new report showed Schaumburg Township patients had used 1,528 interview hours. At a rate of $25 per hour, this brings the past expenses for the September 1972 period through January of this year to $38,200. The original estimate of treatment expenses for the same period was $50,000.

ALTHOUGH the auditors had at the earlier meeting challenged some of the figures in the first report and balked at the $45,000 request, there was little discussion Wednesday of the revision.

Richard English, a Schaumburg resident in the audience, questioned the center's ability to handle 100 interview hours a week from its outpost in an office in the township. He asked how one worker office was open just one day a week.

Township Supervisor Vern Laubenstein said the center provides the area office as only part of its service. He said many patients go to the Elk Grove facility where a 13-member staff can serve them.

Laubenstein commended the center for serving the township in the past and noted that the $25,000 allocations to the center could be increased in the future.

Initial meeting tonight on formation of citizens caucus

The Schaumburg area council of PTAs will hold the first organizational meeting tonight to form a citizens caucus committee to nominate School District 54 board of education candidates.

Mrs. Esther Karras, president of the Schaumburg council, has arranged an 8 p.m. meeting in the Schaumburg Township Public Library large meeting room, at 32 W. Library Ln., Schaumburg.

"I have asked representatives of 36 civic organizations within Schaumburg District 54 to attend the organizational session and present views on formation of a citizens committee caucus," said Mrs. Karras.

The PTAs of District 54 do not want to pursue a caucus if residents of the district do not show such an interest," she added.

"HOWEVER the PTA district officials have encouraged our council to get involved in this issue and the PTA feels citizens should select and place on the ballot qualified school board members," Mrs. Karras said.

This is the first Schaumburg council involvement in board elections. In the past, the council has hosted candidates' nights to present announced candidates to the residents but has never endorsed candidates. The meeting tonight is open to the public.

With filing closing March 28, for the coming April 14 election, the caucus committee may not have time to present a slate for this election but two new board of education seats will open on the Dist. 54 board next year.

Suspect moved to Bridewell

Cook County Sheriff's police yesterday took custody of Elaine Edfors, the Rolling Meadows woman charged with the murders of her two daughters Monday. Mrs. Edfors was moved from Northwest Community Hospital to the Bridewell House of Corrections hospital wing in Chicago yesterday.

A spokesman for the Cook County state's attorney's office said sheriff's police took custody of Mrs. Edfors early yesterday and ordered the move. She had been listed Wednesday in critical condition, suffering from psychological rather than physical injuries, according to a hospital spokesman.

ROLLING MEADOWS Police Chief Lewis R. Case said yesterday, however, that doctors reported Mrs. Edfors was semi-conscious when she was brought to the Bridewell, but relapsed into unconsciousness soon after.

The state's attorney's spokesman said Mrs. Edfors is thought to be in good condition.

"She would not have been moved unless she was in fairly good condition," the spokesman added.

POLICE HAVE not yet questioned Mrs. Edfors in connection with the slayings of her eight-and-nine-year-old daughters, Pamela and Debbie, in their home at 3600 Jay Ln. Monday. The girls were beaten to death with a hammer.

Mrs. Edfors was hospitalized following the incident suffering from apparent self-inflicted cuts on the wrists and throat. She has been charged with both murders and could face a maximum sentence of life imprisonment if convicted.

A court date has not been set, but the state's attorney's spokesman said a trial will probably be held within two weeks.

A coroner's inquest into the deaths will not be held for six weeks. Case has said the contents of several bloodstained letters apparently written by Mrs. Edfors and found at the scene of the murders would be revealed during an inquest. Case has indicated the letters contain information related to the killings.

"My father thought it was great, but my boyfriend was a little embarrassed," she said. Most of the customers at her place of work who recognize her from the magazine have been complimentary, Kris said.

"But it is the two per cent who are creeps that can make things difficult," she added.

She has no great plans for the future, and the Gallery experience will probably not be anything more than a memory in a few weeks, she believes.

"I don't see myself as any type of freak. I don't think it takes any particular type of person to pose nude in a magazine," she said.

"It was just another job."

Bus-car accident victims improved

A fifth accident victim Chris Schreibeing, 14, of 1615 S. Sunset Dr., Schaumburg Township, is a patient at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Miss Tolentino was a passenger in the bus. The others were all passengers in the auto.

Police have charged the driver of the car, a 14-year-old Schaumburg High School student, with driving without an operator's license, driving on the wrong side of the roadway and leaving the scene of the accident. She is Elizabeth Wojcik, of 1432 S. Sunset Dr., Schaumburg Township.

Why will tax bills be late? The answer is twofold

by ROGER CAPELLINI
and BOB LAHEY

This is a multiple-choice story about late tax bills, a Cook County phenomenon which occurs perhaps seven out of 10 years. Check one:

(A) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because the chief judge of the Circuit Court failed to fill a vacancy on the Board of Tax Appeals.

(B) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because computers in the Department of Local Government Affairs (LGA) were unable to compute figures which used to be done by clerks.

If you checked (A), you were half right. If you checked (B), you were half right.

When County Board Pres. George W. Dunne announced last week the property tax bills would be at least one month late again this year, various sources attributed the costly delay to John Boyle, chief judge of the Circuit Court.

The watchdog Civic Federation, however, said the LGA has to shoulder some of the responsibility.

WHEREVER THE responsibility rests,

the resulting cost to county taxpayers, in the form of interest on tax anticipation warrants, will be an estimated $2 million.

The Civic Federation has estimated the warrants will cost almost $35,000 a day to the City of Chicago, Cook County, Chicago Park District, Forest Preserve and Chicago City Colleges. The cost to the several hundred other county taxing bodies, it has been estimated, will at least double that amount.

Judge Boyle's part in this year's version of the almost annual tax mess stems from his failure to name a successor to George Keane on the Board of (Tax) Appeals for almost two months following Keane's resignation Dec. 1.

Finally, in late January, the judge appointed Seymour Zaban to the post. In the meantime, however, the board fell far behind in its task of hearing thousands of appeals filed by dissatisfied taxpayers.

THE COMPUTATION of tax rates and tax bills cannot begin until the board of appeals has completed its work.

Cook County political observers have claimed the judge's delay in making the appointment, charged to him by law, resulted from disagreement within the Democratic Party over who the successor should be.

Judge Boyle was not available for comment.

The second share of the fault this year goes to the LGA for its inability to provide the county clerk with figures on the assessment of capital stock by March 1.

The LGA is charged with determining the value of state service corporations — such as utilities and insurance companies — over and above the tangible assets of the company.

Those figures also are critical.

A spokesman for the LGA admitted partial responsibility for the late tax bills. He said the LGA has encountered serious problems in the computer system used to determine capital stock assessments.

A second spokesman for the LGA has estimated the work will not be completed until the end of March. The county clerk needs about 30 days in which to compute the tax rates and bills after receiving the information from the LGA.

That timetable apparently coincides with Dunne's estimate the tax bills will be mailed May 1, with the first installment payment due June 1.

But, Dunne said, there may be additional delays if further problems in the billing procedure occur.

Candidate hits village 'brick-and-mortar' attitude

Mayor secretly annexed federal housing: Minton

Michael Minton, independent candidate for Mount Prospect mayor, yesterday accused Mayor Robert D. Teichert of secretly annexing "federally subsidized housing projects accompanied by new patterns of crime, violence and vandalism."

Minton, reading from a prepared statement, spoke before a group of 20 including three children, shortly after noon yesterday in front of the village hall. A symbolic ribbon cutting initiated the door-to-door portion of Minton's campaign.

In his statement, Minton said Mount Prospect "is becoming a community of brick, mortar and closed-door land deals." He made a pledge to go before the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary after his election, to prevent "further urbanization of our great village."

"I AM HERE TODAY," he read, "dedicating my march to these people I dearly love — and of whom I am deeply concerned — my friends and neighbors of Mount Prospect. I bring this message to them — a message of broken promises by their present mayor. You cannot promise the people of Mount Prospect 'No annexation of any measurable size without their approval,' and then sit in the mayors chair and secretly annex federally subsidized housing projects."

Minton said that he feels the people of Mount Prospect have not been given enough voice in their government. He called on residents to support him and then, after the election, to attend village board meetings to state their views on issues. "There is a seat up there for every one of you," he said, deviating from the prepared text.

The candidate also said he was concerned over "the increased tax burden which you (residents) are asked to bear with no additional services provided." He continued, "I am concerned about the increase of crime and the flow of drugs in our community. I am concerned about the closed-door policy of our present mayor."

FINALLY, he pledged to "return the suburban way of life to Mount Prospect for those of us who have chosen to escape the big city."

The first area of the village which Minton will visit during his "march" is Precinct 17, the area bounded by Seminole Lane, River Road, Camp McDonald Road and Mandel Lane.

Pumphouse, ICE House ready to work in their new home

The Mount Prospect Pump House Hotline and ICE House Counseling Center are set to begin operations in their new home Monday.

According to village health officer Marjorie Boswell, most of the equipment of the two facilities is in the new location at 100-110 E. Northwest Hwy. Telephone lines still must be installed. Phone numbers for both operations will remain the same, she said, but new lines will be added.

The new facilities are in the recently purchased frame building next to the Municipal Building. The village bought the building and had it remodeled. The ICE House and Hotline will have the entire second floor to themselves.

Supervision for the group will now be handled on a part-time basis by psychotherapist Morris R. Schechtman. He also has a master's degree in social work.

SCHECHTMAN, a therapist for the Northwest Mental Health Association, has been hired by the village at a cost of $3,251 for a 15-month contract. Of the sum, $1,500 will be paid directly to Schechtman. The rest will go to NMHA. Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said NMHA will oversee all the training done by therapists at the hotline and counseling center.

Eppley said Schechtman, 31, will work seven hours a week for the village.

"We would like to see him outline training for volunteers and provide psychiatric backup if we need it," Eppley said.

Closed teachers salary talks likely

Teacher contract talks in Mount Prospect Dist. 57 will probably remain closed this year, Richard Zwieback, professional negotiator for the Dist. 57 board, said yesterday.

According to Zwieback, the question of open or closed negotiations wasn't even brought up during the first meeting between the board negotiating team and representatives of the Mount Prospect Education Association (MPEA) Wednesday night. Because of this, Zwieback said he would "assume" that negotiations would remain closed.

At the meeting, MPEA representatives presented the board with a contract package offering suggestions on salary and fringe benefits. Zwieback said he will "cost out" and respond to the package presented by the teachers at the next negotiating meeting March 15.

According to Zwieback, prospects for an early settlement of the 1972-73 teacher contract look optimistic. "There was an expression on both sides to try to settle as soon as possible," Zwieback said. "Things were friendly. I think there'll be a sincere effort to bargain on both sides."

Last year, the board and the MPEA were able to settle contract negotiations in May. That contract included an average 3.9 per cent pay hike for teachers. The board also agreed to continue to pay the yearly fee toward the cost of hospitalization for their dependents. Most teachers received a 2.3 per cent raise based on experience and education, plus an additional $200 raise.

Antiflood educational campaign set

An educational campaign to help individual property owners ward off flooding of their homes will be started soon by the Mount Prospect Public Works Department.

David Creamer, department director, said this week he is having photographs taken of problems so film strips and presentations may be prepared. The presentations would outline various flooding situations and their solutions. The department's new training room will be used for the program.

The education program will be an extra benefit of the village's efforts to meet the Metropolitan Sanitary District's requirement that all sanitary sewers be inspected for illegal connections by Jan. 1, 1974.

"I DON'T see us having any problems with meeting the deadline," Creamer said. His plans are to use his current work force with no additions, but with a reorganization of duties.

However, when his men go from home to home in the areas of the village with separate sewer systems, they will be looking for drainage problems in addition to the illegal connections.

"I have to train my men first on what to look for," Creamer said. "I am about to start a crash training course for them."

He said most individual lot drainage problems arise because the owner does not know where the water is going. Many people, he said, see a wet spot in their backyard so they fill it with landfill or they make their land higher by building up dirt in gardens. "The water then has to go somewhere," he said.

Often it goes into the basement. Other times, people will pump out water from their basements, only to have it go around the house and enter the basement again from another side, he said.

"MANY PROBLEMS in an area can be solved if neighbors work together to control their drainage," Creamer added. "We're trying to do everything possible to help people."

The MSD ruling, passed last October, requires local communities to "inspect all structures within their jurisdiction or control and ascertain whether any downspouts or roof drains are connected directly or indirectly to sanitary sewers. Any such illegal connections shall be corrected by causing the downspouts to discharge to the ground or to authorized storm sewers, wet walls or ditches."

This Morning In Brief

The nation

The state department said the U.S. ambassador to the Sudan, Cleo Noel, was among the foreign diplomats seized by the group of terrorists who captured the Saudi Arabian embassy. They are demanding the release of Sirhan B. Sirhan.

Sens. George McGovern and James Abourezk met yesterday with federal Indian officials trying to win the release of 11 hostages held by militant members of the American Indian Movement at Wounded Knee, S.D.

President Nixon has abandoned, at least temporarily, his search for major reform of the nation's welfare system because he said "the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage."

Leaders of a four-week St. Louis public school strike continued to feel its effects as Circuit Judge Thomas McGuire ordered one leader jailed for 60 days, and fined the teacher organization $140,000.

A criminal court judge ruled the film "Deep Throat" obscene, and banned its further showing in Manhattan.

way to help the CTA, which may have to hike fares and cut services on March 18.

Illinois judges would be appointed under a "merit system" instead of political elections under a plan introduced in the Illinois General Assembly.

The world

A new dollar crisis hit Europe yesterday, sending the price of American currency down, and the price of gold up. West Germany's central bank bought more than $2 billion in a battle with speculators.

The security chiefs of Poland and Czechoslovakia were killed in the crash of a Polish military aircraft near the East German border, Police officials said.

Authorities have identified a skeleton dug out of World War II rubble as that of Martin Barmann.

The war

Vietnam peace supervisors reported four specially marked helicopters used by truce teams have been hit by gunfire in the past five days. Communist officials said 136 American prisoners of war, and six foreign captives would be set free Sunday in Hanoi. The announcement came as officials signed a pact for a guaranteed peace in Vietnam.

Peeling sunburn is not one of your usual midwinter problems. However, that's what Lois Hansen, 313 N. Dale Ave., has this week. It resulted from four days of sunning and relaxing at the Kullima Resort in Hawaii.

The trip was Phil Hansen's special birthday gift to his wife this year. The Hansens, traveling with friends from Hoffman Estates, stayed on the windward side of Oahu — more than an hour's drive from busy Honolulu.

One thing they particularly enjoyed, said Lois, was having breakfast each morning on the resort's lovely outdoor terrace. They also found the island's Polynesian Cultural Center interesting.

February's ice and snow seemed to put many folks in the mood to go south. Two other local couples returned Wednesday from an eight-day stay on Mallorca, one of the Balearic Islands.

Penny and George Anderson, 1005 Isabella Ave., and Ray and Adrienne Schultz, 2113 Haven, also took side trips to Rome, Italy, and Barcelona, Spain.

On Mallorca their days were filled with sightseeing trips including visits to a leather goods factory, a pearl factory, the underground Cave of Drach, and the governor's mansion. They also visited the island of Formentera. Aristotle Onassis often docks his yacht at this tiny island. Other frequent visitors there are Richard and Elizabeth Burton and Princess Grace of Monaco.

Two other Mount Prospect couples chose to spend their vacations in the snow. Vonnie and Warren Wangen, 405 N. Dale Ave., skied Aspen, Vail, and Snowmass during their week-long stay in Colorado. Their trip also included visits with friends in Omaha, Neb., and Denver, Colo.

One evening they spent with Mount Prospect neighbors Jack and Barbara Schwieler, 1004 Gregory St. The Schwieberts, with friends from Elk Grove Village, spent their week's vacation skiing at Snowmass.

Hersey 'week' honors 24 foreign students

Fifteen foreign exchange students from southwestern Illinois will join nine local American Field Service exchange students during international week at Hersey High School. Host families will also participate in the week of events.

Wednesday's schedule includes a field trip for the foreign students and their host "brothers" and "sisters." They will tour parts of downtown Chicago, including Malcolm X College, the Urban League, and other areas. Wednesday evening will be spent at Harper College, where actor Vincent Price will speak.

The week begins with a potluck dinner Sunday at the school. Monday, students will attend classes and swim at Wheeling High School.

Tuesday they will have a roller skating party, and on Thursday a special viewing of "Antigone" at Hersey is planned. The week will finish out with parties Friday and Saturday evenings.

Des Plaines decision won't hinder plans: Teichert

Village will stay in DAMP

Mount Prospect officials will continue their quest to bring Lake Michigan water to the suburbs by pipeline whether Des Plaines withdraws from the DAMP commission or not, according to Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert.

Last week, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said Des Plaines may soon drop out of the Des Plaines-Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect-Palatine (DAMP) water commission. Des Plaines has been a member of the coalition since it was formed in 1957.

"If they pull out, it doesn't change any of our goals," Teichert said. "I think a commission is still feasible." Besides, Teichert said, talk of pulling out of DAMP may only be part of election campaigning.

"THINGS ARE hard to gauge at this time of election. People are trying to say things to try to save money," Teichert said. "I don't put too much credence in these things that happen near election. Des Plaines doesn't really have to make a decision until they are asked for more money."

DAMP's plans to build an $80 million pipeline have been stalled by a series of lawsuits, the latest filed against the commission by the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD). Teichert said each commission member has contributed $1,500 to legal expenses so far and all the money has not yet been used.

Behrel, who says he no longer wants Des Plaines to pay one-quarter of the legal expenses, is seeking re-election in April.

If Des Plaines does pull out, Teichert said, the first step for the other DAMP members would be to check how the withdrawal affects them financially. "With the growth of our communities, it may be feasible for the three of us to form a commission," he said. "But we may find it is not so economical and I'm not opposed to cooperating with other communities, or joining Tree Towns. Water to Tree Towns would come in the same direction."

TREE TOWNS is a water commission including Elmhurst, Villa Park and Lombard. In 1970, there was talk the two groups would merge, but to date there has been no merger.

There has been speculation Des Plaines might withdraw from DAMP, since nine years ago, when in need of additional water, the city signed a contract with the City of Chicago. The water contract with Chicago expires in 18 months.

With Chicago expires in 18 months. "I appreciate that Des Plaines was in a bind before and had to cast their lot with Chicago," Teichert said. "I'm sure in their minds they feel that if the pipelines were there a sister community wouldn't refuse to let them tie in at a later date. And I am convinced they would be right."

Township GOP promises no tax hike for four years

No tax increase for the next four years is the chief point in the platform of the Republican slate for Elk Grove Township offices.

Richard Hall, candidate for township supervisor, presented the platform Monday at a meeting of the Regular Republican Organization of Elk Grove Township.

Hall said the township tax rate for 1973-74 will be reduced by 10 per cent through "sound administration and budgetary practices."

IN OTHER points of the platform, the Republicans pledged:

- Improvement of township services.
- Fair and economical general assistance.
- Efficient highway maintenance and improvement.
- Honest and fair property evaluations.
- Concern with ecological problems.
- Solution of problems through local government.

• High quality township government.

ABOUT 200 persons attended the meeting, which served as a kickoff for the Republican campaign.

During a speech at the meeting, Hall attacked the independent slate running for township office. He called them "fronts" for the Democratic Party and said they were running for office, "not to serve, not to build, not to strengthen, but to destroy township government."

The independent slate has a platform that calls for the abolishment of township government.

Hall said if township government is eliminated, the Cook County Democratic organization would seek to move out to the suburban areas.

If the Democratic organization took over the function of township government, "it would bring about a disastrous reduction in services and a huge increase in taxes to each and every township resident," said Hall.

Schools to study salary study

The High School Dist. 214 Board will meet Monday to decide what to do with a study of administrative salaries in the district that has cost more than $15,000.

The study, conducted by A. T. Kearney, Inc., a consulting firm, recommends that the board establish a salary plan next year for the district's 101 administrators that would provide a minimum salary of $18,600 and a maximum salary of $43,600 for the superintendent.

In addition, the study recommends that the board consider raising the amount of life insurance and the mileage allowance granted administrators and suggests adopting a system of "management by objectives" to be used in evaluating administrators.

FOLLOWING A discussion of the study at this week's board meeting, members agreed to meet as a committee of the whole Monday to discuss what to do with the recommendations. The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Supt. Edward Gilbert said one thing they may want to discuss is whether to contract with Kearney to develop a "management by objectives" program.

When the board originally hired Kearney it agreed to pay $15,500 for the first part of the study and said it would decide later whether to pay an additional $3,000 to have Kearney develop a management by objectives program.

So far, Gilbert said, the district has paid $15,036 to Kearney with further billings still to come. According to a representative from Kearney, the $15,500 price was an estimate and the total cost for the first part of the study will probably not exceed $16,000.

BOARD MEMBER Jack Costello said he was pleased with the general salary structure suggested by Kearney, in which jobs would be placed in categories with salary ranges representing levels of experience and competence. The structure, Costello said, "does permit wide latitude for experience and ability. It means we're not headed for equal pay for equal title."

However, Costello said he is concerned about several aspects of the report, including the recommendation for the specific salary ranges.

"I think the minimums set here are much too high," he said.

Board member Jack Matthews said the board should now discuss with district administrators which direction to go with the salary program.

"When we started this study," he said, "what we wanted out of it was some ideas — and we got some ideas."

Floros joins 'coffee circuit'

Another candidate for village office in Mount Prospect will join the "coffee circuit."

Independent village trustee candidate Leo Floros said some 20 coffees have already been scheduled for him by Jane Strasser, his coffee chairman. The first of these will be Tuesday at 600 Go-Wanda Ave., the home of Pat Kimball.

Floros said yesterday that at least 10 more coffees will be scheduled to bring the total to 30. He added that he may go on a two-a-day coffee schedule during the week prior to the April 17 village elections.

The coffees will be used by Floros as a means of presenting his positions on local issues to small groups.

Floros is the only independent candidate seeking election as village trustee. His three opponents for the three available four-year terms are Donald B. Furst, Patrick J. Link and Bud Richardson, all incumbents and all members of the Village Party slate. Richard Hendricks, another slate member, is unopposed for the available two year term.

Permit not granted in open meeting

Hospital OK may have violated law

by STEVE BROWN
Approval by the Illinois Hospital Licensing Board of an application for an initial operating permit for the Schaumburg branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes (RPSL) Medical Center may have violated the state's open meeting law.

If the board did not make its recommendation to grant the operating permit in an open session the deliberations were unauthorized and the action could be invalid, said former Democratic Rep. Anthony Sciarano of Park Forest, sponsor of the law.

Dr. William Lees, a member of the state board, said the board was polled by mail for their recommendations on the request. He said the board did not meet.

The board at their last regular meeting in January said they would defer action until their next meeting in April. Officials announced yesterday the permit had been approved.

ALSO, DR. FRANKLIN YODER, former director of the department of public health, told Dr. James Campbell, RPSL president, the decision would be deferred until April.

Yoder has since been replaced by Dr. Joyce Lashof, the former chairman of the hospital's department of preventive medicine. She approved the operating permit after the board made the recommendation.

The open meeting law states that action taken in unauthorized sessions by a public body is invalid. The law also requires that the public be informed of all meetings held by public bodies.

State Representatives Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said they both plan to examine the action of the board to determine if there were any irregularities.

Dr. Lees said he had received a letter from George Hendrix, chairman of the hospital licensing board, requesting his recommendation on the application.

"The application was in order. There was not one iota of evidence presented against the development of a hospital there. We did not hide anything. We did not violate the law," he said.

THE BOARD had agreed to review a health planning study prepared for the Northwest Cook County Health Needs Study Committee before making recommendations.

Dr. Lees said he did not receive a copy of the report, which was partially financed with a $12,000 state grant, before making a decision. He added that he did not believe any of the board members had seen the report either.

Both Chapman and Totten were unclear as to what action they could take, but they said the plan to examine the board's actions.

"It appears that the board did not make an effort to allow the people of the community to become fully involved in this decision," Rep. Chapman said.

Totten said he had received requests from several persons to look into the matter to determine what could be done.

An action can be filed with the courts to have a review of the board's conduct and the court can set aside any decisions made during unauthorized sessions, said Sciarano.

Bagful of books stolen from house

A Trans World Airlines bag, filled with books "of no value," were taken Sunday night or Monday during a burglary at 101 W. Sunset Rd., Mount Prospect.

The owner, Robert F. Rivard, told police the bag and books were the only items in the house at the time of the burglary. He is in the process of moving into the community.

Police said the rear storm door window had been smashed and the wooden door pushed in by the burglar.

Dr. William Lees, a member of the state board, said the board was polled by mail for their recommendations on the request. He said the board did not meet.

The board at their last regular meeting in January said they would defer action until their next meeting in April. Officials announced yesterday the permit had been approved.

ALSO, DR. FRANKLIN YODER, former director of the department of public health, told Dr. James Campbell, RPSL president, the decision would be deferred until April.

Yoder has since been replaced by Dr. Joyce Lashof, the former chairman of the hospital's department of preventive medicine. She approved the operating permit after the board made the recommendation.

The open meeting law states that action taken in unauthorized sessions by a public body is invalid. The law also requires that the public be informed of all meetings held by public bodies.

State Representatives Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said they both plan to examine the action of the board to determine if there were any irregularities.

Dr. Lees said he had received a letter from George Hendrix, chairman of the hospital licensing board, requesting his recommendation on the application.

"The application was in order. There was not one iota of evidence presented against the development of a hospital there. We did not hide anything. We did not violate the law," he said.

THE BOARD had agreed to review a health planning study prepared for the Northwest Cook County Health Needs Study Committee before making recommendations.

Dr. Lees said he did not receive a copy of the report, which was partially financed with a $12,000 state grant, before making a decision. He added that he did not believe any of the board members had seen the report either.

Both Chapman and Totten were unclear as to what action they could take, but they said the plan to examine the board's actions.

"It appears that the board did not make an effort to allow the people of the community to become fully involved in this decision," Rep. Chapman said.

Totten said he had received requests from several persons to look into the matter to determine what could be done.

An action can be filed with the courts to have a review of the board's conduct and the court can set aside any decisions made during unauthorized sessions, said Sciarano.

Suspect moved to Bridewell

A spokesman for the Cook County state's attorney's office said sheriff's police took custody of Mrs. Edfors early yesterday and ordered the move. She had been listed Wednesday in critical condition, suffering from psychological rather than physical injuries, according to a hospital spokesman.

ROLLING MEADOWS Police Chief Lewis R. Case said yesterday, however, that doctors reported Mrs. Edfors was semi-conscious when she was brought to the Bridewell, but relapsed into unconsciousness soon after.

The state's attorney's spokesman said Mrs. Edfors is thought to be in good condition.

"She would not have been moved unless she was in fairly good condition," the spokesman added.

POLICE HAVE not yet questioned Mrs. Edfors in connection with the slayings of her eight- and nine-year-old daughters, Pamela and Debbie, in their home at 3500 Jay Ln. Monday. The girls were beaten to death with a hammer.

Mrs. Edfors was hospitalized following the incident suffering from apparent self-inflicted cuts on the wrists and throat. She has been charged with both murders and could face a maximum sentence of life imprisonment if convicted.

A court date has not been set, but the state's attorney's spokesman said a trial will probably be held within two weeks.

A coroner's inquest into the deaths will not be held for six weeks. Case has said the contents of several bloodstained letters apparently written by Mrs. Edfors and found at the scene of the murders would be revealed during an inquest. Case has indicated the letters contain information related to the killings.

Why will tax bills be late? The answer is twofold

by ROGER CAPETTINI
and BOB LAHEY

This is a multiple-choice story about late tax bills, a Cook County phenomenon which occurs perhaps seven out of 10 years. Check one:

(A) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because the chief judge of the Circuit Court failed to fill a vacancy on the Board of Tax Appeals.

(B) Tax bills will be late this year, costing local governments perhaps $70,000 a day in interest charges, because computers in the Department of Local Government Affairs (LGA) were unable to compute figures which used to be done by clerks.

If you checked (A), you were half right. If you checked (B), you were half right.

When County Board Pres. George W. Dunne announced last week the property tax bills would be at least one month late again this year, various sources attributed the costly delay to John Boyle, chief judge of the Circuit Court.

The watchdog Civic Federation, however, said the LGA has to shoulder some of the responsibility.

WHEREVER THE responsibility rests,

the resulting cost to county taxpayers, in the form of interest on tax anticipation warrants, will be an estimated $2 million.

The Civic Federation has estimated the warrants will cost almost $35,000 a day to the City of Chicago, Cook County, Chicago Park District, Forest Preserve and Chicago City Colleges. The cost to the several hundred other county taxing bodies, it has been estimated, will at least double that amount.

Judge Boyle's part in this year's version of the almost annual tax mess stems from his failure to name a successor to George Keane on the Board of (Tax) Appeals for almost two months following Keane's resignation Dec. 1.

Finally, in late January, the judge appointed Seymour Zaban to be post. In the meantime, however, the board fell far behind in its task of hearing thousands of appeals filed by dissatisfied taxpayers.

THE COMPUTATION of tax rates and tax bills cannot begin until the board of appeals has completed its work.

Cook County political observers have claimed the judge's delay in making the appointment, charged to him by law, resulted from disagreement within the Democratic Party over who the successor should be.

Judge Boyle was not available for comment.

The second share of the fault this year goes to the LGA for its inability to provide the county clerk with figures on the assessment of capital stock by March 1.

The LGA is charged with determining the value of state service corporations — such as utilities and insurance companies — over and above the tangible assets of the company.

Those figures also are critical.

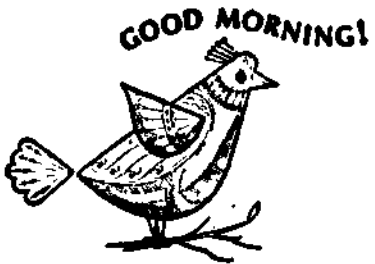

A spokesman for the LGA admitted partial responsibility for the late tax bills. He said the LGA has encountered serious problems in the computer system used to determine capital stock assessments.

A second spokesman for the LGA has estimated the work will not be completed until the end of March. The county clerk needs about 30 days in which to compute the tax rates and bills after receiving the information from the LGA.

That timetable apparently coincides with Dunne's estimate: the tax bills will be mailed May 1, with the first installment payment due June 1.

But, Dunne said, there may be additional delays if further problems in the billing procedure occur.

Vote on bond issue for flood projects urged

The Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding last night voted to recommend on April 3 referendum for a $12.245 million general obligation bond issue to finance flood control projects throughout Arlington Heights.

The village board will act on the committee's recommendation at its meeting Monday night.

The committee also agreed to abandon plans for a 100-acre lake along McDonald Creek and substituted a 68-acre, dry-bottom retention basin. The change was made in the face of the Metropolitan Sanitary District's (MSD) apparent refusal to contribute money to the lake project.

The MSD originally had been assigned $5.8 million of the lake's $9.8 million total estimated cost. The MSD is willing, according to committee chairman Trustee Frank Palmatier, to contribute $2.5 to $3 million for a 68-acre dry-bottom basin along the creek.

The committee also voted to include $1.85 million in the referendum package for a retention basin at Pioneer Park. The figure includes a $75,000 compensation to the Arlington Heights Park District for three acres of park land that would be used for the basin.

The Park Board has voted, 3-2, in opposition to using land at Pioneer Park for a retention basin. And if the referendum is approved, a basin could not be built there unless the board changes its position.

The committee felt, however, it also-lutely essential that the Pioneer Park area, which has suffered severe flooding problems, be included in the referendum package.

"I have to see Pioneer Park included before I could vote for the referendum," said committee member Frank Rebek, who represents the Westgate area near the park. "I think it would be very unjust to take care of three-quarters of the village and leave out Pioneer Park."

Rebek was the only member of the committee to vote against recommending the April 3 referendum date because, he said, he thought the committee needed more time to prepare the package.

"There are too many if's in the Peterson report — too many intangibles in the whole project. I'm all for flood control projects but I think we need to tie up some loose ends," he said.

Palmatier said the April 3 election date was the optimum time for the referendum because of the voter turnout that is already anticipated for village, park and school board elections.

"I think we would be laughable in the eyes of the voters if we came back with a referendum a month or two after the April election. I think there would be a credibility gap over our sense of urgency if we waited until the Fall," Palmatier said.

Committee member Norman Breyer from the Northgate subdivision said he too thought the committee needed more time, but said he voted yes because he supports the projects proposed in the Peterson report.

Legal requirements dictate that if the referendum is to be held April 3, the village board will have to adopt a referendum ordinance at its meeting Monday night.

Speaking in support of the $12.245 million package, Palmatier said he thinks the referendum will be largely "self-selling." "It's been sold by the flooded basements and flooded streets we had last August. This is an entirely different project than an ice rink," he said.

Last December, a $2.55 million park district referendum, that included an indoor ice rink, was defeated by the voters by a four to one margin.

SMILING FACES OF Girl Scouts will be standing in doorways throughout Arlington Heights as the annual cookie sales continues through March 11. Five varieties of cookies will be on sale for $1 a box.

Arlington Theatre adds bit of culture

by BETTY LEE

The Arlington Park Theatre has been called a miniature John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, providing a dash of culture to the rapid sprawl of housing developments and shopping centers in the Northwest suburbs.

But many local residents who drive by have never been inside to see the looming columns, plush red carpeting, the lighted fountains or Burt Reynolds, Rudy Vallee and other stars who ply their trade on stage.

The theater was constructed at this site at Euclid Avenue and Rohlfing Road "because of the tremendous potential for growth here," said Karen Alton, publicist. "Arlington Heights is a good community because a lot of people know where it's located. People are moving and expanding. A quality theater can no longer be restricted to the Loop or the inner city."

THE ARLINGTON Park Theatre was built less than two years ago. Architect Milton Zic of Chicago was commissioned to design it, and David Lonn, managing director, worked closely with him to create the kind of theater Lonn wanted. A quick visual tour shows a theater-in-the-round, or arena, as they like to call it. It has a capacity of 723 persons with the farthest seat 23 feet from the stage.

"Lonn didn't want just a section of a restaurant or the basement of some hotel for a quality theater," said Miss Alton. "He wanted a free-standing theater with the grace and magnitude of professionalism."

Two years prior to groundbreaking of the Arlington Park theater, there was a lot of hard work and a lot of anguish, but there was also a strong feeling of confidence for a full-quality theater to grow in the Northwest suburban communities.

"We try to get away from the concept of the suburban theater for they often have a connotation of less quality," said Miss Alton.

Lonn is constantly reading plays, looking for quality plays of no particular type. He usually visualizes a certain star for certain parts and tries to get him.

"We don't categorize the types of shows they are, just so they are done with great talent, and that the play itself is of great talent," said Miss Alton.

"L O N N'S VISUALIZATION is so strong that we don't have a pool of artists to choose from. For example, he wanted James Farentino to play in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." He couldn't come for a long time, so we postponed it until he was able to play the part. That was over a year and a half ago."

Top stars have been professionals like Joan Fontaine, Richard Chamberlain, Lois Nettleton and others who are in television, Broadway or movies.

Shows usually run for six to eight weeks because stars are often committed

Village gets grant to hire personnel chief

The Village of Arlington Heights has received a $25,000 federal grant to hire a full-time personnel director.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission awarded the village the money to cover the cost of hiring a personnel administrator and secretary.

The village had planned for the new position in its 1973-74 budget.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

The state department said the U.S. ambassador to the Sudan, Cleo Noel, was among the foreign diplomats seized by the group of terrorists who captured the Saudi Arabian embassy. They are demanding the release of Sirhan B. Sirhan.

Sens. George McGovern and James Abourezk met yesterday with federal Indian officials trying to win the release of 11 hostages held by militant members of the American Indian Movement at Wounded Knee, S.D.

President Nixon has abandoned, at least temporarily, his search for major reform of the nation's welfare system because he said "the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage."

Leaders of a four-week St. Louis public school strike continued to feel its effects as Circuit Judge Thomas McGuire ordered one leader jailed for 60 days, and fined the teacher organization $140,000.

A criminal court judge ruled the film "Deep Throat" obscene, and banned its further showing in Manhattan.

The state

A federal Court judge entered an order putting Illinois' abortion law into compliance with the U.S. Supreme Court decision. (Turn to page 10)

Clair M. Roddewig, acting chairman of the Chicago Transit Authority board, said he believed state senators would find a way to help the CTA, which may have to hike fares and cut services on March 18.

Illinois judges would be appointed under a "merit system" instead of political elections under a plan introduced in the Illinois General Assembly.

The world

A new dollar crisis hit Europe yesterday, sending the price of American currency down, and the price of gold up. West Germany's central bank bought more than $2 billion in a battle with speculators.

Authorities have identified a skeleton dug out of World War II rubble as that of Martin Bormann.

to other projects concurrently. "Engagements are often sold out and we can't make extensions," said Miss Alton. "A lot of people don't understand this, and we may be making some enemies."

And why do these top stars come to Arlington Heights when there are good Loop theaters?

"Actors are happy to work for a theater like this and for David Lonn because he's an idealist," said Miss Alton. "Word spreads fast in this business. Craftsmen want to work in unrestricted ways. Their ideas are always taken into consideration."

When Lonn was planning "Death of a Salesman," he first sought out permission from its playwright, Arthur Miller, who was living in Connecticut. The play had not been allowed in professional hands for about nine years. When Lonn told Miller of his plans, Miller was so enthused that he offered to come to Arlington Heights as an adviser for the play.

UNLIKE A LOT of theaters, Arlington Park has no strict budgets. Rather, some of the expense has been passed on to the public when they purchase tickets. The price range of the tickets, the lowest from $5 to $8, the highest $12, fluctuates, depending on the type of production, the number of artists and set expenses. "People are charged on what we are giving them," said Miss Alton. "They don't seem to mind. There were times when people appear near the box office and try to buy tickets off other people for handsome prices."

Word of mouth from the audiences to their friends has been one of the theater's effective form of conveying the theater's professionalism, as well as actors among themselves.

"Living in the city doesn't stop people from driving out here," said Miss Alton. "One time a group of students came out to see a performance, and for many of them, it was their first. When the show was over, the kids enjoyed it so much that they said they would like to see plays more often and would prefer it over a movie. They had planned to come out at least once a month. That gave me a feeling of confidence and achievement."

What is the future for the quality theater in the suburbs? According to Miss Alton, the Arlington Park Theatre still is in its "embryonic stage," but she thinks that with well constructed plays and good people around, people will enjoy going to the theater.

Car, air pollution checks to highlight Earth Week

A checkpoint to measure auto emissions and a two-week visit by an air pollution mobile monitoring station are two proposed highlights marking this year's Earth Week in Arlington Heights.

Other probable Earth Week events include an ecological film festival, tree plantings at Arlington Heights parks and a lecture by a horticulturalist with the Chicago Park District.

Earth Week this year will run from April 1-7.

The week's activities are being planned by a steering committee made up of Marilyn Macko and Gene Hanlon, members of the village Environmental Control Commission; Angelo Capuli, Arlington Heights Park District; Ellen Del Ponte, Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club; Jeanette Getling, Arlington Heights Senior Woman's Club; John Stratt, Arlington High School; Jim Montgomery, School Dist. 25; Margaret Estey, Arlington Heights Girl Scouts; Bea Harris, Chamber of Commerce; Scott Rollsch, Berkley Square Civic Association; Mrs. Charles St. Angel and Mrs. Jack Ehler, Jaycees Wives.

Equipment for the auto emissions check and the air pollution mobile unit are being supplied by the Chicago Lung Association.

IT IS PLANNED that the auto check be set up at Miner Junior High School on Saturday, April 7. The station will be staffed throughout the day by 10 adults and six high school students.

The station is designed to measure the level of automobile exhaust emissions by a simple, three-minute test that involves placing a probe in the vehicle's exhaust pipe and attaching a clip to one of the engine spark plugs.

The air pollution mobile will visit Arlington Heights for about two weeks, checking air quality at several different monitoring points including the Muni-pal Building, the south side fire station and the village well site on north Arlington Heights Road.

The steering committee is also hopeful that Del Selbert, a horticulturalist with the Chicago Park District, will lecture on "Plants: A Solution to Pollution."

An ecological film festival at the library as well as library exhibits are also under consideration.

A poster and Earth Week essay contest will also be held in the schools.

"We feel ecology is more than just cleaning up. It involves understanding and awareness of a lot of different environmental matters. For that reason, we're planning more than just the clean-up we had last year," said Mrs. Hanlon, chairman of the Earth Week steering committee.

There's no sin in the centerfold

'Gallery girl' bares naked truth of her nude poses

"What is a nice girl like you doing posing nude in a magazine like that?" That might be the question put to Kris Thornstadt by the average person.

But for Kris, an attractive 21-year-old who has lived in this area most of her life, the reason she posed for eight pages of photographs, including the centerfold, in the March issue of Gallery magazine is simple and unspectacular.

"I see it as just an extension on my modeling career," she said succinctly. The Mount Prospect native who now lives in Hoffman Estates and works in Elk Grove Village said the Gallery gatefold experience did not mark any great milestone in her life.

"It all started as sort of a joke. It took three days to shoot the pictures, and I did not get any kind of kinky thrill from the whole thing," Kris explained.

THAT REMARK might come as a disappointment for the average reader of those magazines — which offer those great literary articles and, oh yes, a few pictures — but Kris emphasized there was "no playing around during the picture session" and "the pictures were not taken during some orgy."

Kris said she eventually hopes to make modeling her full-time career, but right now finds bartending a good way to make a living. A graduate of Northern Illinois University, Kris said she went to college so she could have a degree.

She does not look at being the Gallery Girl as opening any new doors or offering new job opportunities.

"I have done a few things, but by next month there will be a new issue of the magazine, a new centerfold and everyone will say 'Kris Thornstadt — who was she,'" Kris said.

KRIS DOES NOT share the Women's Lib appraisal of magazines such as Gallery being debasing to females or a bedrock plank of the male chauvinism ethic. "It is a matter of personal taste, and choice," she said, adding, "I am as liberated as I want to be. There are very few things around that I cannot do if I really feel like it."

She added, however, Gallery does not try to promote a lifestyle and image, as done by Playboy and other magazines in the field.

"Gallery just presents a magazine with articles and the pictures; they do not try to tell you what type of life to lead or what the typical reader's woman should look and act like," Kris said.

GENERALLY, reaction to Kris' pictures has been favorable, she added.

"My father thought it was great, but my boyfriend was a little embarrassed," she said. Most of the customers at her place of work who recognize her from the magazine have been complimentary, Kris said.

"But it is the two per cent who are creeps that can make things difficult," she added.

She has no great plans for the future, and the Gallery experience will probably not be anything more than a memory in a few weeks, she believes.

"I don't see myself as any type of freak. I don't think it takes any particular type of person to pose nude in a magazine," she said.

"It was just another job."

Hersey 'week' honors 24 foreign students

Fifteen foreign exchange students from southwestern Illinois will join nine local American Field Service exchange students during international week at Hersey High School. Host families will also participate in the week of events.

Wednesday's schedule includes a field trip for the foreign students and their host "brothers" and "sisters." They will tour parts of downtown Chicago, including Malcolm X College, the Urban League, and other areas. Wednesday evening will be spent at Harper College, where actor Vincent Price will speak.

The week begins with a potluck dinner Sunday at the school. Monday, students will attend classes and swim at Wheeling High School.

Tuesday they will have a roller skating party, and on Thursday a special viewing of "Antigone" at Hersey is planned. The week will finish out with parties Friday and Saturday evenings.

MARCH GALLERY girl Kris Thornstadt does not see posing nude for the magazine's centerfold section as anything spectacular. "It is just another modeling job for me," Kris explains.

ACNE CAN SCAR

Among adolescents, acne is the most often found skin problem. It is a mistaken notion that acne needs no treatment because it will eventually go away by itself. Neglected acne can result in skin pitting, blotching and other disfiguring scars. Emotionally it can leave a devastating scar.

Fortunately, the list of possible treatments for acne is especially good. Besides the common sense rules of a healthy diet and good everyday skin hygiene, there are many specific medicines that a physician can prescribe and which we regularly stock. Prompt treatment is important so don't wait for acne to go away.

Permit not granted in open meeting

Hospital OK may have violated law

by STEVE BROWN
Approval by the Illinois Hospital Licensing Board of an application for an initial operating permit for the Schaumburg branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes (RPSL) Medical Center may have violated the state's open meeting law.

If the board did not make its recommendation to grant the operating permit in an open session the deliberations were unauthorized and the action could be invalid, said former Democratic Rep. Anthony Scariano of Park Forest, sponsor of the law.

Dr. William Lees, a member of the state board, said the board was polled by mail for their recommendations on the request. He said the board did not meet.

The board at their last regular meeting in January said they would defer action until their next meeting in April. Officials announced yesterday the permit had been approved.

ALSO, DR. FRANKLIN YODER, former director of the department of public health, told Dr. James Campbell, RPSL president, the decision would be deferred until April.

Yoder has since been replaced by Dr. Joyce Lashof, the former chairman of the hospital's department of preventive medicine. She approved the operating permit after the board made the recommendation.

The open meeting law states that action taken in unauthorized sessions by a public body is invalid. The law also requires that the public be informed of all meetings held by public bodies.

State Representatives Eugene Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said they both plan to examine the action of the board to determine if there were any irregularities.

Dr. Lees said he had received a letter from George Hendrix, chairman of the hospital licensing board, requesting his recommendation on the application.

"The application was in order. There was not one iota of evidence presented against the development of a hospital there. We did not hide anything. We did not violate the law," he said.

THE BOARD had agreed to review a health planning study prepared for the Northwest Cook County Health Needs Study Committee before making recommendations.

Dr. Lees said he did not receive a copy of the report, which was partially financed with a $12,000 state grant, before making a decision. He added that he did not believe any of the board members had seen the report either.

Both Chapman and Totten were unclear as to what action they could take, but they said the plan to examine the board's actions.

"It appears that the board did not make an effort to allow the people of the community to become fully involved in this decision," Rep. Chapman said.

Totten said he had received requests from several persons to look into the matter to determine what could be done.

An action can be filed with the courts to have a review of the board's conduct and the court can set aside any decisions made during unauthorized sessions, said Scariano.

11-story building set near Woodfield mall

Plans for an 11-story office building as the first phase of Woodfield Place development of IDC Realty Company were to be announced this morning by Robert Wislow, local executive for the El Paso, Tex., firm.

The office building will be at the intersection of Woodfield and Mall drives, and will have underground storm water retention, according to unofficial but well-placed sources.

Future development on the 28-acre parcel that stretches from Woodfield Drive to Higgins Road will include a large hotel, not expected to be as tall as the office structure but not yet tied down to a specific size. While no firm has been signed to operate the hotel, sources believe negotiations are being held both with hotel chains and nonchain operators.

Retail property also is included in the development plan, and some sources speculate a Neiman-Marcus Co., exclusive Texas retailer, still may be in the Woodfield Place picture. While Neiman-Marcus has petitioned for a zoning change for a facility in Northbrook, residents there are opposing the project, and IDC is known to have been negotiating with Neiman-Marcus. It is the "kind of a store IDC would love to have," one source noted.

A health club and tennis center also will be in the IDC plans, with other entertainment facilities.

NORTHBROOK officials said yesterday the future of the proposed center there still is undetermined. The roughly 140-acre development there is to be anchored by a Sears Roebuck and Co. store, if the zoning change is approved. The village's plan commission has held its first public hearing on the request, which was the scene of local opposition, and further commission discussions are scheduled for March 6. At that point, the commission is expected to make a recommendation to the village board, said staff assistant James Mathews.

Mathews said the commission may recommend plan approval as is, may deny plan approval or may approve the plan with stipulated changes. The earliest date the village board could receive and consider the commission's decision is March 19, he said. The Northbrook site is at the intersection of Lake Cook and Lee roads.

Neiman-Marcus is a subsidiary of Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., of Dallas, and is headed by members of the Marcus family. In current references it is listed as grossing $80 million in sales in its four Texas retail stores, a Florida store and boutiques in Houston and Dallas. It was merged with Broadway-Hale in August 1970.

Search on for kindergartners

Look under the beds and check the campus room. Dist. 25 wants to know if you've got any kindergarten-age children.

The school district is in the middle of its annual "Kindergarten Roundup" designed to give school officials an estimate on how many youngsters will be enrolling in first-year classes in September.

So far the response to an inquiry sent to parents through out the district has been suspiciously low, a district spokesman said. He asked parents with children who will be enrolling in kindergarten next school year to call their neighborhood school, or the district administration building at CL 3-6100.

TO BE ELIGIBLE for kindergarten next year, a child must be at least five years old on or before Dec. 2, 1973. To be eligible for first grade a child must be six years old on or before that date.

Other kindergarten registration requirements include the presentation of the child's official birth certificate, a complete physical and dental examination after Jan. 1, 1973 and immunization against red measles, diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus and polio.

Kindergarten registration will be held at the following schools on the dates listed: Patton, March 15; Dunton, May 1; Windsor, May 3; Ridge, May 4; Kensington and Wilson, May 8; Dryden, May 10; Park, May 11; Berkley, May 14; North, May 15; Westgate, May 17; Greenbrier, May 18 and Ivy Hill, May 23.

Hours of registration by last name at all schools are: A-B, 9 a.m.; C-D, 9:30 a.m.; E-F-G, 10 a.m.; H-I, 10:30 a.m.; J-K-L, 11 a.m.; M-N-O, 1:30 p.m.; P-Q-R, 2 p.m.; S-T, 2:30 p.m.; and U-Z, 3 p.m.
